Grant Refusal Taken Calmly

TORONTO (CP) — The threat of an explosion along religious lines in Ontario's school system appeared to abate Tuesday night as separate school supporters reacted with moderation to Premier Davis' rejection of further grants to Roman Catholic schools.

Educationists and opposition politicians generally agreed with the premier that the issue should not be allowed to inflame religious passions and obscure the deeper social issues which will be debated during the provincial election campaign expected to begin shortly.

For Additional Stories On Separate School Issue See Pages 22

Nevertheless, Catholic school officials said the decision might mean the closure of some schools for the lack of funds, and the Liberal party said there was no doubt the premier's decision would become a hot election issue.

Catholics Here Unhappy

'It's Too Big For Politics'

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Extension of government aid to separate schools will become an issue in the next provincial election, but Roman Catholic spokesmen here deplore the fact.

"This is something too big to be decided politically," said Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board vice-chairman Mrs. Lillian O'Connor this morning.

But many leading Roman Catholics said privately that Premier William Davis' last minute announcement of the Conservative party's policy against extended grants makes the school issue a sure-fire election issue.

"It's going to be hard to keep it out of the election, because Davis made his statement at this late date," said Ian Kroere, separate school board chairman. "It will do more harm than good," he said of inclusion of the grant extension in the planks of the political parties.

Dollar Stronger; Ruble Devalued

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar gained strength against the West German mark and the French franc today while holding steady against the Japanese yen.

The wave of monetary changes in the wake of President Nixon's new economic policy finally reached Moscow. The Soviet government increased the ruble value of 15 foreign currencies but maintained the previous dollar rate of $1.11 to the ruble.

On the Frankfurt money market, the dollar opened at 3.4 marks compared with 3.3965 at the close Tuesday. Dealers said the improvement was due to a strong demand for dollars. The opening price represented a 7.1-per-cent upward revaluation of the mark against the dollar's official 3.66 parity, a rate abandoned last May when the mark was set free to float.

On the Paris free market, the dollar recovered from Tuesday's sharp slump to trade for 5.33 to 5.35 francs, equivalent to a devaluation of about 3.8 per cent from the official parity of 5.55 francs.

The dollar had closed Tuesday at 5.31 francs, its lowest level since the French set up a two-tier market Aug. 23.

Maple Leaf Gardens Deal Made

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard and Stafford Smythe acquired total control of Maple Leaf Gardens today by purchasing for $5,886,600 the 196,220 shares of stock controlled by John Bassett, publisher of The Telegram.

Smythe is president of the Gardens and Ballard executive vice-president. Bassett was chairman of the board of directors until he resigned in January.

In buying out Bassett, Ballard and Smythe exercised a privilege agreed upon in November, 1961, when they and Bassett bought control of the Gardens from Conn Smythe, Stafford Smythe's father.

At that time, they acquired about 20 per cent of the stock each at a cost of about $40 a share and decided that if any of them ever decided to sell, he would give the others first refusal. Since then, Gardens shares have split five for one.

PRIME MINISTER LYNCH

Cardinal Pleads For Peace In Ireland

BELFAST (CP) — Despite a plea by the Roman Catholic primate of All Ireland to violent men "for God's sake to stop" the terrorism in Northern Ireland and place a chance, more bombings and shootings hit the country Tuesday night.

The primate, John Cardinal Conway, in a statement made an impassioned plea for the end of the violence that has taken 94 lives since 1969. The latest death came Tuesday when an 18-year-old British soldier died from wounds suffered Sunday when a sniper's bullet hit him in the head.

"I appeal to those who are seeking a solution by violent means for God's sake to stop and give peaceful means a chance."

The governments in Belfast, London and Dublin were immersed in angry row over responsibility for a weekend border incident in which a British soldier was killed.

In London and Belfast, government ministers were still seething over the statement Tuesday by Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic who accused Britain of failing to control troop movements in Northern Ireland border.

Lynch was giving his account of Sunday's border incident in which an army corporal, whose patrol had accidentally strayed into the republic, was killed in an ambush by Irish Republican Army terrorists.

The Irish prime minister said there was evidence that the fatal shots had been fired from the Northern Ireland side of the border and not, as stated by the British defence ministry, from the republican side.

Bumper Crops Generate Grain Surplus in India

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Food production in India, plagued by chronic shortages until a few years ago, has outstripped all expectations in 1970-71 and created problems of plenty.

The biggest problem is shortage of storage space. Another, in the near future is finding new markets for the surplus grains in two to three years.

Final government estimates show production of foodgrains in the 1970-1971 period amounted to 107,810,000 tons against a requirement of 94 million tons for a population of 550 million, and a projected production of 105 million tons.

After allowing 12.5 per cent of 13,500,000 tons for seed, feed and wastage, the country now is self-sufficient for the first time since independence, officials say.

The nearly eight million East Pakistani refugees in India would not pose much of a problem as far as food is concerned either, though they are expected to consume one million tons of foodgrains in one year, food ministry officials say.

Production of most cereals showed increases during the last year but it is the big jump in wheat production—from 20.1 million tons to 23-25 million tons —that has landed grain-handling agencies in trouble.

The Food Corporation of India, a government agency for buffer stock and price support operations, and other state agencies now hold nearly 9.5 million tons of cereals, mainly of rice and wheat, as operational and buffer stocks against a total basic storage capacity of only eight million tons.

The government started building new storage facilities. Schools and unoccupied buildings are being temporarily used as warehouses.

At some places, grain bags are just stacked on temporary platforms and covered with huge polythene sheets.

Farm Tax Aid Distributed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has begun distributing more than $16 million among Ontario farm property owners under the 1971 farm tax reduction program, Municipal Affairs Minister Dalton Bales announced today.

The program, in its second year, is intended to help soften the impact of municipal and education taxes on farm properties.

Labor and Police Fight Wage Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two labor groups and Boston policemen have filed lawsuits challenging the constitutionality of President Nixon's wage-price freeze, as it applies to deferred pay raises and government employees.

The justice department, replying Tuesday to a similar suit brought last week by four Catholic University professors in Washington, said an injunction against the 90-day freeze would result "in the irreparable dislocation of the President's program to stem inflation, reduce unemployment and reduce our trade deficit."

The administration added that the law meets constitutional standards.

The new challenges were filed Tuesday in Washington by postal unions representing 650,000 workers; in Kansas City by Local 124, AFL-CIO International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers with about 2,000 members, and in Boston by the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association.

Air Fares Decision Postponed

MONTREAL (CP) — Lufthansa's deadline to withdraw its veto of a new fares package for the North Atlantic route has been extended by two weeks to Sept. 15, International Air Transport Association announced today.

A spokesman for IATA said the extension had been granted at the request of several member airlines.

Originally, the West German carrier had until midnight tonight to reverse its decision Aug. 11 to vote against the fares worked out at a seven-week IATA conference in Montreal this summer.

Of 40 airlines which attended the Montreal conference in June and July on new fare rates, only Lufthansa voted against a final agreement.

Unanimous approval was needed to put it into effect in February.

H. Don Reynolds, IATA traffic chairman, had left the record open until today to allow the West German carrier time to withdraw its rejection. Lufthansa had described the proposed fare structure as confused and chaotic.

Children's Book Is Produced Here

Two unusual ladies from the Belleville area decided that it was about time that really worthwhile books were placed on the market that would appeal to the junior reader.

This was the first step to bringing the Peppermint Stick onto the book shelves.

One of the neat needs of a young child," said one of the authors, "is the need to participate. In the book, the child is asked to draw the fish that ate Elmer for lunch. (Elmer is a dew worm), he is asked to learn basic French expressions and play with word games. It is important for this kind of involvement if the child is expected to enjoy the book for more than one afternoon."

An interesting feature of the book is that it is all hand printed and all illustrations are hand coloured.

Under the authorship of "JIC" and "JEE", the book is occupying a place in the Beaver Den located six miles north of the city on the Highway 62. The book sells for $3.95 and the authors claim, "we derive no profit from the sales of the book." The retail cost covers printing costs and the markup."

Veterans Honored

MARMORA (Special) — On Sunday August 29, Marmora Branch 327 of the Royal Canadian Legion in their annual decoration day ceremonies, paid tribute to the Marmora veterans who lie buried in the Marmora Cemeteries and on foreign battlefields.

The weather was none perfect as a parade of over 50 veterans, Ladies' Auxiliary, color parties from Norwood, Campbellford, Havelock, Madoc and Marmora and the Belleville ANAF Duke of Edinburgh Pipe Band formed at the new Legion premises on Hastings Street.

A good turnout of spectators saw the parade salute the war dead at the Memorial Building before proceeding to the Sacred Heart Cemetery. Father Scanlon addressed the veterans, commending them for their various community activities and urged them to continue this good work. He suggested that many young people today who are constantly making passes in life might take an example from the Canadian Legion whose members have demonstrated unselfishness in the past and today continue to work for the betterment of the community.

The colorful parade then proceeded to the Veterans' Plot at the Marmora Cemetery where Mr. May of Vancashe conducted the service.

Garbage Truck Locally Owned

In the report of Sunday's garbage truck fire on Highway 401 near Napanee, the name of the truck owner was incorrectly given in The Intelligencer as being Kingston Commercial Refuse.

The name should have read Commercial Refuse Services of Belleville.

Also the Belleville owners say the fire which destroyed their $40,000 vehicle was not caused from the load of scrap iron which it had earlier picked up at Millhaven.

Herbert Payne, driver of the vehicle told provincial police that there was an explosion and then flames all around the cab. It is suspected that the fire originated in the transmission.

Provincial Constable David Cooke said the driver "had a lot of guts" to stick with the burning vehicle for a quarter of a mile to make sure it was safely off the highway.

Belleville Flyer Official Hoister

James Marker, chief flying instructor of the Belleville Flying Club has been chosen to perform in the International Flying Show at the Canadian National Exhibition September 3 to 6.

Mr. Marker will be responsible for holding internationally famous Scotty McCray into the air. Mr. McCray, dyed a Schweizer sail plane, will be performing aerobatics in the air show this year. Mr. Marker will be commuting by plane between Toronto and Belleville each day but his stay will be sufficient in the evenings that he will be entertained, with the rest of the flying personnel, by the mayor and council of the city of Toronto and Air-Vice-Marshal K. G. Gillogs at a reception in the Skyline Hotel.

There was no official statement as to why Mr. Marker was chosen for the flying honour, but it is felt "through his experience with gliding at the Belleville club, he proved to be a capable pilot for the assignment," a club spokesman said.

City's Volunteers To Be Recognized

Yesterday, pink posters went up around town, in stores, offices, factories and restaurants in tribute to volunteer efforts.

The poster reads, "Belleville thanks it volunteers, Sept. 12-18. Are you a volunteer?"

The city's first Volunteer recognition Week is scheduled for Sept. 12 to 18, with a full program designed to acquaint the people of the city with the work volunteers do in their behalf.

Highlight of the week will be a dinner Sept. 15 at the Four Seasons Hotel, when outstanding volunteers from city organizations will be honored. The Volunteer Bureau is now looking for the youngest and oldest volunteers in the city for recognition during volunteer week.

Fuel Oil Price To Be Increased

The increased cost will range anywhere from $12 to $20 depending on the size of the house and the amount of oil used.

The reason is that city furnace oil distributors during the past few weeks have boosted their prices by one and a half cents a gallon, bringing the cost to 23.5 cents.

That is for city users; those living outside the city limits will pay an additional one cent a gallon.

A spokesman for one local oil distributor said the amount of furnace oil used annually in Belleville ranged anywhere from 800 gallons, depending on the size of the house and the amount of insulation in the building.

There has been no increase in the cost of natural gas, with the regular rate remaining at $1.50 a 100 cubic feet, and the seasonal rate being $1.50 minimum for up to 700 feet.

The last increase in the cost of natural gas was in 1962.

Plea Is Guilty

Irvin Strand, 19, of RR1, Carrying Place, was fined a total of $20 and $5 court cost when he was sentenced on both charges in provincial court Tuesday.

Belleville police Constable Robert Cooper testified he arrested Strand while the youth was staggering down Dundas Street East.

Loyalist Courses Said Housewife Rejuvenators

Education has been credited and blamed for almost everything good and bad about society today.

But Loyalist College officials here claim to have found an unexpected bonus in learning — it has a rejuvenating effect on middle-aged housewives.

So says William Buckley, senior supervisor in arts at the college, joining "the exhilarating learning environment" at the college and "rubbing shoulders with young people" has lifted years from the lives of bored older women, he says.

About a dozen married women with grown children have returned to the college a day apiece, taking single courses or a full academic program.

"They soon learn there is not really a generation gap, just a communications gap," says Mr. Buckley. "Their views change drastically after a month at the college. They learn the language of youth, and can communicate with young people better. But it continues. Knowing the language and using it are two different things. The kids don't want a 45-year-old teenager in their midst."

"They bring another viewpoint into the classroom, one the kids often aren't aware of," he says.

But the teachers derive the greatest benefit from older students. The communication of the two generations in one classroom stimulates discussion and "reinforces learning."

The college has older students enrolled in full programs in educational resource technicians courses and early childhood education. There are several students attending part-time during the day in the recreation arts and social service courses.

About 115 arts and business courses are offered in each of the two semesters a year at Loyalist. The basic courses have no prerequisites and are open to anyone.

Mr. Buckley would like to see more women, with an hour or two a day to spare, enrol in a college course. The popular courses for the casual mature student, he believes, would be psychology, sociology, group dynamics, politics, photography, television and communication arts classes.

He would like to see as many as possible enrolling in "communications. "Most of the population is visually illiterate," he says. The communication experts can pull the wool over our eyes easily."

Search Goes On

BANCROFT (Staff) — Bancroft detachment, OPP Constable T. L. Reine and OPP SCUBA divers today continue their search for the body of a Metropolitan Toronto Police Constable reported drowned in Wollaston Lake Monday evening.

Constable Robert Lattimer, 29, of 15 Cougar Crescent, Scarborough, and a companion, Gordon Gamer of Ottawa, were boating on the Coe Hill River lake when the outboard motorboat they were using swamped.

Both men ended up in the water as Mr. Gramm attempted to swim to his friend, throwing a lifejacket in the process. However, the gentleman disappeared below the surface.

Passing Attempt Leads to Crash

PLAINFIELD (Staff) — A three-vehicle collision involving two cars and a transport truck on Highway 37, north of here at 4.47 p.m. yesterday, resulted in a RR 5 Belleville woman being taken to Belleville General Hospital.

Joan Chisholm was forced off the highway when a car driven by Alphonse Lajoie, RR 3, Tweed, attempted to pass a transport being driven by Douglas Edward Robinson, also of RR 3, Tweed.

Provincial police report the Lajoie lad had been making a proper pass, but apparently ran out of room, and was forced to return to his own lane, bumping into the large transport wheels in the process.

Miss Chisholm ran into a ditch to avoid both vehicles. Both cars ended up in the ditch.

Three Injured At Cherry Valley

CHERRY VALLEY (Staff) — Three Prince Edward County residents were treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital yesterday morning following a two-car collision in Cherry Valley.

Injured were Robbie Welsh, 18, passenger in a car driven by 19-year-old Richard Arthur Welsh, Cherry Valley, and Lily Ashcroft, RR3, Picton, and Mrs. Charles Ashcroft, RR3, Demorestville, passengers in a vehicle driven by Alfred Ashcroft, 72, RR3, Picton.

Drivers of both vehicles were unhurt.

Passengers were treated for minor cuts and bruises at PECM hospital and released.

Both accidents total damage to the cars involved.

Political Role Feared

The Liberal and NDP parties are on record as favoring extension of grants to grades 11, 12 and 13 of separate high schools, on the same basis as grants are given to public high schools. At present government aid extends only to the end of grade 10 and is paid at the same rate as elementary school grants.

Both Mr. Kroeze and Mrs. O'Connor said they were disappointed at the Davis announcement yesterday that aid would not be extended by a Conservative government to the senior separate schools.

"We need it badly," said Mrs. O'Connor of increased provincial money. "We will have to regroup our forces."

Separate school trustees officially asked for the extra grants two years ago, and Roman Catholic groups, including students, continued to press their case the two years since the official request.

Mr. Davis's official denial of the request yesterday "was not unexpected" Mr. Kroeze said. "We will have to keep fighting for it, keep hammering away to convince him (Davis) we are right."

A spokesman for the directors of Nicholson Catholic College said the board was "disappointed" at the denial of grants.

"Our financial position is serious," he said.

Although grades 9 and 10 of Nicholson are operated by the separate school board with unofficial tax levies and government grants at the elementary school rate, the three senior grades are incorporated as a private school.

For the first time in its history Nicholson will this year charge a tuition fee for students — $120 per person.

Msgr. J. P. Smith, rector of St. Michael's parish and member of both the separate school board and Nicholson's board of directors said this morning he himself would "not comment" on all discussion of grants until after the election.

"Everyone says he doesn't want it to become an election issue, but everyone is talking about it," he said. "I don't think things should be stirred up."

Tax Law To Get Priority

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson's tax law changes are likely to get top priority when Parliament resumes next week, informants indicated Tuesday.

Mr. Benson and his general revision of the Income Tax Act face a divided opposition, which could lead to protracted debate.

The main Progressive Conservative opposition is likely to steer away at what the government should do immediately to boost employment and stop the rising cost of living.

The New Democratic Party is highly critical of the government for staying too far from the principles of tax equity and the "ability-to-pay" theory which was behind the original proposals before they were modified.

Social Credit members are expected to advocate abolition of their own monetary ideals, at least where they conform to tax matters.

But in the end, the government Liberals, with a 151-majority in the Commons of 264 seats, are expected to carry the tax bill substantially as it was introduced in the June 18 budget.

A Conservative source confirmed that his party's criticism of the tax bill has been softened considerably by the more moderate plan of tax law change Mr. Benson introduced, after the more complicated proposals in the November, 1969, white paper.

However, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has recently renewed the complaint that Mr. Benson and Prime Minister Trudeau are mismanaging the economy. The Conservatives will insist on more explicit measures to create jobs and stop inflation before they will let the tax bill go through.

An NDP source said his party will give the royal commission on taxation, which recommended full taxation of capital gains, more generous individual exemptions, and scaling down retail sales taxes.

But the party's bill proposes raising basic exemptions; scaling down upper-bracket tax rates—though not as far as the white paper proposed—and taxing capital gains at half-rates of normal income tax.

Ontario Municipal Board Kills Trenton Highrise Apartment

TRENTON (Staff) — The Ontario Municipal Board has turned down the rezoning bid of builder Stan Klemencic that would have allowed construction of Trenton's first high-rise building.

In ruling on the highrise question, OMB vice-chairman David Jamieson says "I believe, the Board should be satisfied all services are adequate to serve the proposed development. In this case there is some doubt in my mind that several vital services are adequate and for this reason I conclude that this application is premature and recommend that it be not granted."

Mr. Jamieson gave several reasons why the OMB had refused zoning of the old Fraser estate on Dundas West to permit the seven-storey, 62-unit structure.

He said the "Planning Board has not considered this matter so, unfortunately, the Board does not have its opinion".

Dr. Robert Patrick, chairman of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board had told a public hearing on the question last month that he had not even seen drawings of the highrise.

The municipal board also expressed substantial concern with current services in the area. "I believe the representations as to the inadequacy of sanitary sewers and parks in the area were not answered," said Mr. Jamieson in his four-page written report.

"Ratepayers alleged that there was insufficient water supply and support this by pointing out there are restrictions on the use of water. In answer to this the town has stated that a 12-inch watermain is to be constructed when such work is completed it would seem that the water supply would be adequate," he said.

A number of doctors living in the area had testified before the public hearing they treated accident victims near the scene where the highrise would be built and feared an increase in traffic flow.

In view of this, Mr. Jamieson concludes, "I do not believe that the evidence as to traffic problems in the area has been adequately answered (by the town)."

Although the OMB has closed the doors on a sleek new apartment tower, such construction as six - plexes would be allowed on the site and J. D. Templeman had told the public hearing there would be built if the highrise were refused.

Trenton's new official plan severely limits the possible sites for highrises in the town — only two major sites remain — the bayshore landfill adjacent to Trenton Cold Storage and the northern portion of Dufferin Developments.

Happy Birthday To Us!

LONDON (CP) — Bridget Riley at 40 still looks good in a minidress and, in any case, is a dazzler by profession.

For 10 years she's been dazzling art connoisseurs with seductive arrays of wavy lines, intricate patterns of dots and discs, and baffling bands of disembodied color.

But, while admirers delightedly termed her latest exhibition historic and triumphant, the voices of dissent made themselves heard too.

They maintained that the show was more like a deliberate blitzing of the eye muscles than a display of soul-enhancing art.

Garbed in a minidress she looks far younger than her years despite the mental and esthetic stress which on at least one occasion has added a note of crisis to her personal life.

"No painter, dead or alive, has ever made us more conscious of our eyes than Bridget Riley," wrote critic Robert Melville in praising her big show at the publicly-owned Hayward Gallery.

Miss Riley, related through a grandfather to the legendary Victorian prime minister William Gladstone, denies the suggestion that she's out merely to waylay the gallery-goer's eye with a bagful of abstract visual tricks.

Instead, her supporters contend that she's aiming for a new sense of space, not confined to the surface of the picture but embracing the whole area between the canvas and the spectator.

Melville wrote in the New Statesman that her work has its full impact only if looked at from various distances and angles.

Yet, despite this disdain for Renaissance theories, she runs her studio in the manner of a 16th century Italian master—setting out the ideas for paintings and allowing assistants to fill in the details of color.

Male critics concede that Miss Riley's tough-minded and thoroughgoing intellectualism is something rarely found among British artists, whatever their sex.

"If I had to track down a feminine footprint here," wrote Nigel Gosling of The Observer, "I would point to a certain unforced patience, that quality which can add the thousandth stitch to the 999th without a tremor of triumph. It is nature's way of building."

Bridget's father, a commercial printer, was a harshly-treated Japanese prisoner of war during the three years following the 1942 fall of Singapore.

Her aunt first aroused Miss Riley's interest in art. But the young painter's long apprenticeship was interrupted in the mid-1950s when her father was badly hurt in a car crash.

Bridget took on the job of nursing him back to health But the whole period ended for her in a nervous and physical breakdown and a tortuous climb back to readiness for a renewed plunge into painting.

Teaching art to children helped her evolve fresh ideas of her own and by the 1960s she was an established fixture in an art scene seething with novelties that ranged from "op"—short for optical—to "pop".

In 1968, Miss Riley's rise to success was confirmed with the award to her of the top prize for painters at the prestige-laden Venice Biennale.

Despite her international reputation, one London critic contends that success has sapped her creative vigor. Richard Cork of The Evening Standard pronounced some portions of her Hayward show "the work of a fighter who has lost touch."

Engineer Wears Hot Pants

She holds a civic engineering degree from Northeastern University, works in the U.S. Corps of Engineers, and rides a 10-speed bicycle 10 miles through city traffic from her Boston home to work.

"It makes me feel physically prepared for the start of the whole day," she said. "When you drive a car you miss the outdoors. You don't smell the outdoors."

"I like attention, but I like it when it's in a quiet, subtle sort of way. All the whistles and remarks are meant to be flattering, then I'm missing the point because I'm not flattered."

It didn't work. "But at least now they have already driven past before they see I'm a girl and then it's too late to whistle."

Firehall Site Settled

AMELIASBURG (Special) — At a meeting here to settle the location of the second township firehall, council last night decided to proceed with construction on the property (100 feet by 300 feet) previously purchased for the purpose for $2,000.

A meeting was scheduled for next week with the proposed builder to complete plans to erect the shell of the station and have it ready to house equipment in the coming winter.

Council has already approved spending $15,000 on the project this year and the balance of $5,000 necessary to complete it in 1972.

A preferred location for the second fire hall, the gift of sufficient land from landowner Jack Hazard, of Carrying Place, had to be passed up due to a time delay in securing a clear title.

Planning Takeover

As the new Quinte Planning Board comes into being the impression we obtain of what passes for planning in this area is one of confusion, indecision and conflicting interests.

We do not propose to review the entire course of planning activity in recent months, culminating with the demise of the Belleville and Suburban Board and establishment of the Quinte Board. It has been amply covered in recent reports and in all its complex detail.

The hot potato that is the Belleville official plan, sizzling currently with what is referred to as the residential chapter, but far from ultimate completion, now must compete with the wider planning interests of the multi-municipal picture.

The area now covered, under the jurisdiction of the Quinte board, includes not only Belleville but Trenton, Stirling, Brighton, Frankford, and the townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Murray and Brighton.

Complex problems face the new board and they will only be solved by a willingness to make the democratic machinery work as expeditiously as possible and in the interests of all. We are entering a new era of development here. Continuing progress is what we all desire and the effectiveness of the planning board will be measured accordingly.

Tarnished Image

If Canadians look askance at violence abroad what about our own image in this regard? Montreal has just had its 33rd murder of 1971 with the fatal shooting of a 31-year-old man in a city restaurant. The slaying brought the number of persons killed in Quebec at large since January to 76.

At a slightly less murderous but nevertheless violent level was the demonstration outside a Brantford plant recently when striking union supporters stoned police. Aside from damage caused to the plant and the stoning of police there were the usual threats against newsmen. Two photographers incurred the wrath of the mob, one giving up his camera to six pursuing demonstrators who then tore out the film.

Not far below the surface of our citizenry there are dark corners of emotion, as was the case recently in Sidney, Nova Scotia. Then the thin veneer of our civilized order was uncovered as police went on strike, leaving the community almost defenceless.

Or again, at a different level of behavior, the looting of cases of whiskey from a grounded vessel at Sarnia.

Yes, we can afford to put our own house in order.

Hand of Fate

Strange are the ways of fate. A 28-year-old Quinte-area motorist survived a collision with a freight train at the weekend, an encounter which cut his car in two and left him unconscious but not seriously hurt. On the other hand a Peterborough man was killed on 401; his car had run out of gas and he was walking toward Belleville when struck by a car. One wonders how this could happen, with a shoulder to walk on, but there it is. Tragedy and near-tragedy in the night, in incidents that occurred not far distant from each other.

Alberta Vote

One of the intangibles which may have militated against the defeated Social Credit government of Premier Strom in Alberta was the fact that its policies had moved far from the original concepts of Social Credit and were almost indistinguishable from conservatism. Now Alberta has a Conservative government in both name and policy, with political consequences for the province and Canada as a whole which will be awaited with interest.

Peer's Fight

The problem with the compulsion against pornography in Britain by the redoubtable Lord Longford, including his much-publicized visit to Denmark for a first-hand look at the scene there, is that the resulting publicity has been a shot in the arm for the very business he is trying to erase from the U.K. scene. So much for the wages of sin!

Quiet Descends on U.S. Economic Scene Following $ Moves

WASHINGTON (CP) — The quiet with which President Nixon's new economic program is being accepted on the American home front has proved surprising, given the drastic nature of his wage-price freeze and other measures in a peacetime economy.

Within two brief weeks, a ceasefire appears to have been reached with the aforiest opposition forces—notably George Meany and other leaders of organized labor—and the major thrust of public debate has switched quickly to next spring after Nov. 13 when the 90-day freeze ends.

The implications of the Nixon program for foreign countries appear to be receiving shorter shrift, however. Diplomats in Washington are understood to be concerned that their problems and positions may be getting less attention and understanding than they should.

Although newspaper and television reports here have carried quantities of news from abroad, they have tended to concentrate —understandably—on foreign reaction to the Nixon program as it affects the U.S.

Japan's retaliatory decision to allow the yen to float was widely greeted as a "victory" for President Nixon in his determination to seek a general revaluation of the world's currencies, with special stress on what it means for Americans.

Far less attention has been paid to the profound effects that Nixon program will have for the Japanese economy and its workers.

Other countries have fared similarly. Canada's two delegations to Washington, seeking exemption from a new duty on imports, have received some public notice and a high-level government reception—but nothing to compare with the attention devoted to the implications of more costly imports for U.S. consumers.

As some foreign observers here see it, the imbalance became almost inevitable as soon as the Nixon administration decided that both domestic and international economic problems must be attacked at the same time if the U.S. were to pull out of its current slump.

The partners' response has been nearly drowned out by the domestic debate about the Nixon program's effects at home.

One example was the publication by the European Economic Community at a meeting in Geneva called to discuss the new U.S. tax on imports.

European spokesman Ralf Dahrendorf rejected, point by point, the American thesis that the U.S. balance-of-payments difficulties or the over-valued dollar were the fault of other nations.

He similarly rejected almost all the U.S. remedies as they apply to foreign countries. The blame for American problems lies with the policies pursued by the United States itself, he said, not with its allies.

Dahrendorf's comments, like other rebuttals from abroad, tended to suffer in the competition for public attention from the demands of the domestic wage-price freeze, tax incentives and other features of the Nixon program closer to home.

Foreign observers here are understood to be concerned that the lack of public debate will result in their not receiving adequate attention from administration officials, sensitive most of all to the pressures of domestic politics.

The Panhandling Art

Hamilton Spectator

A surprisingly large number of young panhandlers are stopping citizens on city streets this summer and asking for a donation of "loose change." These encounters are common enough in Hamilton and are even more prevalent in Toronto.

Sometimes a little story will be told, something perhaps about a bus fare or hunger. And it will be very child-like: different indeed from those scrubby - chinned gentlemen who accost one with "Excuse me, sir, could I have a word with you . . . ?" There is something imperative about the demand, as though it were made from the standpoint of an unarguable right.

These types like to eat, to smoke and perhaps to drink, and they know these things cost money, which is a filthy, materialistic thing, most often obtained by working, which in turn can be exhausting. Hence, is it not better to ask in a trembling, child-like voice for a handout from some sentimental fool?

This, of course, is not the attitude of all young beggars. There is a much more subtle side to the alms - seeking of some of them. They, in effect, attack the Christian ethic which exhorts us to help our brethren and extols charity as a high virtue.

For consider this: If one can loll about all day, unwashed, doing only one thing and still be fed by charitable, industrious folk on the street, is it not a triumph and, at the same time, a cynical exposure of the sentimentalism behind alms giving? This explains the attitude of at least some of the but not all.

There are others even more rational. These are probably university students who have perhaps read some psychology. They have read a few books and are intrigued by the theories presented. Techniques can be practised on the streets — styles of approach, types of story, varying phraseology, and so on: the street becomes, as it were, a laboratory in which rational theories are tested. The test-tube specimens — or guinea pigs — are the ones who are approached for handouts; if they fall for it, they prove a psychological theory. Success can also be measured by the cash intake.

Then there are young folk out to find fun, or carry out such practical jokes as trying to sell big magazines with glossy covers and horribly ary pages inside for a high price (what a laugh!). Most adults are "suckers for kids", so stick a tin with a label on it (only visible word "Children") under their noses and mumble something about helping children and, hey presto!

What these young people are proving is that Barnum was right long ago when he said a sucker was born every minute.

Those who shell out help to perpetuate the truth.

Hussein Warns Arabs

Windsor Star

King Hussein of Jordan came up with some good common sense when he suggested that "the Arab countries are not yet strong enough to take on Israel" and hinted that he would be ready to negotiate a settlement with Israel. It is, of course, absolutely right, and sadly enough, probably also lately realizing as well if he thinks his suggestion will be heeded by other Arab governments.

Egypt's Sadat may be ready to sacrifice a million lives to attain a settlement, but that kind of bargaining is as insane as it is unrealistic. The Jewish people of Israel will fight to the last woman and child, and, as they have demonstrated on several occasions, they fight well. It would take something more than one million Egyptian lives to crush Israel.

Hussein's remarks point up once again the utter futility of seeking peace in the Middle East by insisting on such abstract things as "national honor" "nationalism" and other emotion-laden reasons. What is needed is a hard sense of realism, common sense, and a true desire for peace. Hussein's latest remarks show that he has those qualifications. It is to be hoped that the other participants in the perennial middle East crisis will show more of the same.

Letter in The Kingston Whig - Standard

A situation has developed that several of the American boat owners have been confronted with in the last couple of weeks. I will relate what happened to us only as an illustration of what we have been confronted with. I might also add that I have written a letter of complaint to the Superintendent of Customs.

I might also add that I have been spending my vacations in Canada for the past 40 years and have never seen anything like it.

On Friday, August 13, we checked in at Quebec Field or I believe, Port Metcalf, at the foot of Wolfe Island. A Customs officer, who is apparently a student on a summer job, questioned me at length as to what we had on board. After declaring everything we had, he said — well I guess we will check it. He then proceeded to literally tear apart the boat, our suitcases and every drawer and cabinet on board. Needless to say he found nothing that had not been declared and left us in a mess that took about two hours to re-arrange and straighten. Later we found the children's suitcase had been disarranged. That took another half hour to straighten.

Now we feel that it is perfectly OK to check over these things occasionally and in the past this has happened, but it has always been in a most courteous and careful manner.

We feel the utmost respect for Canadian Customs men and the relationships have been most cordial. However, this one arrogant self-centred man has certainly soured any inclination to return again to your country.

We had planned to make a trip up the Rideau the week after next, but with this unpleasant incident still rankling we have decided to cancel it completely.

Calley Verdict Reduced

Kingston Whig - Standard

Nearly five months ago, after a long and sensational trial, Lt. William Calley of the United States Army was sentenced to life at hard labor for engaging in mass murder in Vietnam. There was an immediate howl of protest from all over the country. In deference to this protest President Richard Nixon stepped in and ordered that Lt. Calley be released from his prison cell and placed under a form of house arrest. The President also announced that he would review and act on the case once it had been fully reviewed by the military.

Well, the first step in the long review process has now been taken. Lt. Calley's life sentence for the murder of 22 South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968 has been reduced to 20 years by Lt.-Gen. Albert O'Connor, commanding general of the Third Army. This means that Lt. Calley could be eligible for parole after serving nearly seven years of his sentence.

Maj. Herman Kassner, acting head of the public information office at Fort McPherson, has explained that "Based upon the testimony and evidence presented at the trial, it was determined that the conviction was correct in law and that the reduced sentence was appropriate for the offences for which he was convicted." All of which should confirm the impression shared by so many people throughout the world: that in these days it pays to be in the U.S.A. armed services if you should happen to be charged with murder — and convicted.

Whatever happens to Lt. Calley in the long run, his deeds will be remembered as one aspect of a military adventure which was wrong right from the beginning. It is the American nation as a whole which must answer for what Lt. Calley did in Vietnam — and what many other soldiers have done and are continuing to do every day that filthy war continues.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 1, 1951

The new Queen Elizabeth public school in course of construction during recent months will be open as scheduled for classes at the commencement of the autumn school term next week, announced L. A. Kells, business administrator for the Belleville Board of Education.

Increases of 25 cents per month for two - party residence telephone service in Belleville and of 50 cents for residence individual lines are proposed in Bell Telephone's application for revised rates according to G. W. Procter, the company's manager here.

Baffling Situation

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

The state of affairs in Northern Ireland looks almost incredible to an outsider. The conflict between two segments of the population, ostensibly based on religious differences, seems to have no relevance to modern conditions or problems.

Labor Day Marmora Fair Day

MARMORA (Special) — The 81st edition of Marmora Fall Fair, sponsored by the Marmora Agricultural Society, will be held on Monday (Labor Day) Sept. 6 at the Marmora Fairgrounds.

A glance through the prize list reveals there is something planned for everyone, no matter what their interest. Exhibits of livestock, poultry, farm produce, ladies' work, midway, rides, horse drawing matches and road races are only a few of the things to see at the Marmora Fair.

A program has been arranged for the granddstand with Keith Tompkins as MC that will include log sawing, plate spinning, step dancing, pail driving contests as well as prizes for the oldest lady and gentleman, the largest family and the youngest child on the grounds, and many other prizes.

Something new in the heavy horse section will be a class for single tandem heavy hitch.

In the past there has been a good showing of quality heavy draft and wagoner express classes, also mares and foals. The colt classes have always been well filled.

A horse drawing contest for light and heavy horses will begin at 2 p.m. and it is hoped to have a good entry for that.

There will be two classes of ponies judged with pony chariot races and pony driving matches an added attraction.

It is hoped there will be a larger entry in the various classes of cattle this year.

Prize money on vegetables, fruits, grains, seeds, canning, flowers, ladies' work, honey, baking have all been raised in the expectation that this will encourage a larger entry.

Classes for school children's work have been revised and prize money increased three also.

The Fry-Cadbury Company, makers of Fry's Cocoa, are offering a $5 prize for the best iced or frosted 8-inch or 9-inch double layer chocolate cake baked with Fry's Cocoa. Entries must be accompanied by the label from a can of Fry's Cocoa. A $5 prize is offered by Fair board for the best decorated child's birthday cake.

For the young people in the 4-H Club this is Achievement Day — the time when all the work raising their own calf will pay off in prizes awarded by the Fair Board, the Canada Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, as well as many other prizes offered by various Organizations.

Anyone who would like a Marmora Fall Fair Prize List may obtain one by contacting Tom Bateman, secretary-treasurer, Marmora Agricultural Society, or else bring their exhibits to the fair on Labor Day at 9 a.m. for judging at 10 a.m.

People can save 50 cents by buying a membership of $2 which will give entrance to the fair for two adults, plus their car, in addition to allowing up to 25 entries at the fair on their membership ticket.

Tickets are $1 for adults, high school students 50 cents, elementary school children free; vehicles of all kinds, 50 cents each.

Theology Course To Be Repeated

So the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board is conducting its second course this year, beginning Sept. 29 at Nicholson Catholic College.

The theme this year will be hope, in theology, scripture and the religious education program of the separate school, announced Basil Arbour, director of catechetics for the board.

The program will run for 10 weeks in the evenings from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Among the guest speakers will be: Rev. Daniel Donovan, professor of theology at St. Michael's College and St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto; Noel Cooper, scripture scholar with a licentiate in scripture from Rome; Rev. Richard Roach S.J. professor of moral theology at Regis College, Toronto; Rev. Kelly Walker OP, author, artist and resident of St. Dominic's Parish, Port Credit and Sister Norma McCoy, CND, MA, director of religious education for the Kingston Archdiocese.

Moira Cottagers Meet at Madoc

More than 50 Moira Lake cottagers, municipal officials and provincial government departmental representatives turned out Monday evening for a mass meeting of the Moira Cottagers for Clean Water association held in the Madoc Kiwanis hall.

Two representatives of the Ontario Water Resources Commission gave the results of tests for arsenic and mercury content in the lake water, while there was also dicussion on garbage collection and a progress report on the new Madoc village sewage lagoon scheduled to go into operation this fall.

The OWRC representatives were optimistic that water quality of the lake would see future improvement.

Also attending the meeting were Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings, County Warden Kenneth Smith and Hunting don Reeve Russell Sills.

Rev. Lloyd Shorten of Toronto, president of the cottagers' association, presided over the meeting. He and his entire slate of officers were re-elected for another term of office.

Mideast Arabs To Polls Today

CAIRO (AP) — Twelve million voters were expected at the polls today in Egypt, Libya and Syria to endorse the union of the three countries in a new Federation of Arab republics.

There were no signs that new federation would tip the present balance of power in the Middle East and enable the Arab states to carry out their threats of another showdown with Israel.

But the federation's basic principles and its constitution were virtually certain of an overwhelming affirmative vote in the referendum.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, President Hafez Assad of Syria and the Libyan leader, Col. Muammar Kadafi, have gone out of their way in recent speeches to stress that the new federation is "essential for victory" against Israel.

They portray the union as a giant Middle East state with a population of 43 million and an area of one million square miles. They claim it musters the necessary political pull and military power to recover the Arab territories lost in the 1967 war.

The two documents submitted to the voters in today's referendum did little to bear out the leaders' statements, which seemed designed mainly to whip up enthusiasm that would bring out the vote.

There is provision for a joint military command that eventually will take charge of training and military operations in the three countries. But other Arab nations have been joining Egypt in unified military commands for years with little or no unity of action resulting.

The union's fundamental principles give the federal state the power of decision over war or peace and pledge it never to negotiate peace with Israel, abandon one inch of occupied Arab land or give up the rights of the Palestinians.

Its constitution, however, preserves the sovereign right of each member country to negotiate and conclude separate treaties or agreements with foreign nations.

The new federation represents the third such attempt at Arab unity since the Second World War. The two previous unions—a one-year federation between Jordan and Iraq and a 44-month merger of Egypt and Syria under the late Gamal Abdel Nasser—were ended by army coups in 1958 and 1962.

In Egypt, the referendum is expected to be the last official function to be carried out under the country's title of United Arab Republic. The name, retained by Egypt since the breakdown of its merger with Syria, will be replaced by the title Arab Republic of Egypt.

A mammoth paper-making machine just installed at Port Hawkesbury N.S., is the biggest investment by the Stora Kopparberg of Sweden in any foreign country. Stora Kopparberg earlier had established a pulp mill at Port Hawkesbury in 1960. This paper-making machine at a Stora Kopparberg plant is a sister to the Nova Scotia machine. (CP Photo)

Ball Becomes Brawl

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse threatened Tuesday night to fire any of its locked-out employees involved in a brawl which caused $7,000 in damages to the Portage Golf Club in L'Assomption, Que.

About 40 men invaded the club where La Presse department heads were holding a banquet Monday night following their annual golf tournament. The ensuing brawl resulted in six men being injured and one hospitalized due to a head injury.

Police say about 25 of the invaders were recognized as locked-out La Presse employees.

La Presse spokesman Andre Bureau said Tuesday the newspaper was co-operating with the police to identify the men involved but that no arrests had been made yet.

Mr. Bureau also accused the unions of using "savage and violent tactics" in their current contract dispute with the newspaper.

He said the unions representing the locked-out employees have made threatening phone calls to La Presse employees still on the job and that their car tires had been slashed.

"They've also been picketing the La Presse building trying to stop the shipment of our newspapers," he said.

About 350 La Presse employees, including pressmen, typographers, photoengravers, stereotypers, and mailroom personnel, have been locked out since July 19 and the newspaper has been publishing only one edition instead of its usual three.

Meanwhile, the Quebec Federation of Labor, the Parti Quebecois and the Montreal Police Brotherhood have announced they will refuse to supply the newspaper with information as a show of support for the locked-out employees.

The QFL have been denying La Presse reporters admittance to their meetings and news conferences for the last 10 days.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

A suggested daily vacation budget for two people travelling by automobile has been up-dated by AAA, and it reflects today's spiraling inflation. The 1971 budget is up a full $6.50 over last year's, from $30.50 to $46. Both based on 300 miles of daily travel in a car which averages 14 miles per gallon of gasoline, the budgets break down as follows (with 1970's listed first in each category): Meals - snacks, $14, $16; lodging, $14, $17; gas-oil $8.50, $9; tips-miscellaneous, $3, $4.

• • •

The idea of banning all auto traffic from selected mid-town streets during certain hours of the day seems to be taking hold. New York City closed 15 blocks of Fifth Avenue to all auto traffic for seven hours a few months ago and air pollution dropped drastically. The public liked it very much. Tokyo has since tried it with good results and now other major cities are testing.

The time may well come when the central core of major cities will be off limits for all of today's internal combustion engines.

• • •

Let your wife do the driving. According to Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, women average 30,000 miles on tires while men average only 20,000, with some men getting as little as 12,000 miles. Of course, the area of the country, road conditions and driving speeds influence tire wear. Most wives don't travel 70 mph to the grocery store, so maybe this explains Goodyear's findings.

• • •

No more checking to see if your battery needs water. GM now has a completely sealed unit that needs no checking at any time. Terminals are on the side with the top perfectly smooth. Look for it on the '71 Pontiac "Grand Prix SJ" and the Oldsmobile "Toronado."

• • •

"Young men or women under 25 can no longer buy automobile insurance on a car of 300 or more horsepower." So say many insurance firms who find youth and excessive horsepower an often fatal combination. They are saying, in effect, that the risk is not worth covering.

Car salesmen should keep this in mind. Steer the young sters to the more modestly powered jobs and tell them why when they complain — as they most surely will.

A Japanese bus company claims it has sharply reduced accidents by plotting the nature rhythm cycles of its drivers. These are a physical cycle of 23 days, an emotional cycle of 28 days and an Intellectual cycle of 33 days. A computer plots the up and down curves for each potential driver in five minutes once the date of his birth is known.

Does it work? Since the beginning of the program 32 buses have travelled 1,560 miles without a single accident. The probability of such a result by pure chance is a small fraction of one percent. Perhaps when our insurance firms investigate they will be telling us on what days we should not drive.

• • •

A long line of ships, more than 60, working around the clock, bring Volkswagons to 1,150 dealers in the U.S. They deliver to 14 port cities where VW's insurance service supervises unloading to hold damage losses as low as possible. VW shipping damage is now lower than for any other imported car — dropping 13 per cent since 1965. All it takes, according to VW people, is "improvement in supervision, detailed instructions, performance checks and better communications between supervisor and worker." That sounds like a good formula for any efficient industrial operation.

If you have had your fill of pock-marked panels (a car disease usually contacted in parking lots) you can now do something about it. You can buy adhesive vinyl trim to complement or match the color of your car.

Easy to apply — make sure the surface is clean and dry, remove the protective paper backing and make sure the trim strip is aligned correctly when applied. Cost for both sides of a car, full length, is about 20. Not bad when you consider the touchup job it will eliminate.

MRS. A. SOMERVILLE, Stanford Drive, Perth, Ontario, COMES MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS AND SHE CAME OUT AHEAD.

Mrs. Somerville, who shops for a family of five has just started coming to Loblaws. Comparing Loblaws to other food stores she has shopped, Mrs. Somerville says "I find Loblaws are a lot better in quite a few areas. I haven't been coming here long enough to estimate what I'd save here every week but the prices are definitely down on quite a few items. I used to shop Loblaws in Niagara Falls and I liked the store there. From what I've seen so far I like Loblaws in Smiths Falls too—so I'd say the prices here are very good."

"It seemed a good idea at the time, but what are we going to do when we get out?"

Lougheed to Start Picking His Cabinet Today

EDMONTON (CP) — Peter Lougheed is expected to come out of seclusion today and face the task of picking a cabinet to take over from 36 years of Social Credit rule in Alberta.

The Progressive Conservative leader, who led his party to an upset victory in the Alberta election Monday, cancelled his plans for a post-election vacation.

Premier Harry Strom, who won personal re-election although his party dropped to 25 seats in the legislature from the 54 in the last session, said he is prepared "to transfer power as soon as possible—likely by the end of the week."

Mr. Strom also said he expects Mr. Lougheed to call a fall session of the legislature "because there are so many things that have to be done."

The most difficult task for Mr. Lougheed is expected to be selection of the first Progressive Conservative cabinet ever to rule in Alberta.

The 43-year-old Calgary lawyer is expected to pick his cabinet from among nine members who sat with him in the last legislature and 39 others who have no experience in Parliament.

Mr. Lougheed said he was not sure the Conservatives were going to win so he had not thought about a cabinet.

Mr. Strom, dejected, said there is a "distinct possibility" he will step down as Social Credit leader. He will, however, serve his five-year term as MLA for Cypress.

Official election results will be declared Sept. 9.

The unofficial results give the Conservatives 69 of 75 seats and Social Credit 25. Grant Notley, leader of the New Democratic Party, gained a one-seat toehold in the 17th Alberta legislature with a narrow victory in Spirit River-Fairview over A. O. Fiorito, Social Credit minister without portfolio.

Standing when the last legislature was dissolved was Social Credit 54, Conservatives 10 and one vacancy. Redistribution increased the number of seats to 75.

Eight Social Credit ministers were defeated, only 17 of 37 Social Credit members were re-elected and only eight of 28 new Social Credit candidates won.

All 10 Conservative members of the last legislature won re-election along with the 20 newcomers. The party won in all 16 Edmonton seats and in nine of 13 seats in Calgary.

Conservative members of the last legislature are expected to be prominent among the new cabinet selections.

Among the successful candidates was Dr. Hugh Horner, re-elected in Barrhead, who was the Conservative's house leader and chief spokesman on health and agriculture.

Another was lawyer Lou Hyndman, re-elected in Edmonton Glenora who has been party whip and spokesman for justice. He could become attorney-general.

Don Getty, re-elected in Edmonton Whitemud, is expected to be in line for the mines and minerals post, which the Conservatives want to expand into a department of energy.

Cold War Extends to Chess World

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chess federations of the United States and the Soviet Union have run into a stalemate in negotiations to pick a site for the finals of the World Chess Championship challengers' series.

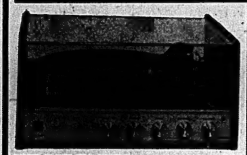
The two federations have been meeting for the last week and had set a Tuesday morning deadline for settling the issue.

But by Tuesday night the two groups had not only failed to reach agreement, but were involved in a dispute over just who has the right to settle the issue.

The final challengers' match is to be held in late September between grandmasters Bobby Fischer of New York and Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union.

The U.S. federation wants the match held in Buenos Aires, Argentina, while the Russians are pressing for Athens, Greece.

Ed Edmondson, vice-president of the U.S. federation said originally it had been planned to ask World Chess Federation president Dr. Max Euwe of Holland to flip a coin to decide the site if no agreement had been reached by Tuesday.



But the Russians apparently were reluctant to accept this method as the deadline for the negotiations approached.

Now some delegates to the world federation's congress being held in conjunction with the Canadian open championship, have entered the fray and Edmondson said the world organization will probably have to vote on who has the right to settle the dispute. He expected this question to be settled within two days.

Back To School Styles Follow Adult Trends

By SUSAN KORAH
Staff Reporter

What do pert, freckle-faced little girls and boys, off to school for the first time this fall, have in common with worldly young college men and women? Probably some of the fashions they will be wearing to school.

Most adult styles have their junior counterparts.

Hot pants that were a hot favorite with young adults in summer and show signs of continuing right into fall, are definitely 'in' for little sister too.

The peasant look with its laced-up bodices, ruffles, full gathered sleeves and embroidery shows every sign of continuing right through the fall in adult fashions and who said kids' styles are going to be outdone either?

Adult designers predict a return to the classics this fall, with the accent on good old plaid skirts, blazers and that trim, tailored look. What could be more appropriate for kids to achieve class and distinction in, than these styles?

Boys can keep pace in vest suits that are extremely popular this fall, and in bright, sheright colors that can vie with the glorious fall landscape. Mauves and purples are especially big this year as are aztec designs.

Corduroy panis will be a favorite with boys and their mothers.

The girls' fashions on this page are modelled by Cathy Rion. The peasant style dress is by Maggie Muggins, the plaid dress with the three-piece effect is also by Maggie Muggins and the knicker suit is by Scouter.

The boys' vest suit by Tailored Togs was worn with a mauve shirt by Gay Togs. The wide wale corduroy panis are by Gay Togs and the turtle neck top by Tam O' Shanter. Both outfits are modelled by Michael Schmidt. The striped suit with the long-sleeved jacket is by Gay Togs and is modelled by John Murphey.

Early Years Are Best for Developing Creativity

By DORIS CLARK

Says a family life consultant, Kay Crowe:

"If I had a child I would teach him to love, to give and to care. I'd want him to be creative — to touch, feel, smell. There are so many dull adults today and with technology providing more leisure time we'd better learn to appreciate our world.

"I'd want to give my child a terrific sense of achievement and therefore I'd want to change everything about education.

"The very best teachers should be in the first grades, so by the time a student reaches high school his teachers would be simply resource people."

Mrs. Crowe stresses the significance of the early years of life as the opportune time for developing the inner strength, flexibility, and creativity, essential in our changing society. — CAS News, Vancouver

Dear Doris: I have a phobia about going any place. My husband has to do the shopping and everything else. So now all I do is sit and drink. I have been in psychiatric hospital to get help but I can't seem to get over it.

It seem to be in a panic all the time. I was wondering if you would have other people who have been the same way, who would write to say how they have overcome this phobia or what they do with themselves.

Maybe then it would give me some encouragement to stop drinking and start writing letters to other people. We had three deaths in a year's months and I don't think that helped much. — In a Web

Dear In A Web: If you indulge your phobia it just gets worse. You need daily routines which take you out of the house, even if only to go to one store, or walk around the block.

Drinking was at first your escape from life; now you are its prisoner!

There is a branch of Recovery Incorporated where you live, and a good thing, too. Here you will have the help of other nervous, upset folk who are giving one another the backbone to cope with what's troubling them.

You might even be able to help someone else by understanding their plight.

If other readers write in to express concern for you, I'll be glad to pass along their messages.

Dear Doris: I have this spelling problem. I have only finished my grade seven.

I would like to know how I could spell like other people. I have been out of school for some time and I work, but my spelling is giving me problems.

I am also enclosing 10 cents for your leaflet on How to Get Started in Writing. — Poor Speller

Dear Speller: You can teach yourself if you care enough. Buy yourself a good Canadian dictionary and refer to it every single time you are uncertain about a word.

I know a successful writer who increased her vocabulary enormously by tackling one unfamiliar word a day. She wrote it big on a sheet of paper and pinned it up in front of where she was working. She memorized both spelling and meaning, then made a point of using that word in conversation until it belonged to her.

There are courses in spelling for people like you, even correspondence ones. Write to your provincial department of education for details.

Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.

Try A Barbecue Supper on Labor Day

By MARY MOORE

As the adults sat around the dying embers of our barbecue fire we decided that the best fun was watching the children toast marshmallows and gingerly test them before swallowing them whole.

As I write, the market reporters are telling us that the steak cuts of beef are so popular right now that there is a surplus of the tougher cuts of beef. For instance blade roasts were advertised at 89 cents per pound in one supermarket.

However since ours was a late-in-the-season barbecue we went haywire and bought one steak weighing 3½ lbs. to serve five adults and four children. It was ample. Try it for a Labor Day barbecue.

ONE 3½-LB. BARBECUED STEAK (SERVES 7 to 9)

This large steak can be barbecued in two or three different ways. We have a stone barbecue that Peter built and use wood and briquettes as our fuel. I used an outside restaurant frying pan with long handle and in it rendered out a few scraps of the steak fat. When all was hot Gary added the steak to the pan and we timed it. It required 45 min. to be cooked pink to centre — having been turned about 4 times during this barbecuing period. As far as salt and pepper are concerned use your own judgment. They are supposed to be added last but our kids were so busy watching that steak and roasting corn in the husk under it that they wanted to salt and pepper the steak while it cooked so far fun I let them.

Doris sliced it crosswise in long strips so that everyone had a share of the undercut.

If you have a portable barbecue and use only briquettes use the same timing. The barbecue the steaks directly on the greased grill bars. This way you achieve a better smoke flavor in your steak.

If you prefer one steak per person buy individual - sized Porterhouse and reduce barbecuing time to suit your guests' tastes — rare, medium or well done.

Two bits of advice: When you are eating out - of - doors food cools off quickly so use kitchen dinner plates and preheat them. Do not spoil the excellence of the meal by using what my sister Peady calls flamed plates — cardboard. You might get a mouthful!

Leather Plays A Major Role In This Year's Fall Fashions

NEW YORK (CP) — "The touch of leather is on everything," said fashion authority Eleanor Lambert at the American Designer Showings. "The greatest influence on fall fashions is American sportswear."

This includes leather hot pants, jerkins, vests, tunics, crop jackets. Bill Blass likes vests in chamois over button-down shirts or turtleneck sweaters. Junior Sophisticates introduces a chamois group that includes an elongated jacket and warm—Jamaica-length—pants, worn with a polka-dotted silk shirt.

Trisha Boutique teams suede hot pants and an open-sided tunic with a sweater. Francesca for Damon uses a pigskin front on a knit jacket. Pat Sandler adds a mock suede jerkin to the front of a one-piece dress. Another designer includes a rust suede overjump as an accessory for a print dress, complete with a suede shell.

"Softer than ever and with a color palette from bright to pastels, suede is still a big fashion hero," says Beth Hammond, director of the Leather Bureau of Canada.

"Colors range from browns and taupes through rust-reds to wines and purples. Blues and greens will also be popular.".

Many of the leather vests or short tunics are worn over fall's popular turtle-neck sweaters. Victor James of Toronto has included two looks in suede toppers. He intends them to be worn over baby or skinny sweaters.

One is a farmer's overall-style or bib-vest in mocha brown with stitching all around. The other is an avocado green vest, the front eyelets laced in suede, too.

Pig-finished suede is important for fall and is even appearing in coats. Crown Leather of Montreal is showing it in a teak shade with a V-yoke, epaulettes and flap pockets.

Imperial Leather of Winnipeg also likes sueded pig. One coat is in a blue zig-zag effect with red stitching. A short coat is in four different colors, in panels.

One of fall's newest fashions is a furred look. Crown Leather plays up a big blue fox collar and front that curves on the hemline of a purple suede coat. Irving Poskus of Toronto likes a natural raccoon hood and hemband on an apricot suede coat.

Cowhide, too, is being used in new ways. Designer Anne Klein calls the cow suede she is using "cow plinch". It is deeply brushed for an almost velvet look.

Anne Klein also likes the combination of black leather pants with a skinny turtleneck sweater, topped by one of the new "chubbies", a sleeveless short jacket in early fur.

Calvin Klein has included a group of suedes in his fall collection, too. A suede blazer combines with a red sweater and green warm pants.

Incidentally leather belts this fall are not as wide nor as cinched-in as in the spring collections. They are often ornamented by a large silver or gold buckle.

Pupils' Appearance Different at School

DEAR ANN LANDERS: School will be starting any day now and I hope you will print this letter for parents who THINK they know what their teenagers look like in school based on what they look like when they leave the house. I can tell you, Ann, it ain't necessarily so — for the following reasons:

ANN LANDERS

(1) Each pupil has a locker in school in which he can store extra clothing — the kind he or she WANTS to wear.

(2) Three turns of our daughter's skirt at the waist and she has a micro-mini.

(3) Our son, we discovered, spends his hair one way at home and another way when he gets to school.

(4) Girls carry makeup in their handbags and apply heavy eyelines, blue and green eyeshadow, false eyelashes, and everything else they want to put on the minds they get out of the house.

For the above reasons my wife and I feel the school should have the authority to decide what is permissible and what is not. This decision should not be left up to the parents because too often the parents do not know what their teen-agers are up to. — COLUMBUS.

DEAR COLUMBUS: Schools should decide what is permissable attire and what is not. What kids wear, however, is one of the minor problems that today's parents must cope with.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A good friend left here a few minutes ago, in tears, because I refused to tell her what to do about her husband. She is having "other woman" trouble.

To be perfectly frank, Ann, my husband and hers do business together and I don't want to become involved in their marital problems. She kept saying over and over, "If you were a real friend, you'd tell me what to do."

Although I am seven years older than she is, I don't feel qualified to advise her. I'd hate to be responsible for what happened to her marriage if my advice didn't work.

I feel guilty. She looked so beat and pathetic when she left. Now I need YOUR advice. Did I fail her? — DEPRESSED SUSAN.

DEAR SUSAN: No, you did not. Friendship does not carry the obligation of assisting social acquaintances with their marital problems. Instead of refusing flat out, however, you might have suggested that she seek the professional advice of a clergy man or a marriage counselor.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I do believe you are getting senile. When decent people write for advice you give them smart-mouth answers, but you seem to have plenty of soft words for an unwed mother who had the gall to stay on her job at the newspaper until her co-workers feared she'd deliver in the city room. Your support and sympathy of this tramp has placed you on the side of immorality. God-fearing readers will not soon forgive you. I implore you to reconsider. — MANHATTAN, KANSAS.

DEAR KAN: Sorry, my comments stand as stated. The woman who decided to keep her out-of-wedlock child needed to stay on the job because she had no money and no family to help her. The co-worker who wrote to complain resented the fact that the men on the newspaper were kind to her. I said they sounded like beautiful guys, and I meant it.

Born at Sea

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)— Mrs. Millard Williams, Ocracoke, N.C., gave birth to an eight - pound daughter aboard a Coast Guard patrol boat which ran aground as it was carrying her to a doctor on Hatteras Island. A Coast Guard helicopter from Elizabeth City, N.C., flew Dr. Dan Burroughs from Hatteras to the grounded boat in time to deliver the baby. 5th District Coast Guard headquarters reported.

ENID BAGNOLD'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY by Enid Bagnold

Enid Bagnold was born in Jamaica. She wrote such wonderful books as Serena Blandish, National Velvet, The Loved and The Envied and many other books. Her most famous play was The Chalk Garden. She worked in London during the early years under Walter Sickert. An ardent admirer and friend of Frank Harris, she was ostracized for a year by her friends.

Being married to a well-known preacher hasn't always been a bed of roses. One must learn to survive lover's quarrels and absorb the various shocks of life. Essential to Mrs. Peale's philosophy is a belief in total commitment to the relationship and at crucial times, a faith in divine guidance. This is a wise, rather moving account of an eminently successful marriage, and Mrs. Peale offers some sound advice on how to reap the greatest dividends from marriage.

A RAP ON RACE by Margaret Mead and James Baldwin

In a rap on race these two distinguished Americans engage in a dialogue and speak to each other with a candor that is rare. With anguish and intimacy, reason and passion, they have confronted the issues of our time. Together they have also revealed each other's deep humanity and total commitment.

COOK IT QUICK by Arthur Hawkins

All the recipes in Mr. Hawkins' book can be prepared in half an hour. They are elegant . . . yet quick and easy. In addition, he gives hints for organizing an orderly and efficient kitchen to work in. Included are such items as tools and utensils, a checklist for staples, herbs and spices and canned and frozen time-savers.

HOLLAND by Miss Boobuys (Text in English, Dutch and German)

Holland in the 1970's is a country of change. This superbly illustrated book captures the quality of life during an exciting decade. All Dutch people, exiled from Holland, must carry the memory of their great, green homeland. Wherever he goes, the vision of a country of broad rivers, poplars, scattered farms, towers, churches, and the ever-constant sound of water never leaves the Dutchman.

KEEPING UP WITH KEEPING HOUSE by Misty Kahman

Mary aKitman became the White House housekeeper in 1965. There are chapters on food, entertaining, how to shop, house cleaning, and many others. The author draws on her unusual experience to tell all she knows about housekeeping.

ANTIQUE TOYS by Gwen White

Many of the toys which belong to past ages have never been played with by children, but have spent their time in cabinets in the drawing-room. Little toy animals of ancient times show where that animal might have been found, and miniature carts show the evolution of the wheel. Balls and marbles come from the Stone Age. This is a marvellous book for the collector, invaluable for identification and dating, and is also enchanting to look at.

3½-day Week Works

MONTREAL (CP) — Normand DeChevigny's neighbors thought he had lost his job when they saw him staying home several days each week.

In fact, the 25-year-old operator at Canadian Liquid Air Ltd. is one of eight workers at the nearby Varennes plant who has as much time off as he spends working.

Under a new work schedule introduced on a trial basis last June, the eight men work in 12-hour shifts for two days, then take two days off, work another two days followed by a two-day holiday, and then work three days which end with three more days off. In a 14-day period, the men work seven days.

Michel Cote, industrial relations head of Canadian Liquid Air, said employees suggested the short work week during an annual review of wages and working conditions at the plant, which is not unionized.

The company agreed to study the idea and left the employees to work out an acceptable schedule.

"Over-all there is no change in the number of hours they work from the old system, and they are receiving the same pay," Mr. Cote said.

"And it's not costing the company any more either.

"This was a basic point when we decided to study the idea—nobody was to lose."

The process involves breaking down air in a freezing gaseous oxygen and nitrogen by breaking down air in a freezing process. The process requires that the plant operate 24 hours a day and the new schedule helped to adapt to the requirement.

Under the old schedule, the employees had five eight-hour shifts a week, and had only every fourth weekend free.

"Under the old system, they might have between three to five years without a Christmas or New Year's holiday," Mr. Cote said. "Of course they would get double time and a half, but it's still not the same."

Now the employees have every second weekend free and have either Christmas or New Year's off every year.

Mr. DeChevigny says the new system suits him "perfectly," and the biggest advantage comes in terms of better family life.

Aime Mallet, 58, also likes the new schedule. He has a camper trailer and can now go camping on weekends a month—not including his weekdays off.

"My kids and wife like that very much."

Mr. Mallet, a 15-year employee, said the new schedule also saves him travelling costs.

"I save 300 miles a month on travelling. Before, I had to come in from Montreal 10 times every two weeks. Now it's only seven times. This cuts expenses and in one year I can save 4,800 miles."

Georges Filteau, 40, likes the additional time off, though when school starts "It will mean spending the day with my wife."

"At least the windows are going to be cleaned now."

Plant superintendent Jacques Richard said the company has had requests for the schedule from all over, especially from those doing the same type of work as we do here."

Mr. Cote said Canadian Liquid Air is sufficiently happy with the plan to be trying it out at two other plants in Montreal East.

Quebec To Enter Dispute

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Paul Boucher, chairman of the Quebec Water Board, said Tuesday the board will intervene in a dispute over a water filtration plant in the Ottawa valley.

The dispute is between the Outaouais Regional Community and the towns of Masson and Buckingham, across the Ottawa River from Ottawa.

Mr. Boucher met with representatives of the three municipal bodies Tuesday although he said he did not discuss the filtration plant with the representatives of the ORC.

"We have asked the parties involved to send us copies of all correspondence on the filtration plant," Mr. Boucher said.

"If this indicates a dead end has been reached, we will impose a solution. After all, we are interested in the final result — a filtration plant."

Police Face Social Change

CALGARY (CP) — Law enforcement must adapt to today's society to meet basic social and economic challenges, Mr. Justice Patrick Hartt of the Supreme court of Ontario said Tuesday.

Its ability to change will play a large role in social issues which could be settled in the courts "or violently in the streets," he told the annual convention of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

To meet these problems, he suggested, the criminal justice system must change with the times.

"The system with its fictions, its anachronisms, its cumbersome procedures and its too-often casual disregard for human dignity and worth is quickly becoming the focal point of confrontation."

The need to re-examine Canada's criminal law is the basis behind the establishment of the law reform commission of Canada, he said. The commission was set up April 1, with Judge Hartt as chairman.

He told about 150 delegates the commission fills a gap between the courts, which are by nature conservative and not conducive to change, and Parliament, which has neither the time nor the desire to become involved in basic law reform.

Police face a dilemma because they enforce laws that have little or no public support, he said.

"I suggest the role of the police in the new developing social structure must be clearly defined. There can be no justification for the using of police as scapegoats in an attempt to highlight our over-all social ills and shortcomings."

The association's president, Chief Finlay G. Carroll of London, Ont., said he supported the idea of Canadians carrying identification cards to assist police in the performance of their duties.

"I don't believe it would be asking too much to require every person to carry and be required to produce such a document on demand by a police officer."

The association does not oppose provisions of the bail reform act which would release on bail first offenders charged with lesser crimes after they have been identified, he said.

Persons arrested on new charge while free on bail awaiting trial for an indictable offence should be denied further bail. It creates a very serious problem when we must try to apprehend the same persons for further crimes who are already on bail awaiting trial."

The convention recesses today and resumes Thursday.

Eviction Big Issue On Reserve

BRANTFORD (CP) — The deadline for an Indian woman to leave her house on the Six Nations Reserve passed Tuesday, and court action may be necessary to evict her.

The band council ordered Yvonne Bedard and her two children, to leave the reserve by the end of August. She said Tuesday she has no plans to move.

Mrs. Bedard was born and raised an Indian, a member of the Six Nations band, but she married a white man.

When an Indian woman weds a non-Indian, she loses her legal status, including the right to live on a reserve unless the band council gives her permission to stay.

Mrs. Bedard and her husband seperated 1½ years ago. She applied for welfare in Hamilton, where the family was living, but was turned down because she owned a house and property on the reserve.

She was granted a six-month permit in July, to live on the reserve, later extended to a year.

When she applied for another extension, council decided she must leave by the end of August.

The law which takes rights away from Indian women who merry non-Indians does not apply to Indian men. When an Indian man marries a non-Indian, his wife becomes an Indian and all their children are Indian.

Dutch Facing Serious Threat From Mercury

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — Holland is facing a serious sea-pollution problem involving mercury, says the latest report of the Dutch Applied Physics Research Institute (TNO).

The chairman of a special committee of the TNO which has made a study of the problem, Prof. H. van Genderen, says the situation is grave.

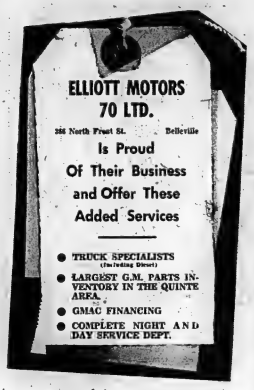
And while public health is not yet threatened, fish-eating animals are already beginning to feel the effects.

Recently 17 dead seals were found off the coast and when examined were discovered to contain large quantities of mercury. In the case of seven it was assumed mercury was the direct cause of death.

The River Rhine carries 70 tons of mercury into Holland every year, mainly from industrial waste and domestic refuse.

The highest mercury content is found in fish from inland waters. In the case of ocean fish, the mercury content is less, with the exception of tuna.

Research has shown that mackerel caught in the Atlantic sometimes contain five times as much mercury as mackerel caught elsewhere.



Van Genderen says that the number of terns, a sea bird, has declined sharply in recent years and an increasing amount of mercury has been found in them.

A study now is being made into the possible influence that mercury has on the reproductive organs of these birds.

Van Genderen, who is professor of veterinary pharmacology and toxicology at the University of Utrecht, said normal consumption of fish by Dutch people could do no harm.

Van Genderen's committee says that an individual would have to eat 4½ pounds of fish a day to feel the effects of mercury pollution.

facts you should know about Fresh fruit and vegetables

For Nutrition
Fresh fruit and vegetables represent about 20% by weight of all food consumed in Canada today. From fruit and vegetables we get 92% of our Vitamin C; 44% of our Vitamin A; 30% of iron; 19% of carbohydrates; 10% of protein and appreciable amounts of several other nutrients.
Vitamin C is essential for the structure of gums and teeth and prevents scurvy. The body uses up the vitamin rapidly so you need new supplies every day. Good sources are: citrus fruit, vitaminized apple juice, tomatoes, potatoes cooked in their jackets and raw turnips. In season you can also enjoy such fruit and vegetables as cantaloup, strawberries, black currants, broccoli, peppers, Brussel sprouts, spinach, raw cabbage and cauliflower.
Vitamin A — "Carotene", found in many fruit and vegetables, is converted by your body to Vitamin A, a vitamin important in many aspects of health such as growth, night vision and protection against infection. Best sources are: carrots, squash, sweet potatoes, peppers, tomatoes, cantaloup, apricots, peaches, pumpkin, broccoli, spinach, beet greens, parsley, chard, green peas and beans.
Iron — Iron is essential for the formation of good red blood. Leafy green vegetables are good sources of this important mineral while fruit and their juices supply small amounts.

For Bulk
Fruit and vegetables contain cellulose, a substance which helps in the normal functioning of the digestive organs. This roughage also has a beneficial effect in teeth and gums especially when eaten fresh.

His Heart Stopped Beating, Experienced Life After Death

TORONTO (CP) — Leslie Sharpe is still mystified by death, but his recollection of sensations beyond the curtain of life have helped ease the fears of many facing the prospect of dying.

His heart stopped beating for three minutes and 11 seconds after a cardiac arrest in May, 1970.

During that time, he reported later in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, he was able to observe himself "face to face" and float through a vaporous space of strange colors.

After his heart attack in a hospital bed, he said his head flopped over and "almost immediately I saw myself above my body, coming out through my head and shoulders."

"The body was somewhat transparent, although not exactly in vapor form. Weird-ing, I thought, 'so this is what happens when you die'."

More than a year after hospital emergency teams revived Mr. Sharpe, 68, and ended his eerie excursion, the local printing firm president says the publication of his medical journal article has "caused a lot of things to happen."

For one thing, the widespread response to his article has made him introspective and thoughtful about religion and man's destiny on earth, although "I'm still unpolished and still searching."

He says the description of his experience also has helped many people face the prospect of death without terror or panic.

Dr. Barrie de Veber, a London, Ont., pediatrician who became interested in Mr. Sharpe's case, says the Toronto man's story "helps people believe it's a life after death."

"Believing makes both living and dying easier," he says.

But Toronto woman asked Mr. Sharpe to visit her husband, dying of cancer, and re-assure him about the experience of death.

Dr. de Veber says he welcomes any evidence that can indicate to patients with fatal illnesses that death is nothing more than the prelude to a joyous, eternal life with one's loved ones.

Albertans Ask, What Happened?

EDMONTON (CP) — What happened?

Many Albertans are asking that question in the dawn of the new political era they created by ending a 36-year courtship with Social Credit and embracing the Progressive Conservatives led by Peter Lougheed.

The political wheel of fortune boosted the Conservatives' legislature representation to 49 members from 16 while sending Social Credit strength spinning to 25 from 55.

There appear to be many reasons for the overwhelming upset by the Progressive Conservatives in Monday's general election. Chief among them, many observers agree, was the desire for change.

The Conservatives hit hard with the theme "It's time for a change." Billboards and placards signalled "Now" in large capital letters.

After nine provincial general elections in which they voted Social Credit into power, a majority of Albertans heeded the message.

Party leaders offered various reasons:

Premier Harry Strom, the 57-year-old farmer and rancher who led his party for the first time into a general election after succeeding E. C. Manning in late 1968, said he felt the result was due to the trend for change across Canada. This was the sixth government to fall in the last eight provincial elections.

Mr. Lougheed, a 43-year-old Calgary lawyer who became party leader in 1965 when the PCs held no seats in the legislature, attributed much of the Conservatives' success Monday to "door-to-door and farmyard-to-farmyard" campaigning. Some voters complained their Social Credit candidate never came to their door.

Liberal Leader Bob Russell, defeated in St. Albert, called it "a party vote," basically a "two-way party fight" between the Conservatives and Social Credit. He ran a distant third behind candidates for those two parties after finishing a respectably-close second in 1967 to Social Credit.

Grant Notley, 32, leader of the New Democratic Party, whose win in the northern riding of Spirit River-Fairview was only his party's second in 10 years, credited "personal attacks" by former premier E. C. Manning for his own victory.

Much conjecture surrounds the impact on the voters made by the absence of Senator Manning at the Social Credit helm after 25 years in the premiership and seven general election triumphs.

Many Albertans instinctively voted for his braid of small-c conservative, free-enterprise government leadership of an oil-blessed provincial economy.

Some political writers referred to this as the "Manning mystique."

"What I think Alberta has gone for is a new voice, a new face, a new style," Senator Manning said after the election. "But the province's politics are still basically the same."

He said that in the absence of great issues between the Conservative and Social Credit parties the "psychological need for change came in."

Premier Strom, less at ease on the platform or television than his predecessor or his chief opponent, Mr. Lougheed, did not fare as well in the "Leader Image" stakes at the 1971 election.

He was portrayed as the quiet, experienced kind of leader while Mr. Lougheed was boosted as leader of a young, vigorous "Lougheed team." The Conservative leader's name was given virtually equal prominence everywhere with that of his candidates.

Bill Johnson of Edmonton, president of the Alberta Social Credit League, said after the election "we lost the communized vote." Much of this must have swung to Senator Manning in the past in his lopsided electoral victories.

Social Credit insiders felt some campaign issues were engineered to embarrass the government at election time.

Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart gave voice to these suspicions when he suggested there was "political involvement" in the walkout of guards from the five provincial jails just before the election.

Mr. Gerhart stated bluntly during a flurry of injunction actions that the guards could be fired and evicted from government-owned houses for striking illegally.

He was soundly beaten by a Conservative in his Edmonton constituency Monday.

In the days immediately before the election, the Civil Service Association of Alberta, which backed the guards, placed big newspaper ads charging the government practised discrimination against its own employees with restrictive bargaining legislation.

Bar Association Seeks Solutions

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Canada's top lawyers assessed problems and solutions Tuesday in an attempt to improve the nation's legal system.

Members of the Canadian Bar Association continued their second day of section meetings—as many as a dozen at a time on various legal problems in their five-day convention.

The discussion ranged from how to deal with the battered child syndrome to over-production of law graduates. Most sessions produced more questions than answers.

In a session on children and the law, delegates were told lawyers must make greater efforts to protect the interests of juveniles before the courts.

J. D. MacDougal of the University of British Columbia law school said there "must be protection-of-child laws so that the state deals with children in the child's best interests."

Too often, courts and associated agencies do not make the best decision for the child, he said.

The criminal justice committee passed a resolution calling for the right to appeal convictions for contempt of court, supporting a similar resolution passed Monday by the association's civil liberties section.

All resolutions go to full sessions of the Bar association Thursday and Friday.

In a discussion of federal taxation laws, former Ontario premier John Robarts said current federal tax proposals do not fully consider the effects on individuals.

Greater consideration might be given the taxpayers, who also face taxes by provincial and municipal governments, he said.

In a discussion on education of lawyers, members were told too many graduates are emerging from law schools across the country. But they also were told there should be no reduction in the number of graduates.

B. J. McKinnon of Toronto, who was chairman of the discussion, said as many as three out of four applicants to law schools were rejected in some parts of Canada because there were no facilities to handle more.

But there still should be some competition in the profession and the weaker graduates may have to "go to the wall," he said.

Employers "have not been conditioned to accept people with a law degree," except for law-oriented work. In other countries, business regards legal training as useful in many fields and Canada needed a change in thinking.

Dispute Unresolved

School Battle Dates Back to 1841

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's raging battle over governmental support of a separate Roman Catholic school system is older than Canadian Confederation itself.

The dispute traces its origins back to unification of Upper and Lower Canada in 1841 and the British North America Act of 1867 and has been an integral part of federal-provincial constitutional differences ever since.

Premier William Davis's decision Tuesday rejecting Catholic pleas for more direct tax aid in support of the separate school system sets the stage for what one Progressive Conservative spokesman predicted only a few months ago would be an "election bloodbath."

The dispute is unresolved. But it does provide the Liberal and New Democratic parties—both of which favor extension of aid—with plenty of ammunition for an anticipated October provincial election.

There are two million Roman Catholics in the province and next Tuesday they will send 472,000 of their children back to classrooms in 1,400 separate schools across the province.

Premier Davis's government now extends tax aid only through Grade 10 for separate schools. The Catholic forces, marshalled by the English Catholic Education Association of Ontario, wants aid through Grade 13—parity with the public school system.

In March of this year, on the heels of Premier Davis's earlier rejection of aid to Catholic schools, a Tory spokesman said:

"We could win an election on the rejection of the Roman Catholic request but we would stir up such religious prejudices as would make the next election an ugly bloodbath that would split the province and to end."

The separate school system in this province originated from laws passed following the 1841 unification of Upper and Lower Canada—Ontario and Quebec.

The laws provided Ontario's Roman Catholic minority with the right to establish an education system similar to that set up by the Protestant minority in Quebec.

The concept was further reinforced by Section 93 of the British North America Act of 1867. But these laws were written at a time when the only general education available short of university was the common or grade school —the concept of high school was unknown.

By the constitution the Roman Catholic taxpayer kept the right to designate his education taxes for support of separate schools. But when the school system was divided into elementary and secondary levels seven years after Confederation, the right to designate taxes for high schools was not extended.

Roman Catholics immediately began urging such an extension and the matter has been an issue in almost every provincial election since then.

The issue went to the British Privy Council in 1928. The council ruled that taxes could be designated to public or separate common schools and left the provincial government with the right to determine at what grade common schools ended.

The province promptly defined common schools as elementary schools, meaning that Catholics had no constitutional guarantee to tax-supported separate schools beyond the elementary level.

Edward J. Bribiois, executive president of the Catholic education association, says establishment of a Protestant school system in Quebec "was never a problem" and "completes pre-university education for the Quebec minority became a reality 101 years ago."

But in Ontario, "there has been no substantial educational legislation on separate schools since the 1860s."

The battle flared anew two years ago when the Ontario Separate School Trustees Association presented a brief to the government urging full extension of financial support.

Mr. Bribiois characterized the government's negative response as the "traditional official mentality which makes it impossible for Catholic children to have the same opportunities as children in the public system."

There are cogent arguments on both sides of the controversy and educationists are sharply divided on the question.

Dr. Charles Phillips, former director of graduate studies at the Ontario College of Education, is one of the strongest opponents of aid extension.

He says Canada built "a magnificent system of tax-supported schools in most provinces" because it took care to avoid fragmentation of the educational system among secular and religious institutions.

Dr. Phillips estimates that full extension of aid to the separate school system now would cost Ontario taxpayers an extra $110 million annually, "more than one-fifth of all present expenditures on public secondary education."

But Mr. Bribiois says a "more accurate estimate" on extension costs is $25 million a year, covering 16,000 Catholic students in Grades 11 through 13 and improving the educational standards of 18,000 pupils in Grades 9 and 10.

Separate School Reaction

RCs Upset But Anti-Davis Campaign Appears Unlikely

TORONTO (CP) — The Roman Catholic community is "extremely disappointed" with Premier William Davis's rejection of extended financial aid to separate high schools, a spokesman says, but chances of a Catholic campaign against him in an anticipated October provincial election are slim.

Edward J. Bradley, executive-president of the English Catholic Education Association of Ontario, said in an interview Tuesday "parents of half a million Catholic school children in Ontario are pretty upset about this."

Mr. Brisbois' association represents separate school trustees, parent-teachers' groups, school board administrators and teachers—"just about everybody involved in the separate school system."

"But this is not a political issue and I don't believe the association would campaign against Mr. Davis in an election in a partisan way or on behalf of any party," he said.

"There are serious educational issues at stake. Clouding them in politics would tend to obscure those issues."

Mr. Brisbois said, however, that the association and its affiliated Catholic groups will continue to campaign vociferously for separate educational facilities and opportunities equal to those in the public school system.

Education Minister Robert Welch said he hopes separate and public school boards across the province will get together soon to discuss possible sharing of public school facilities.

He said the premier's suggestion is not a change in government policy, but a shift in emphasis.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said in Kitchener the premier's decision is intended to distract attention from many other issues in the province such as tax reform and centralized government.

Mr. Nixon said that the government was willing enough to extend financial support to the first two grade of high school in 1964. This means that the premier is being "essentially inconsistent" in not extending it to the end of Grade 13.

The Ontario Alliance of Christian Schools, which represents non-Catholic private schools, described Mr. Davis's decision as "a backward step for democracy" and suggested it heralded new religious battles in the province.

The alliance, representing 50 schools and 8,500 students, called for a coalition of Catholics, Protestants and Jews to elect representatives who will fight for the educational rights of minorities.

"The premier has turned what is basically a question of democratic justice into the beginnings of new religious wars in Ontario," said an association spokesman.

At the local level, Catholic school board officials tended to look at the decision in practical rather than theoretical terms.

Joseph Donahue, vice-chairman of the Frontenac, Lennox and Addington separate school board, said in Kingston that city's Regiopolis-Notre Dame high school now will have to forego planned improvements in facilities and curriculum.

He said the decision meant that the school has to drop plans to bring back commercial courses abolished two years ago and has restricted the scope of other planned courses.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said his party favored an extension of grants "subject to the condition that facilities and services be shared in as many educational areas as possible."

"Far from fragmenting the system, that would bring the two streams closer together, overcoming the present sense of isolation with which many critics are concerned."

Vernon Singer, Liberal deputy leader, said he was "disappointed" in the premier's statement and thinks the timing of the announcement will make the subject an election issue.

Joseph Fullerton, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto separate school board, called the statement a flat refusal of separate school demands.

"The premier's claim that support would fragment and divide our youth is a claim we cannot support," he said.

Rabbi Stuart Rosenberg, chairman of the Ontario Committee for Government Aid to Jewish Day Schools, has said that a denial of increased financial assistance to separate schools would not be in the best interests of democracy.

John Sweeney, superintendent of the Waterloo County separate school board said the timing and content of the statement make it appear to be "a political tactic."

Most Rev. Philip F. Pocock, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Toronto, said he regrets the government's decision and that "the principle of equality of educational opportunity has been denied the students in separate high schools."

Varied separate school principals to proceed with integrated courses."

He explained that in public schools under the ungraded system—in which students will be promoted according to ability under a system of credits—a student, for example, can take mathematics at the Grade 9 level and English at the Grade 12 level.

With separate school aid going to only Grade 10, he said, opportunities for students to choose course options at a higher level become impossible.

In St. Catharines, business administrator Pat Whelan of Denis Morris Catholic high school said that if senior secondary students in his city were dumped into the public system it would cost taxpayers there another $1 million a year.

James Skeble, superintendent of education for the separate school board in St. Catharines, said the announcement provided "a political answer to a pedagogical problem."

He added that 425,000 Catholic school children are being used as "political pawns, and this is certainly most regrettable."

Bishop E.G. Carter of the Roman Catholic diocese of London, Ont., warned that if his parishioners are unable to pay increased fees to meet the deficits of Catholic schools in his area, the schools will have to be closed and sold to the public system.

His brother, Bishop Alexander Carter of the Sault Ste. Marie diocese, said there will be no official church campaign against the government but many voters will undoubtedly show their displeasure on their ballots.

"The government was in a difficult political position," he said, "but leaders should lead, not follow more ignorant and biased parts of the public."

Dr. John Bell, secretary of the Ontario Association of Governing Bodies of Independent Schools, called the announcement "a very wise political decision."

Frank J. Macdonald, superintendent of education for the Simcoe County Roman Catholic separate school board, said Mr. Davis had ignored "the desires of an increasing minority who seek an education with a Christian philosophical background."

"This certainly isn't the end of it," he said, adding that there "might be a new minister of education in Toronto" in the next few months who might be more open to persuasion.

Edward Finan, superintendent of education for the Ontario County separate school board, said he was disappointed by the decision.

Dr. Charles McIlveen, Oshawa Conservative candidate in the next provincial election, said the decision was inevitable —"the only thing the premier could do."

Dr. Nick Mancini, president of the Ontario Separate School Trustees Association, said his association would not try to make the decision an election issue.

"This is not a political issue, this is not a religious issue, this is not a financial issue. This is exceptionally a pedagogical issue," he said.

Dr. Michael Carty, president of the Catholic High School Boards in Ontario, said he feared some of the 71 Catholic high schools that have been "clinging to the hope that aid would be coming from the government" might have to close.

Paul De Sousa, principal of St. Peter's Senior high school in Peterborough, said the school will be unable to open for the 1972-73 academic year without provincial grants.

Premier Davis' decision, he said, may be the blow that will force St. Peter's (Peterborough County's only Roman Catholic high school) to close.

The school, which has been in financial trouble for about a year, expects 250 students this fall.

Rev. A. J. Estes, principal of Notre Dame College School in Welland, said his school will not survive more than six years without government grants.

He said Notre Dame has been operating with an annual deficit of more than $100,000.

Lawyer Sought for Smuggling Gun to Convict

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Authorities have issued an all-points-bulletin for Stephen M. Bingham and charged the 29-year-old lawyer with five counts of murder in connection with a San Quentin prison escape attempt Aug. 21.

District Attorney Bruce Bales accused Bingham of smuggling a gun to George Jackson, a black militant convict killed in the attempt, which also took five other lives.

"I have reached the conclusion that there is no way Jackson could have obtained the death gun, except during his visit with Bingham just before the killings commenced," Bales said Tuesday.

Bales said the pistol was found with five clips of live ammunition on Jackson's body after Jackson was shot down by prison tower guards.

Bales held a news conference after filing the murder complaint that Jackson underwent a thorough "skin search" before meeting Bingham.

Prison officials say Jackson, one of the three Soledad Brothers awaiting trial for the murder of a white guard at Soledad prison, pulled a pistol from a wig and took a guard hostage after returning from the visit with Bingham.

The complaint said that within half an hour after Jackson pulled the gun, three guards were dead in Jackson's cell. Two were killed by gunshot wounds in the back of the head, and one by throat slash.

The bodies of two convicts were found in the cell area, killed by deep cuts to the throat.

Bales said the charges against Bingham are based on the same California complicity law under which black militant Angela Davis is accused of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in an Aug. 7, 1970, shootout that took four lives at the Marin County courthouse. One of those killed was Jackson's 17-year-old brother, Jonathan.

Miss Davis is accused of supplying the guns and helping plot an escape attempt by three convicts from a trial session but she was not accused of being present at the shootout.

Bales said additional evidence discovered during the weekend appeared to "rule out the unknowing or innocent transportation of the gun into the prison by Bingham." He didn't elaborate.

Cuba to End Refugee Airlift

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Cuba has told the United States it intends to end airlifts that have brought 250,000 Cuban refugees to Florida since 1965, the state department announced Tuesday.

Robert J. McCloskey said the flights will be suspended today for several weeks. They will then resume until the last group of refugees permitted to leave are cleared.

There are about 100,000 Cubans registered as wanting to join their families in the U.S. but who still remain in Cuba.

The airlifts, twice a day, five days a week, began Dec. 1, 1965.

Pilot's Conviction for Low-flying Fatality Upheld

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Court of Appeal Tuesday upheld the conviction and sentence of pilot Jean-Paul Leblanc of Baie Comeau, Que., found guilty of killing a man as he flew a low-level pass over a forest clearing near Fort Chimo three years ago.

Leblanc was sentenced in April, 1970 to two years in custody and two years probation in connection with the death of Patrick-Guy Giguere, struck by part of an aircraft piloted by Leblanc.

Court of Appeal Judges P. Owen and Elie Salvas ruled that the verdict and sentence were just.

In a dissenting opinion, Judge Antoine Rivard said certain irregularities and illegalities introduced at the original trial may have influenced its outcome.

He reproached presiding Judge Georges-Rene Fournier of Quebec Superior Court for not explaining to the jury the difference between criminal responsibility and civil responsibility.

Reciting before the jury the instances of other low-level passes made by the pilot was also illegal, he said.

Judge Rivard said it was not up to the jury to decide whether Leblanc was imprudent but rather to decide if this particular imprudence showed he had the criminal intent of disregard for life and the security of the public.

Pierre Morin, one of Leblanc's lawyers, said the case would probably be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada for a

Young Canadians Fight to Escape Disbanding Move

OTTAWA (CP) — The Company of Young Canadians, recommended for the scrap heap by the special committee on youth, Tuesday charged that the recommendation was based on outdated information and that press coverage of the youth report was "extremely narrow."

Dal Brodhead, executive director, called a news conference for a "quick second look" at th company which, he said, is a far cry from the original group.

Since the committee examined the CYC two years ago, the company has a new council, new staff, and new volunteers. He said the committee had not visited the CYC since it was reorganized.

Mr. Brodhead said the committee, which presented its report to State Secrtary Gerald Pelletier last week, looked at the CYC as it used to operate, and based its report "on a hell of a lot of mistakes."

He said the CYC no longer sends volunteers into the field "to do their own thing," but rather they are working with local groups who want to do something about their existing situation.

Had the CYC continued to operate as it did initially, "we'd be doing damn all now." But now there are 95 projects with 240 volunteers, "and there are so many demands there is no way we'll be able to respond."

Mr. Brodhead said parts of the report were middle-class, and the press reaction to it was decidedly middle-class. Everyone appears to h preoccupied using marijuana, that litel attention was pai to unemployment and poverty. These are areas that sconcern the CYC.

Once-secret Base At Clinton Closes

The air force station, built on a farm site in 1941, remained to residents of the town a mysterious airbase without airplanes until 1945.

Then it was learned that the site, chosen because the cliffs of the Lake Huron shoreline and terrain were similar to England's cliffs of Dover, had been the first radar training base on the North American continent.

Tuesday, Norman Tyndall, who had farmed the land before selling it to the Canadian government in 1941 and later worked at building the station, watched as the flag was lowered for the last time.

Crown Assets Disposal Corp. offered the base for sale Monday. It consists of 258 acres of land, 169 buildings, a 15-room school, a hanger, swimming pools, a fire station and a hospital.

In 1967 the town was presented with a huge radar dish antenna as a monument and officials at that time confirmed the base was the most secret, the largest and the first radar training school on the continent.

More than 2,300 United States and 6,500 Canadian personnel graduated from the communications and radar school between 1941 and 1945.

Doctor Hits Group for Freezing Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — A researcher in the preservation of tissue by freezing said Tuesday it's theoretically possible to freeze the newly dead and re-animate them later—but, he added that practical techniques for doing so are not within even remote sight.

In addition, Dr. Jerome Sherman, a University of Arkansas anatomist, told reporters that recently described freezing of human cadavers, in a so-called immortality quest, has made absolutely no contribution to science.

Sherman said that during the last four years, 13 bodies of persons who had died of cancer have been frozen in liquid nitrogen in experiments being conducted by an organization called the Cryonics Society.

He told a news conference that the society has 2,300 members in United States, most of them in New York, Michigan and the District of Columbia. And he said the society has this concept;

These bodies might be kept preserved in the frozen state until a sure-fire cure for cancer might come along. Then, the concept goes, the bodies would be thawed out and cured of their cancer.

Sherman talked to reporters during the annual meeting of the Society of Cryobiology, a professional organization devoted to promoting research on the effects of low temperature on living cells and tissues.

Sherman, one of the world pioneers in freeze-preserving human sperm for later use in producing babies, indicated also he has reservations about current trends to set up commercial sperm banks, some of which already are in operation.

"I just hope they do it in a scientific manner," said Sherman, adding there are still many unanswered genetic and other questions about freeze preserved human sperm.

'Abnormal' Soup Cans Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration and Campbell Soup Co. announced Tuesday a recall of soup packed at the same plant which produced another batch found to be tainted with botulism toxin.

Campbell and the FDA said the recall was a precautionary measure, involving 1,110 cases of vegetarian vegetable soup packed at the firm's Paris, Tex., plant on July 2.

The FDA announcement said its inspectors had found "abnormal cans of the soup during an inspection of the company's warehouse."

The FDA announcement made no mention of the reason for the abnormal cans. Campbell said no toxic soup has been found and there have been no reports of illness.

The FDA said the soup was shipped to nine states.

Laurentian Jobless Protest

MONT LAURIER, Que. (CP) — More than 1,500 demonstrators blocked all access roads to Mont Laurier Tuesday to press for the reopening of two nearby mills closed six weeks ago, laying off 140 men.

The demonstrators, who had come from various communities in the Laurentians, waved placards and chanted slogans denouncing the Quebec government's attitude in the dispute. A number of fires were started but the protest remained peaceful.

Representatives of the common front of workers, union members and pressure groups at the demonstration are to meet in Quebec City tonight with Premier Robert Bourassa and Jean Deschamps, president of Sogefor, the partly government-owned development agency that owned the two plants.

Quebec Layoffs Do Not Occur

MONTREAL (CP) — The number of layoffs expected in Quebec because of the recent 10-per-cent supplementary duty on imports into the U.S. has not materialized, a Quebec labor department spokesman said Tuesday.

Some $4 billion worth of Quebec exports to the U.S. this year will be liable for the surcharge, making it hard for Quebec to compete with U.S.-made goods on the American market.

Gaetan Belleville, director of the Quebec labor department's manpower services, said the department thought employers would use the surcharge as an excuse to lay off employees they were really letting go for other reasons.

"We just can't understand it. We were sure there'd be an avalanche of layoffs when Nixon announced his policies," he said.

Bible Bill Started Socreds

EDMONTON (CP) — One of the oldest provincial administrations in Canada was deposed Monday when Alberta voters ousted the Social Credit party after 36 years in office.

Social Credit rose to prominence on the evangelical wave that created in 1935 when William (Bible-Bill) Aberhart led the movement to power for the first time anywhere.

The wave smashed Monday on a Progressive Conservative breakwater built by Peter Lougheed, a dynamic 43-year-old Calgary lawyer who rallied his party and its voters with the cry "It's time for a change" from Harry Strom's governing party.

Similarly, it was a demand for change 36 years ago that gave Aberhart power. The voters were fed up with the approach of the governing party—the United Farmers of Alberta —to economic reform in the depths of the Depression.

Monday's election was Mr. Strom's first as leader of the party. Although he retained his rural seat in Cypress, many of the party old guard drowned in the Conservative flood.

The change in the Social Credit party really began in 1943 with the death of Aberhart. E. C. Manning, now a senator, succeeded as premier and installed some of the same evangelical fervor into the people, but less and less was heard of Social Credit doctrine.

One indication of the impending end came when Alf Hooke, a 1955 Social Credit original who had served in many cabinet posts, refused to run again for a seat he said had been "ill-frustrated by outsiders" who did not subscribe to Social Credit beliefs.

In the entire 36 years of its reign, Social Credit was challenged seriously only once previously—in 1940 when a coalition took advantage of widespread dissatisfaction with Aberhart's failure to deliver a promised $25-a-month dividend to each family.

Astute leadership, however, kept the party in power and there was hope right up to the mid-1950s that Social Credit could be a national force. This went down the drain in the 1958 Diefenbaker Conservative landslide that erased Social Credit representation from the Commons.

O'Brien Stricken

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—Actor Edmond O'Brien was in an intensive coronary care unit in hospital Tuesday after becoming ill while making a film.

A spokesman for San Bernardino Community Hospital said O'Brien, 55, Academy Award winner in 1954 for his supporting role as a newspaper press agent in The Barefoot Contessa, was resting satisfactorily.

O'Brien, known for his roles as a tough Irishman in movies and television, was on location with Glove Films in Wrightwood, 25 miles northwest of San Bernardino. A spokesman said the actor became ill at his motel and was taken by ambulance to hospital.

There was no definite immediate diagnosis.

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The Rolling Stones rock group and former manager Allen Klein Tuesday for $29 million because he allegedly failed to represent their best financial interests.

The suit, brought in New York state Supreme Court, charges that Klein "deliberately misrepresented to the five members of the group that he would "maximize their incomes and secure substantial tax benefits."

Klein, who now manages three of the four former members of the Beatles, has 20 days to answer the suit.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gloria Swanson, 72, rehearsing Tuesday to take over the part of the mother in Butterflies Are Free at the Booth Theatre, says that acting techniques from silent movies are standing her in good stead for Broadway.

"This play is a comedy," she says. "The first time you get only the light side. But if you see it again, you realize that everyone is saying one thing and feeling another; they're co- - -."

"This is where the old silent movie pantomime comes into being. We had to learn to act with our backs and our little fingers, all our muscles. We had to feel very strongly. e couldn't rely on the voice and expressions."

Massey Pinched by Als But Gives Hamilton Painful Treatment

MONTREAL (CP) — Before Montreal Alouettes started their regular 1971 football season, they suspended halfback Bill Massey for not reporting a pain in the neck—a pinched nerve to be exact.

Massey came off the suspended list in time for Tuesday night's Eastern football Conference game against Hamilton and proved to be a pain generally for the Tiger-Cats as the Als squeaked to a 23-24 win before 24,401 fans.

The six-foot, 215-pound graduate of Hawaii, who came to Montreal on a recommendation from his college football coach, racked up 109 yards rushing and caught three passes from Sonny Wade for 37 yards.

Wade also threw touchdown passes to Jim Foley and Garry Lefebvre and booted off a Bruce Van Ness for the only Montreal touchdown. Justin Canale kicked a convert and a 35-yard field goal. Place-kicker George Springale, who retired from the Als after the game, added a single and punter Garry Lefebvre booted a 62-yard single to complete the Montreal scoring.

Joe Francis, one of my coaches at Hawaii, told me that Montreal was a great place to play," Massey said. "He played quarterback here and at Green Bay and had nothing but good things to say about the city."

Massey and his father wrote every club in the National and Canadian Football Leagues to advertise him before he graduated last year.

"Then I took what appeared to be the best offer."

Massey said he did not want to be too nervous in his first start with the Als. He got the opportunity to start when Moses Denson, who suffered torn ligaments in his left ankle, was placed on the club's suspended list Monday.

But Massey debut did not begin quite the way Joe wanted it. On his second carry of the ball game, he fumbled after making a first down on the Montreal 45.

Defensive ball Allen Brenner scooped the ball up and raced into the Montreal end zone and following a conversion by Tommy Joe Coffey, Hamilton led 10-3 with 11:13 gone in the first quarter.

Montreal had jumped to a 7-0 lead on the singles by Lefebvre and Springale, the latter coming on a missed field goal from the Hamilton 23.

Coffey then kicked a 43-yard field goal to put Hamilton ahead 3-2 at 9:37 and on the next series of plays Massey committed his fatal fumble.

But after that, Massey delighted the home fans and coach Sam Etcheverry during through the holes opened by his offensive linemen.

"They (the line) opened a lot of good holes for me and I just ran through them," Massey said after the game.

"The fumble was just one of those things. It's happened to me before but you have to bounce back from it."

Massey said he dived for the first down and then someone hit him and the ball popped loose.

"Yes, the line was blocking well," said Als' coach Sam Etcheverry.

"They were blowing the defence out of there. But Massey was making a lot of yardage on his own. He cuts really quick."

A future in the circus may be in store for Gary Aldworth of Quinte Transport and Belleville United forward Charlie Nestorovski (striped shirt) as they seem to balance on a soccer ball. Actually neither had much concern for the circus as they direct their attentions to the ball in Tuesday night's final game in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League. Quinte emerged 3-2 victors and clinched the league pennant.

Juniors Edge Point Anne 2-1

Ellis Pitchers Provide Double Trouble

In softball, where pitching dominates the game, it's trouble enough to handle one roundsman, but two are just too much.

The Point Anne Cementmen faced just such a predicament in Tuesday night's sixth game in their Commercial Softball League semi - finals with the Ellis Juniors. Besides having to contend with the arm of Ted Waite the Pointers also got stung from the bat of Ron Hill, the Printers lefty who was installed "i" right field for last night's game. Hill came through with a clutch single in the bottom of the 12th inning to drive in Glenn Carleton for the winning tally in the Juniors 2-1 series-tying victory.

The win marked the Juniors third in succession, erasing a three game to none Point Anne lead. It also marked the fifth time in the six games played to date that extra innings were required as the Pointers had opened the scoring in the top of the first on singles by Bruce Skickle, Jim Horwood and Mike Cook. The Juniors quickly evened the count in their half of the inning with Pete Stallkovich leading off with a double advancing on Dave Dale Duvall to leave both men stranded.

Gerry Hill singled in the second inning and was called out in a tight play at the plate attempting to score on a passed ball. Steve Ling had the other safety, a third-inning single.

"We've had tremendous pitching from both Scotty Reid and Wayne McConnell in this series but we have to get them some runs if we expect to win," said Rollins coach Garry Alexander.

Tonight's winner will meet the powerful Quinte Transport for the Zone Four title in the next round.

Rollins 000 000 000 — 0 4 0
B. Mills 000 010 00x—1 3 2

Lott's single and scoring on an error.

Cementmen harker Don Holoway and Waite of the Juniors battled into a personal battle for the next 11 innings mowing down most opposition in their way. The Printers threatened in the top of the 12th loading the bases on a walk, a fielders' choice and an intentional pass to Doug Olsen but a running catch by Stallkovich ended the threat.

Carleton led off the bottom of the 12th by being hit by a pitch. He advanced to second on a sacrifice and then scored on a close play at home on Hill's base hit.

The Junior win overshadowed an excellent pitching performance by Pointer manager Don Holoway who had a three - hitter going for nine innings and still wound up with only five hits against him. He struck out 14 and walked three. Skickle, Horwood and Cook each had two singles for the losers with Eric Maher and Rick Rosebush adding singles.

Ted Waite gave up eight hits while fanning 13 on the Junior mound. Stallkovich had a double and single. Dave Lott a single, Hill a single and Waite a single for the winners.

Deciding game in the series will be Thursday evening.

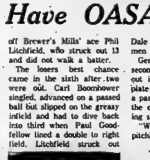
Rollins Have OASA Tables Turned

Brewer's Mills hit exactly one ball to the outfield off Scott Reid last night — and it just made it — but it was enough to hand Belleville Rollins Construction a 1-0 setback.

The narrow victory by the Mills in Verona evened the two - of - three OASA Intermediate "A" playoff series at one game apiece, both 1-0 affairs.



The third and deciding game of the series will be played at the Alemlie Field in Belleville tonight, getting under way at 8.15 p.m.

Last night's only run came in the fifth frame. T. Kotsavych bunted safely with one out and after Reid fanned Howe, shortstop T. Thompson bloopd a single just over the infield to centre, scoring the runner who had advanced to second on a wild pitch.

Thompson's leadoff single off McTaggart's glove in the first inning was the only other hit the winners had off Reid. He blew third strikes past 17 batters and walked a pair.

Rollins managed four hits off Brewer's Mills' ace Phil Litchfield, who struck out 13 and did not walk a batter.

The losers best chance came in the sixth after two were out. Carl Boomhower singled, advanced on a passed ball but slipped on the greasy infield and had to dive back into third when Paul Goslee fellow lined a double to right field. Litchfield struck out Peter Bowen to end the threat.

Truckers Stage Comeback For Quinte Soccer Crown

Quinte Transport picked up a fitting victory in Tuesday night's final game in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League schedule, coming from behind with a second half surge to edge Belleville United 3-2.

The come back victory marks the story of Quinte's season as the Trenton team has come from behind in grasp first place in the final league standings, clinching the pennant with last night's win over United, their closest rivals.

Charlie Nestorovski opened the scoring for United after 20 minutes in the first half bouncing the ball into the net off a Quinte defender. United again scored in the first half with Mario Collavigh tallying the marker.

The second half belonged to Quinte as they pumped three goals past United goalie Chris Humphreys. Tom Furrer cut the United lead to one goal with 20 minutes and Brian Smith notched the equalizer on a penalty shot. Smith was in the right spot 10 minutes later banging in the winner from close range.

The eight team league now moves into the first round of the Belleville Charity Cup with one exception. The Belleville Parsons were forced to withdraw from the competition due to the return of many of their players to university. Quinte opens Thursday against the Belleville Falcons at Trenton's Centennial Park and United plays the CFB Flyers. The Cup play is single knock-out competition.

Plane's On Move

Plane's Concrete caused a three-in-three effort to gain a 3-2 spin with Reed in their South Hastings finals battle last night.

The Cannifton club scored three times in the bottom of the third to erase a 2-0 Reed lead and prevent their opponents from increasing the 2-0 lead that they had in the best-of-seven series.

A two-run homer by Carm Milligan had helped Reed build their early lead, but Plane's batter Larry Lewis settled down to throw three-hit ball over the remainder of the game.

Lewis struck out 11 batters and issued only one walk. Frank Cowan took the decision for Reed allowing five hits, while whiffing five batters and giving up three bases on balls.

Ted Abrams paced Plane's with a pair of singles with the other hits going to Bernie Coughlan. Lewis and Ron Lynch also had two hammer while Pete Enright picked up two singles for Reed.

The next game of the series is slated for 6.30 p.m. Thursday in Reed with the fifth scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Cannifton.

Expos Turned On

Vader's Daisun and the CJBQ Expos have advanced into the finals of the hantam division of the Belleville Minor Baseball playoffs but they did it in vastly different ways.

The Expos were outhit seven-five but still eked out a 4-3 win over Barriage Landscaping to win the series in two straight games. Meanwhile Vaders had little problem in disposing of the Canadian Legion winning the second game 14-2.

Brian Turner and Rick Culnin fired the Expo win, fanning nine and walking four. Scott Bowes had two singles to lead the winners.

Craig Empey and Ross Geen combined for a two-hitter on the Vaggs mound. They struck out seven and issued four free passes. Bruce McDonald had two doubles and Empey a triple for Vaders.

Two tyke division series were wrapped up Tuesday night also when Alhambra 109 nipped Hopkins Wfeeters 12-10 and Universal Centre edged Mulroney's Sunoco 4-3.

Dale McTaggart and Ken Revoy fanned 14 in picking up the Alhambra win. Mark Crawford led all hitting with three triples.

Dave Bennett and Bruce Bell allowed only three hits in firing the Unioyal win. Bennett had a double and single with Larry Hanlan adding two singles.

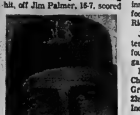
Yaz Slaps Quiet Tag on Critics

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Carl Yastrzemski, with the boos of the crowd ringing in his ears and the threat of a trade hanging over his head, took a bat in his hands and shut the mouths of his critics—at least temporarily—Tuesday night.

The veteran Boston slugger, in the worst slump of his 11-year career, smashed a dramatic run-scoring single with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night, giving the Red Sox a 4-3 American League victory over Baltimore Orioles.

"Under the circumstances, it was one of the most satisfying hits I've gotten in a long time," said Yastrzemski. "However, nothing is too satisfying when you're 13½ games out (the margin by which the third-place Red Sox trail the front-running Orioles in the American League's East Division). But you keep trying."



The 32-year-old left fielder, starting out the season at a .306 pace, injured a thumb May 31. He admitted he developed bad batting habits and hasn't been able to break them.

Elsewhere, Oakland Athletics beat California Angels 6-1, Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians split a twi-night doubleheader—the Tigers winning the opener 6-1 and the Indians taking the nightcap 6-3, Minnesota Twins edged Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 10 innings, Washington Senators defeated New York Yankees 6-5 and Kansas City Royals downed Milwaukee Brewers 6-4.

Yastrzemski, three-time winner of the American League batting crown, was booed every time he stepped to the plate against the Orioles Tuesday night.

Mike Fiore, who had walked as a pinch hitter and moved to third on Doug Griffin's double.

The Athletics broke a 1-1 tie against California in the eighth inning on Reggie Jackson's 402-foot run scoring double and Rick Monday's two run triple.

Joe Coleman tossed a four-hitter and Norm Cash drove in four runs in Detroit's opening game victory over Cleveland.

In the nightcap, rookie Chris Chambliss' three-run homer and Graig Nettles' two-run blast, his 22rd, were the big hits for the Indians.

Minnesota broke a 3-3 tie against Chicago in the 10th inning on a walk, a sacrifice, Rod Carew's single, an intentional walk and Harmon Killebrew's sacrifice fly over the White Sox' five-man infield.

Cardinal Star's Belts Outweigh His Bunts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Torre has batted once this season and the way he's swinging the bat once is enough.

Torre's St. Louis Cardinals were locked in a 3-1 tie with New York Mets Tuesday night when Matty Alou opened the ninth inning with a bunt single off reliever Danny Frisella. That brought up Torre.

"I was looking for the bunt sign," said the slugging third baseman.

"I really was. I looked down at third base coach Vern Benson for a long time but he didn't give it-to me. I got the fork ball three times and I happened to hit the last one up the middle."

Alou moved to third on the hit from where he scored the winning run in a 2-1 victory when Ted Simmons laced an 0-2 pitch from Tug McGraw to left field.

That kept the Cards, five games behind Pittsburgh Pirates, who rallied from a five-run deficit to beat Philadelphia Phillies 7-5.

JOE TORRE

Elsewhere, Chicago Cubs edged Montreal 7-6 in 10 innings in the first game of a double-header. The nightcap was suspended with the Expos leading 8-1 after six innings and will be completed today. San Francisco Giants trounced Atlanta Braves 9-0, Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Houston Astros 8-1 and Cincinnati Reds nipped San Diego Padres 2-1.

Torre credited the St. Louis Astroturf and the ... bats behind him as the reason he now leads the league in batting average and hits as well as RBIs.

The ex-catcher also made a fine play on Donn Clendenon's slow bopper to end the Mets' ninth with two runners aboard.

Jerry Reuss went the route for the Cards, striking out 10. New York's Nolan Ryan fanned 12 in six innings.

With the Phillies holding a 5-0 lead over the Pirates, Ronnie Stennett smacked a two-run single in the fifth. Mill May drove in a run in the sixth and Pittsburgh rallied for four in the seventh to win it.

Chicago's Ken Holtzman was breezing along on a one-hitter in the nightcap when the Expos exploded for eight runs in the ninth inning before darkness forced the carryover.

The Expos loaded the bases and Ron Woods' double and Ron Hunt's triple produced four runs, Bob Bailey singled a run home, Boots Day delivered a two-run single and John Boccabella, who started it all with a single, singled Day across a run.

Ken Henderson's three-run homer and two-run singles by Dave Kingman and Chris Speier backed Gaylord Perry's seven-hit hurling as the Giants crushed the Braves and remained eight games in front of Los Angeles in the NL West.

Wes Parker socked a two-run homer as the Dodgers scored three times in the first inning and trounced the Astros.

Tricky Winds Aid Canadian

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Despite light and shifting winds that tricked many sailors at the Canada 1 a Olympic-training Regatta here Tuesday but they helped carry Bud Melges to his first Soling victory.

Last year's Canadian open Soling champion with five straight victories at CORK, Melges has had his problems this year, finishing 11th in the first race and fouling out of the second.

A former Flying Dutchman sailor who won the Pan-Am games FD event in Winnipeg four years ago, Melges, from Zenda, Wis., was still fourth in the standings behind leader Bruce Goldsmith of Chicago.

Goldsmith sailed a Lightning last year to the North American open championship at CORK but switched to Solings this season because "our big goal is to get to the Olympics next year."

Lightning boats are not an Olympic class; Solings were made an Olympic class for the first time for the next year's Games in Germany.

Racing in eight classes on three courses was delayed for 3½ hours as the wind, under five miles an hour, shifted up to 180 degrees and organizers had to keep postponing race starts while they tried to find a regulation starting line into the breeze.

Rick Grafirena of Seal Beach, Calif., used the postponements to scrounge a lunch and pick up enough energy to win the O.K. dinghy race.

But Augustin Diaz of Miami, winner of the first two races in the Snipe class, and Roger Green of Pontiac, leader in the Flying Dutchman group, were not so happy.

The 17-year-old Diaz was caught resting on a beach with three other sailors when the 10-minute warning gun was shot, and crossed the start line more than 10 minutes late.

Three of his major opponents finished in the top five. Robert Stewart of San Diego, Calif., was first, Frank Levinson of Indianapolis, Ind., was second; and W. G. Evans of Barrie, Ont. was fifth.

"It's too bad they had to call the race," said eventual Flying Dutchman winner P. J. Hyrniw of Vancouver. "Green made a good move to get out in front."

Hyrniw sailed consistently to two second-places in the first races and now leads the class. Chris Chatah of Wilmette, Ill., who swapped first-and-third-place finishes with Green earlier, finished out of the running Tuesday.

After Tuesday's racing, only Peter Wright of Chicago has a perfect record of three wins in the Star class.

Reed Regains Former Status As Western Superstar

TORONTO (CP) — There was never much doubt George Reed would regain superstar status that made him the scourge of Canadian Football League defences for eight seasons.

The galloping Saskatchewan Roughrider fullback was sidelined late in the 1970 Western Conference season with a broken leg that proved not only painful to him but costly to the Roughriders in the WFC playoff loss to Calgary Stampeders.

As late as February of this year, Reed said muscles of the injured leg were still bothering him and required constant therapy.

He was in Saskatoon at the time, taxiing athletes and reporters about in courtesy cars made available for the Canada Winter Games by the brewing company that employs Reed.

Even then, however, the 31-year-old Washington State grad, who had been clocking in on several conference and CFL records established by Johnny Bright in a 13-year career with Edmonton Eskimos and Calgary, was confident of complete recovery.

His nine touchdowns in seven games this season and 516 yards rushing attest to his recovery.

Three touchdowns in a 42-21 Saskatchewan victory over Ottawa Rough Riders last week brought his career total to 91, tying the CFL mark set by Dick Shatto of Toronto Argonauts.

His CFL total carries, 2,034, stands as a league mark, previously held by Bright, and his 10,222 yards gained rushing leaves him a clear shot at Bright's 10,909 before the '71 season ends.

Reed is co-leader in the WFC scoring race with Don Jonas. The Winnipeg Blue Bomber quarterback's 54 points come from one touchdown, 17 converts, nine field goals and four singles.

The two have a comfortable 38-point lead over Larry Robinson, Calgary's placekicking defensive halfback. Another Stampeder, Hugh McKinnis, is in fourth spot with 30 points off five touchdowns.

Reeds' net rushing yardage from 100 carries gives him a 20-yard edge on running back Jim Evenson of British Columbia Lions. Evenson's 487 yards, off 103 carries, is 69 yards ahead of third-place McKinnis.

Jonas continues to lead the passing department, completing 95 of 182 attempts for 1,636 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Saskatchewan's Al Ford has punted the most times (37) for the most yardage (1,362) but his 41-yard average places him third among the conference regulars behind Bill Van Burkleo of Calgary 45.1 and Lions' Ken Phillips 42.5.

Tommy Joe in Third

Tommy Joe Coffey moved into third place in the Eastern Football Conference scoring derby Tuesday night although his Hamilton Tiger-Cats came out on the short end of a 25-24 score with Montreal Alouettes.

Coffey converted Hamilton's three touchdowns and kicked a field goal to increase his point total to 36. Toronto's Leon McQuay continues to lead with 38 points, five ahead of Argo team-mate Ivan MacMillan.

Harness Classic Set

QU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — This is the day Du Quoin, a southern Illinois coal field town of 6,600, becomes the once-a-year harness racing centre of the world.

Nine three-year-old trotters will compete over the Du Quoin State Fair's one-mile, clay surfaced track for the standard-bred sport's most coveted crown.

About 20,000 fans will pack the fairgrounds grandstand and bleacher annexes for the Hambletonian trotting classic where the cash race for $129,779 in prize money.

Thirty-eight Hambletonian heats have been raced in Du Quoin. Twenty-one of them have been in 2:00 or less.

The race record was 2:00 when the Hambletonian came here. The mark has since been lowered five times. It now stands at 1:56 4-5, set by Ayres in 1964, and appears safe today, despite the class of the Hambletonian field.

The first heat of today's race is at 2 p.m. It could take four hours to pick a winner. Heats are raced at one-hour intervals. A horse must win two heats to win the race. Four is the maximum number of heats permitted.

Worster Back in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — All-American Steve Worster, charged in Canada with marijuana possession, has enrolled at the University of Texas as a full-time student, a close friend said Tuesday.

The friend, who asked not to be identified, said Worster signed up for 15 semester hours and is trying to complete work on his bachelor's degree.

Worster was advised by his lawyers not to give any statements to newsmen, the friend said.

"He feels they will win this thing," the source said, referring to marijuana charges filed against Worster in Hamilton, where he was starting for the Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League.

The Tiger-Cats placed Worster, an All-American fullback with Texas last year, on waivers after the arrest.

Langdon Vivacqua, an agent of many professional football players, was quoted as saying that as soon as Worster's Sept. 28 hearing in Hamilton is over, "Steve will be back in pro football."

CFL Leaders Tested Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders and Toronto Argonauts, leaders in their respective conferences of the Canadian Football League, put their records on the line once more tonight in two clashes in the West.

Stampeders, Western Conference leaders with a 5-0 record, line up against the only team to have scored more points so far this season—Winnipeg Blue Bombers—in Winnipeg.

Argonauts, also undefeated until their 27-24 loss Sunday to B.C. Lions in Vancouver, intend to make the most of their high-priced help when they take to the field in Edmonton against the Eskimos.

Both games stand to be crowd pleasers. The Edmonton game will also be carried on the CTV network starting at 11 p.m. EDT.

Calgary coach Jim Duncan said a healthy Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas will test his team's defence, which has allowed only 22 points in five games, 12 to a Winnipeg team piloted by a second-string quarterback in an Alberta storm.

"We haven't played much against Jonas," said Duncan, "so it's a hit-and-miss proposition. We don't know what to expect or what he can do."

"We'll just have to wait and see."

Jonas, who also handles Blue Bomber place-kicking chores, is tied for first place with Saskatchewan Roughrider George Reed in the conference individual scoring race.

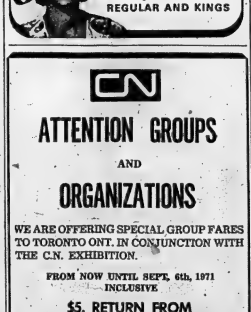
Blue Bombers will probably go to the air to try cracking the Calgary defence, led by all-star linebacker Wayne Harris. Winnipeg receivers Jim Thorpe, Bob Larose and Bob Larose and Bob Kraemer are among the top four in the West.

Edmonton hopes to come up with a win against the talent-stacked Argonauts to better its cellar standing of 1-4. But although the Eskimos are not assured a victory, they are virtually guaranteed a full stadium.

Eskimo general-manager Norm Kimball said the Toronto team's celebrated players "make Argos a great gate attraction."

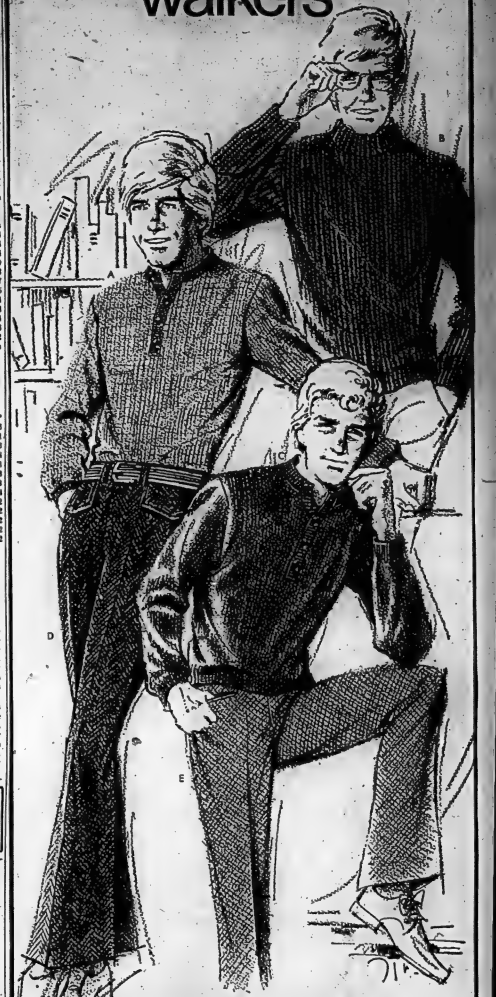
"Remember that a dozen of their players probably make more than our entire roster," he said.



Toronto stars Joe Theismann, Jim Gilliseau, Tim Anderson, Greg Barton and Leon McQuay joined the forces of coach Leo Cahill this season in celebrated deals under NFL noses.

Theismann, rookie quarterback reported to be earning $120,000 in a two-year contract, said the team plays under constant pressure.

"When we win, people say it was because we beat weak sisters," he said. "When we lose they never give the other team credit."



Edmonton linebacker Ken Ferguson will be back in uniform for tonight's game after missing one game, hoping to turn Toronto's single loss into a two-game streak.

Edmonton coach Ray Jauch said Larry Lawrence will start at quarterback, joining Bob Hounard, Al Ramsey and Charlie Bryant in the backfield.

Queens Feel Sears Sting

You can expect a top team to drop the occasional game but don't bet on them dropping top mugs — especially in the playoffs. Such is the case with the Simpson-Sears bantams in their Belleville Minor Lacrosse final series with Queens Motor Hotel. Losers by a 4-3 score in their opening game Monday, the regular season pennant winners roared back for a 6-3 win Tuesday to even the series.

In a midget contest the Belleville Auto Dealers tied their final series with Sun Luck Gardens by doubling the score on the Restaurateurs 4-2.

BYBF Finally Burned by Grill

Cellar dwelling BYBF put on a valiant performance but it was all for naught as they were burned 12-1 in the fifth and final game of the Ladies Softball League semi-finals.

The Corp Grill pushed across six runs in the third and five in the fourth to record the victory. The Grill now meets the Dairy Queen in the league finals.

Sandra Shurtleff was a six hitter for the winners, fanning eight and walking two. Sharon Francis supplied the big bat for Corp smashing a homer and two singles. Marg Reid had a triple and double, Verna Hill a triple and single, and Claus three singles.

Joe Morton took the loss for BYBF. She struck out seven and walked three. The pitcher also had a double and single.

Star Absent At Forest Hills

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Drama through limited seeding is expected to make up for the absence of stars in today's start of the United States Open tennis championships.

With 10 of the world's top players, including the defending champions from Australia, Ken Rosewall and Margaret Court, bypassing this 12-day, $100,000 extravaganza on grass, tournament officials decided to rank only eight of the 128 men, instead of 20 as last year, to make it the widest open of U.S. opens. Eight of the 64 women also were seeded.

But last-minute injuries and exhaustion forced the seedings to be pared among the women and revamped for the men.

Australian Rod Laver, seeded No. 3, pulled out pleading fatigue. Britain's Virginia Wade, No. 3 among the women, withdrew after she broke her ankle in the eastern lawn tennis championships last Saturday.

In another last-minute maneuvre, tournament officials reneged on an earlier plan to make opening day a "for men only" affair, with the women waiting in the wings for a Thursday start. Now the top half of the men's draw and the lower half of the women's draw are playing today with the remainder scheduled for Thursday.

Mrs. Court, whose victory here last year clinched a tennis Grand Slam, passed up her title defence because of pregnancy.

Also bypassing the Open, in a growing wave being waged between professionals and amateurs, are Australian pros Tony Roche, Roy Emerson and Rosemary Casals, as well as Andrea Gomero of Spain and Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Laver's withdrawal moved Nastase up to No. 8 seed behind Newcombe, Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., Tom Okker of The Netherlands, Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., Richey and Clark Graebner of New York City.

NOTHING SUITABLE

DERBY, England (AP) — Nine months after losing his parliament seat in an election, George Percy of the Labor party said he was still unable to find a suitable new job and was drawing social security pay.

Japan Not Aware Of Canuck Refusal

SAPPORO, Japan (CP-Reuter) — The Sapporo Olympic Committee said today that it has not yet been informed that Canada has refused to send a hockey team to compete in the Winter Olympics here next February.

A committee official confirmed that a formal invitation had been sent to Canada to send a team.

Canada pulled out of world hockey competition in 1970 over a dispute concerning use of professional players, but is in the Olympics a different set of rules of eligibility exists than in world hockey competition. Professionals are not allowed to play in the Olympics. But in world hockey, Canada has used reinstated pros many times.

The Sapporo committee was commenting today on a report from Ottawa quoting Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, as saying that Canada will not send a team because differences remain between Canadian and world hockey officials over the use of pros.

The Canadians want to use pros to field the best team possible; world hockey officials won't allow it.

An official of the Sapporo committee said it had been told about 10 days ago that a Canadian reply to its formal invitation was expected in two or three weeks.

"But we have not heard anything from Canada yet," the official said. "However, if the report is true it is regrettable."

A total of 12 countries so far are expected to take part in the hockey event. They are the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland, West Germany, Switzerland, the United States, Norway, Yugoslavia, France, Poland and Japan.

Peewees Make War With Scarborough

All's fair in love and the softball wars, so the Belleville Doug Rollins Shell peewees returned the favour on Scarborough in the second game in their Ontario Amateur Softball Association play-downs.

The local squad nipped the Toronto team 5-4 in Scarborough Tuesday night avenging a 4-2 home field loss two weeks ago. Third and deciding game will be this Saturday at the Alemite. Game time is 2 p.m.

Robert Chase fired the win, allowing seven hits while fanning 11 and walking one. Derek MacDonald created a homer and double and Martin Lowry a homer and single to pace Belleville at the plate. Robbie Richardson had a double and two singles with Scott Simon, John Hoddess and Paul McAlpine all hitting safely.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Chronic Anxiety Terrible Burden

Mrs. S. was interested only in her arthritis. "Why don't doctors find a cure for it?" she said. "I get sick and tired of swallowing aspirin. But what makes me even more impatient is hearing and reading what the medical profession keeps saying about anxiety. Why should people who "imagine" illness be given so much time and sympathy as those of us who actually suffer pain?"

I told her that there are all kinds of pain—and that sometimes mental anguish supercedes the physical. Anxiety imaginary? Far from it. There are all degrees of fear. In its extreme form it can make living a nightmare.

Ask the one who is afraid to sit in church. Or sit in a restaurant. Or too fearful to take a ride in a car. Fear comes in many varied forms. Everybody is scared. If not afraid of illness, or depressed by financial problems — there is the "bomb" in the background that disclaims our lives more than we realize.

• • •

Of course, arthritis, heart disease, diabetes, hypertension, etc., are more discomforting physically than chronic anxiety. But all the worse is person which he thinks is worse. The majority say "Give me pain of mind and freedom from fears, and I'd gladly swap for an ulcer or heart attack. This daily battle to keep my sanity is devitalizing. I'm so scared I can't work and I can't sleep. To add to it all insomnia is getting me down."

For these and many other reasons, I keep asking family members and friends to be patient with those who suffer from anxiety. Sympathy and understanding often help as much as tranquilizers.

• • •

For Mrs. D.: It is true that fibroids can interfere with pregnancy. But this is not invariably so. Nor is there any "rush" in having an operation to remove the fibrus. Your doctor's judgment seems to be the conservative one usually accepted by most physicians.

Namely to "watch" the fibroids every few months. If they enlarge or cause excessive bleeding, these are usually reasons enough for hysterectomy. But as I said, you are still young and pregnancy is still possible. Do not go off the deep end, looking for a surgeon to remove your uterus long before it is an essential procedure.

• • •

For Mr. O.: You can't stand listening (and watching) your wife "chewing on an apple like a dog on a bone"? Or listening to her sharp her soup? You ask whether or not such irritating habits are reason enough for seeking a divorce.

I would say, look deeper. These are only surface irritations which indicate that deeper dissatisfactions are the reasons for your unhappiness. Did similar eating habits disturb you as much when you were on your honeymoon?

• • •

For Mrs. N.: There are many reasons for potassium deficiency. One that is common and often overlooked is the use of diuretics in weight reduction. People who are anxious to lose weight rapidly take such treatment and become weak and "dragged out" simply because they have lost too much potassium. Sometimes the cause may be kidney disease, prolonged vomiting or diarrhea.

Whatever the reason, potassium shortage must be replaced. Potassium salt given as medication may be used. Also the deficiency may be overcome by a diet high in potassium, that is, fruit juices, prunes, bananas, potatoes, raisins, dates, apricots, fish and beef.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 2

Your birthday today: Acceptance of limits puts you in position to use them in this coming year of rather smooth progress and sound personal adjustment. Desirable conditions are easier to maintain although sidelines, new activities are much harder to introduce. Today's natives seek the curious and the sublime in life, are essentially gentle, home-loving people.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Where you must go it alone along even familiar paths, seek technical advice as you go. The new and unaccustomed presents extreme challenge.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The needs of others distract you from your original plans. News and gossip get mixed — there's another side to any story you hear.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Several more days and your career effort can move ahead. Use the time for practice of unfamiliar tasks.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Haste may close prematurely some opening for progress. A few days of reconsideration bring you out onto an entirely different level of action.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): A lucky break still requires some management and extra personal attention. Reach beyond the usual routines for social activity — get to know people better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Temptation is toward over involvement in trivial affairs of neighbors, acquaintances. Mind-ing your own business may be a fine act.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Pleasure items — make sure you've cleared all real obligations before you respond. Full understanding, checking of time and plans is more important than most people realize.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Caution is in order; deviations from custom attract definite corrections, perhaps discomfort. Consider your long-range welfare first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Pursue social contacts, make friends, redeem past favors received as you make sure essential chores and details are attended to.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your finest attire and best foot forward work best. Start early, to be out front and ahead of the crowd.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your money squirms to escape your wallet as all sorts of worthy or at least plausible causes demand support. Long-term commitments should come in small instalments.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Simmering ideas pop suddenly into reality, perhaps before you are set to cope with them. Bring in help, specialists, older advisers.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Many Things Are Unknown

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some day, if I ever manage to shake loose from the demands of a daily column, I'd like to write a book entitled "What We Don't Know Yet." Instead of explaining what we know, or think we know, the book would dwell on some of the basic problems we have not begun to attack sensibly.

There, in widely different areas, come immediately to mind. I don't think we yet know the best socio - political-economic system for man. I don't think we know the optimum sexual and conjugal relationships between men and women. And I don't think we have found our true and basic religion yet.

These are the three areas of our greatest troubles. The conflict between nations and classes; the tension between men and women; the wide disparity between our professed religions and their practical application.

Obviously, the whole thing can be avoided if we simply wanted to declare that man is a failed species, an aberration, a monstrous mutant, and no arrangement in any of these areas would satisfy him or tame his appetites for very long. But if we have any hope for the human race, we must take the view that somehow there are logical accommodations — if not "solutions" — to be found for these foci of conflict and frustration.

Communism, as we know it, is simply not working. Our sexual relations are a mess, both in and out of marriage. Promiscuity does not seem to be an answer as much as a reflex; monogamy may not be on the way out, but the present family constellation is breaking up fast. We are still as ignorant about our deepest sexual and conjugal needs as the Babylonians were about protons and neutrons.

All past and present religions, I am convinced, only prefigure some future one. Man cannot live without it, but he has not learned to live with it; he perverts every religion to serve lesser and baser needs. And no creed or dogma has yet arisen that elicits an adequately human response in terms of sustained loyalty.

Maybe we have to hobble along pretty much as we are, but then no one should assume that any of the "answers" we offer are right or true. Most wars have been fought over nothing, just as most arguments consist of mutually exclusive ignorances defending their nescience.

Human Artificial Insemination Attracts Official Attention

The reason for this renewed interest by government, medical and legal authorities is the family planning boom and an accompanying growth in sperm banks.

While no sperm banks have opened in Canada, the opening of two more in the United States soon will double the number within easy reach of Canadians.

The two new ones are in New York City. Sperm banks have been operating for more than a year in Minneapolis and St. Paul, just a short trip from Winnipeg.

One attraction to them is that a man who undergoes vasectomy, the male sterilization operation, can put his own sperm on deposit before the simple surgical procedure is performed.

This assures that at some later date he can father children through artificial insemination.

Long a part of animal husbandry, artificial insemination has been in use in humans at least 17 years. The oldest known child of the practice is said to be a university student in the United States.

The important question in Canada is the donor. If it is the husband, the practice is relatively uncomplicated. The Canadian Medical Association regards it as ethical provided consent of both husband and wife is obtained in writing.

But if the sperm donor is anonymous, things become uncertain.

Charles Scott, general counsel for the Canadian Medical Protective Association, says he knows of only one case in Canadian law that deals with the issue.

In that 1921 Ontario decision, the judge held that artificial insemination constituted adultery when a woman was injected without her husband's knowledge with the sperm of another man.

If necessary, he said, he would close artificial insemination with sexual intercourse.

He argued that any submission of the reproductive powers or faculties to the service or enjoyment of anyone other than the husband or wife "comes within the definition of adultery."

Scottish law takes the opposite view. Based on a 1858 case in Scotland, it was held that artificial insemination by a donor does not constitute adultery.

The Scottish jurist surveyed Scottish, English, French, Dutch and church law and concluded that all agree that to commit adultery requires sexual intercourse.

But if impregnation is achieved by other means than sexual intercourse "which do not involve the physical presence of the male and his sexual organ, it is difficult to see how such other means can be classified as sexual intercourse."

Records of the state of Canadian law, doctors do not discuss the extent up which they may use anonymous donors.

Two basic methods are employed. Live sperm is injected through a tube into the uterus within a few hours of the donation from husband or donor.

Or "freeze dried" sperm, in use at least since the early 1950s, is similarly transmitted months and even years after collection from the husband or donor.

Waves Maze

An engineer at Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., seems to be lost in a maze of polyurethane foam which lines the company's radio frequency anechoic chamber. Radio frequency signals are transmitted in the chamber and received by a test antenna mounted on a stanchion high above the floor. The saw-tooth and wedge-shaped foam absorb radiating signals which would reflect from the walls and interfere with the test measurements.

Fear Irish Protestants May Act on Their Own

LONDON (CP) — Fears are growing here that influential Protestant groups in Northern Ireland may be rapidly losing faith in the British Army's ability to control violence in Ulster and are preparing independent action to combat the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Government officials and commentators warn that such a development might trigger an explosive civil war engulfing all of Ireland.

Renewed concern in Britain and Ulster follows the weekend shooting of two British soldiers after their scout cars cross from Northern Ireland into the Irish Republic. One of the men died shortly afterwards.

British officials said about 50 IRA gunmen, firing from inside the republic, were responsible for the tragedy.

But Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic rejected the claim that the soldiers were shot from his territory.

Lynch, under strong pressure from parts of his government to support actively the Roman Catholic minority in Ulster and take a lenient, attitude toward the IRA, condemned the British government Tuesday for what he said was a failure to control troop movements along the border.

The shooting incident, coupled with last week's bombing of a Belfast office building which killed one person and injured 15 others, now has given rise to reports that some Ulster Protestants are considering independent retaliation against the IRA.

The Irish News of Belfast, a Catholic newspaper, said Tuesday the B Specials—an all-Protestant, 10,000-man militia disbanded as a concession to Catholics during riots in 1969, are secretly regrouping.

Commentators and officials have been warning for some time that this type of action would likely result unless the violence in Ulster was greatly curtailed.

Many Protestants, including numerous moderates, are reported dissatisfied with the efforts of 12,500 British troops and 4,000 reservists to control IRA terrorism and restore order to Northern Ireland. August rioting claimed 34 lives.

There appears to be doubt among Protestants that the policy of internment without trial for suspected terrorists invoked last month by the British and Ulster governments, is working as effectively as they had hoped.

The former specials, intensely hated by most Ulster Catholics, are said to be planning a clandestine meeting later this week to discuss proposals for dealing independently with the IRA.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I can't wait any longer! I'm going to chance it!"

Women Lack Power

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the royal commission on the status of women says that in Canadian political parties men make the policies "and the women make the sandwiches."

Anne Francis Bird told a CNE luncheon Tuesday that since 1920 when women suffrage was extended, 6,845 people have been elected to the Commons and provincial legislatures, but only 67 were women.

"We're outside the power structure," said Mrs. Bird. "... in business and finance as well as politics."

She said that of 5,889 directorships three years ago, only 41 were held by women.

20,000 Birds Missing

Pigeon 'Radar' May Be Off

LONDON (CP) — Frantic pigeon fanciers recently watched 20,000 racers take off amid fears something had gone wrong with their radar.

The anguish reached a high when the birds, valued at a total of $750,000, failed to reach home after three days on a 150-mile fogbound run. The faithful began to question that redoubtable claim that just as the Canadian Mountie always gets his man, the British pigeon always makes it home.

"It could be the worst disaster in the history of pigeon racing," said Harry Bezzo, secretary of the North End Federation, Tuesday.

Last Saturday 20,000 birds were released simultaneously from points in the north of England to race for homes to homing grounds in the Midlands.

After four hours, worried officials reported only about 30 pigeons had landed. The others, trainers and breeders concluded, may have run into bad weather and, as Bezzo explained, "lost their way, unbelievable as it may sound for pigeons."

"They now could either be in Scotland or even on the Continent," he surmised.

Normally, the birds race as a group, but have the instinct to recognize their individual homing lofts where officials time the flights. The winner simply clocks the best time.

But after Saturday's mystery disappearance, Bezzo reckons that "homing pigeon racing will take a long time to recover from the disaster."

MEASURES PLANNED

LONDON (AP) — Transport Minister John Peyton told Parliament new measures planned to reduce road casualties include raising the minimum age for motorcyclists to 17 from 16 and making them wear crash helmets.

Boy Kept from Father

Heart Attack Ends Grandma's Daily Trans-Atlantic Flights

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Sarah Krasnoff, the 74-year-old Cleveland, Ohio, woman who flew back and forth across the Atlantic nearly every day this summer with her 14-year-old grandson, died today, her son-in-law reported.

She died at the hotel where she had been ordered to rest after suffering a heart attack Tuesday.

"I have just been informed by the manager of this hotel that grandmother passed away in her sleep at 1 a.m. today," said Leonard Gelfand of Cleveland.

Gelfand arrived, early today from Cleveland to take Mrs. Krasnoff and his son Howard, 14, back to Ohio.

The elder Gelfand had been trying to locate his son and Mrs. Krasnoff since early July, his lawyer, Gerald B. Chatman, said in Cleveland.

Officials of KLM, the Dutch airline, said Mrs. Krasnoff had spent nearly $140,000 for first-class tickets for her grandson and herself. One source reported they had made 180 crossings.

KLM said this may be an exaggeration, but they had made the trip on "innumerable occasions" this summer.

When flight personnel asked the reason for their trips, they received such replies as "Grandma likes flying," or "My grandson would like to be a pilot."

Airport officials said the two usually arrived in Amsterdam in the morning and took off about six hours later for the return trip to New York. Gelfand's lawyer, Gerald Chatman, said Gelfand's wife died several years ago, and "when the mother died, the child preferred to stay on with the grandmother," who had often taken care of him because of his father's business obligations.

The lawyer said Gelfand and his second wife visited the boy often and the father talked to him daily.

Chatman said Gelfand knew that Mrs. Krasnoff and the boy planned a trip to Israel early this summer, but he became worried "when the weeks passed and there was no word from either of them."

The lawyer said Gelfand then found out that Mrs. Krasnoff was withdrawing large sums of money from "different banks. "This they thought was totally out of character for her," Chatman said. "She lived very, very frugally."

U.S. Offered to Sell A-bombs to France To Save Dien Bien Phu from Vietnamese

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States offered to sell atomic bombs to the French for use against the Vietnamese in the Indochina war, the magazine Aviation Week and Space Technology says.

In an article from Paris, the magazine quotes an informed source as saying the Eisenhower administration offered to sell France four atomic bombs for use in a desperation attack to save the fortress Dien Bien-Phu in the spring of 1954.

The offer, says Aviation Week, was the spur which prompted the French government to develop its own nuclear capability.

The magazine says French Premier Joseph Laniel was reported to have accepted the offer with reservations and passed a technical decision to Gen. Henri - Eugene Navarre, commander-in-chief of French forces in Indochina.

"Gen. Navarre strongly recommended against using atomic weapons because of the unknown side effects they could have on French troops in the battle area, according to the source," Aviation Week says.

"A U.S. offer was refused, and Dien Bien Phu fell, leading to the end of the Indochina war in May, 1954," the article says.

"Some French officials felt strongly that use of the atomic weapon might have saved Dien Bien Phu and possibly changed the outcome of the Indochina war."

The article said these officials also felt France should not have to depend on her allies for atomic weapons in the future, and began to press for development of French weapons.

40 GREAT STORES AND SERVICES • WIN A TRIP FOR TWO TO VANCOUVER

Shoppers Drug Mart

One of the largest of Koffler Stores' Shoppers Drug Marts will be constructed in the Quinte Mall. Representing the company's first outlet in the Belleville area (its first store between Oshawa and Kingston) the 11,000 square foot pharmacy is scheduled for opening in August 1971. At the present time there are 80 stores operating under the Shoppers Drug Mart banner in Ontario, New Brunswick and Winnipeg, Manitoba, with two others scheduled to open by the end of March. The completion of the acquisition of Cunningham Drug Stores Ltd., will add another 36 retail drug stores to the chain.

The Shoppers Drug Mart concept of merchandising represents an innovation in the organizing and financing of drug store retailing. The concept evolved out of research, testing and experience and although relatively simple in its application, it has proved most effective - namely, to apply mass merchandising techniques to drug retailing, to protect the independence of each pharmacist - associate and to achieve the lowest possible prices for consumers.

Quinte Mall's Shoppers Drug Mart will incorporate the same mass merchandising techniques as all Shoppers Drug Marts:

- mass centralized purchasing at substantial savings to the store owner — savings which are passed on to the customer.
- well-designed store layouts having brightly lighted wide aisles, with easy - to - find, attractively displayed merchandise.
- efficient traffic patterns within the store designed to allow the shopper to complete her shopping in a minimum amount of time.
- ample checkout counters with their resultant fast service.
- self -service allowing for faster, easier shopping, and reduced overhead for the store.
- absence of expensive customer services such as prescription deliveries and charge accounts.
- wide consumer identification through TV advertising, door - to - door distribution of advertising flyers illuminated store signs and uniform store layouts.

This unique approach to pharmacy sales, with its savings to customers, is what allows Shoppers Drug Marts to pledge "the lowest price possible" while maintaining the highest quality of goods and services.

Approximately 15,000 items will be carried by Shoppers Drug Mart, including proprietary (non - prescription) drugs, greeting cards, photography equipment, magazines, sundries, prescription drugs, cosmetics, toiletries, tobacco, convalescent aids and professional supplies. The average Shoppers Drug Mart outlet dispenses over 40,000 prescriptions per year, with all dry ingredient prescription being dispensed in Palm - N. + Turn safety container.

As a member of the health team in the Belleville area, Shoppers Drug Mart will provide customers with the lowest prices possible on drugs and medicines while maintaining both the quality of the product and integrity of the pharmacist. The management team of Koffler Stores Limited look forward to participating in Quinte Mall and to serving its customers with dedication.

A Mecca For Listening Pleasure

Shoppers Record and Tape Mart "Taped" Into the Belleville Market

Shoppers Record and Tape Mart, a unique concept in the merchandising of records and tapes, opened their first store in 1968 on Avenue Road in Toronto. The addition of the Quinte Mall store will bring the total number of shops in their chain to eight.

It is Company policy to offer the lowest prices on records and tapes. They advertise heavily on radio and in the newspapers, and cater to all age groups and music tastes.

Unlike most record stores who advertise their specials at discount prices, but do not back these up with sufficient quantities, Shoppers Record and Tape Mart supplies rainchecks on any advertised items should they happen to run out of stock.

The traffic generated by their heavy advertising and low discount prices will make Shoppers Record and Tape Mart a valuable asset to Quinte Mall.

Cambridge Leaseholds Fifth Centre

The T. Eaton Co. Limited and Steinberg's Limited will join with Cambridge Leaseholds Limited in the development of a two-level 350,000 sq. ft. regional shopping centre on the west side of Ottawa. It will be known as BAYSHORE Shopping Centre.

Located at the intersection of the Queensway and Highways 7 and 15, the huge enclosed mall centre will be readily accessible to the entire Ottawa-Hull trading area.

To open in 1973, the centre will contain a major Eaton's department store of approximately 150,000 sq. ft. It will also feature a Steinberg's Miracle Mart department store along with a Steinberg's Supermarket and 100 additional stores and services, all fronting on a two-level climate-controlled mall. The 3,000-car parking facility will include covered parking for more than 1,000 cars.

Carrie Chapman Catt was a forerunner of today's women's lib movement. She was a life-long worker for women's suffrage and an officer in international societies for women's suffrage.

Sneaky Pete Saloon To Add Western Touch

Sneaky Pete, a new concept in dining pleasure, will open their fourth, fifth and sixth restaurants in Belleville's new Quinte Mall.

The theme of each of the restaurants will be Western Saloon style in keeping with the fun-loving 'symbol' of the 'old prospector' — Sneaky Pete.

A fast service Saloon bar featuring specialty sandwiches, hamburgs and hot dogs with seating in the rear will be complemented by a 170 seat full service Saloon featuring western burgers, pizza and that favorite summer beverage. For the children and the young at heart a soft ice cream parlor with a place to rest and enjoy your cone will also be available.

With the continued increase in population on the north shore of Lake Ontario, and the strong development of the Belleville area in particular, Total Food Systems and Sneaky Pete look forward to many years of sustained business growth.

Coles -- The Book People

COLES - The book people! is an all Canadian company founded in 1934 in Toronto. It has grown in 36 years to be the largest retail bookstore chain in North America with stores spread out right across Canada.

The original emphasis was on school and university textbooks but during the second world war the company diversified into every type of book published.

With the advent of the "paperback revolution" during the 1960's COLES was one of the pioneers in the introduction and distribution of the low priced paper bound book

Laura Secord

The Laura Secord Candy Shop located in Belleville's new Quinte Mall will be the company's first in this area. Like all Laura Secord Stores, it is designed to allow discriminating Candy Buyers to choose their own assortment of highest quality candy products.

Since its establishment in 1913, the Company has opened more than 200 of the familiar black and white decorated shops across Canada, plus a select number of agencies selling packaged chocolates.

Over the years Laura Secord has earned the reputation for making and selling highest quality confections,produced in small batches to maintain a peak of freshness.

One of the widest known paperback series in Canada are published by COLES themselves. This series called COLES 'NOTES', in striking yellow and black covers are used by nearly 500,000 Canadian high school and university students every year. In addition they are sold in over 76 countries around the world. At the present time COLES have 62 stores, however, the store in Quinte Mall will be their first in the Belleville area.

COLES stores are bright and modern but have that old fashioned, friendly "browse around" feeling that makes shopping fun. In addition to a huge selection of Books, they carry Office and School Stationery, Art Supplies, Color Prints, Posters and Stamps for collectors, etc., etc., . . . in fact over 3000 different items.

Bata To Pioneer Newest Selling Trends

A bold new concept in store design combined with the very latest footwear retailing techniques will make Bata's newest store at Quinte Mall a national leader.

Bata has over 4,500 stores in many countries in the world, but they have chosen Belleville as an opportunity to introduce the latest concept in store design . . . after two previous successful attempts in Toronto (Yorkdale and Sherway Gardens).

The Quinte Mall store is wide open! Open front, permitting maximum close examination of all shoes on display - Bright colors set off the smart, functional furnishings, and the whole store is supported by effective and well balanced lighting - the results of lengthy study by leading European and American experts in store design.

The "straight lines" effective shows off a large display of shoes, thus complementing the retailing approach, in footwear, of "pre - selection" —Bata customers can reach for, feel and examine the styles which appeal to them.

However, expert attention, advice, and service will always be close at hand from the Manager and his trained sales personnel, in order to ensure complete satisfaction with every purchase made from Bata's newest store at Quinte Mall.

The Bata collection for Back to School and the Fall is outstanding and counts many exclusivities.

Children's safari boots, men's and boys' suede and leather casuals, ladies "trotteurs" from Canada and Europe, sophisticated "mini - mode" shoes for girls, dress boots for men and boys are the highlights of Bata's collection for the opening, and are sold at a very reasonable price.

Elk's Men's & Boys' Wear To Enter Market

The company's slogan "elk's suits you best for less" has been a byword for many families for the past 45 years. Mr. Sam Elkind, President, opened his first store 45 years ago and his only employee was his wife Sarah. Today, Mr. Elkind has over 375 employees, 37 stores with the addition of Quinte, and is serving 4th generation customers. Mr. Elkind has retained an active interest in the business, but leaves much of the legwork to his son Manny, who in turn has surrounded himself with progressive action - minded executives. All stores contain an in - depth stock of Men's Wear and their new concept of a shop within a shop for young men has been a tremendous success. Of course, Elk's also carry an excellent selection of Boys' Wear (8-16 years).

Special Economic Aid Bills Ready Says PM

Aid Is Backed By PC Head

VICTORIA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday he has no objection to the federal government's plan to provide help to industries affected by the American 10-per-cent surcharge on imports.

"I would stress, however, that this is no substitute for the repeal of that surtax, which should be our priority," he told a joint meeting of the men's Canadian Club and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Stanfield spoke shortly after Mr. Trudeau announced in Ottawa that the special measures—to apply in industries where unemployment has been or will be caused by the American surcharge on imports—will be made known when Parliament convenes Tuesday.

The government should also use the opening of Parliament, he said, "to tell the Canadian people what the economic forecast is for the coming year and to announce . . . plans . . . to get the economy moving again and to reduce unemployment in the months ahead."

On the final day of a four-day visit to British Columbia, Mr. Stanfield again said it is time Prime Minister Trudeau stopped using the United States as a scapegoat for the "continuing problems of the Canadian economy."

The drastic economic measures taken recently by the U.S., especially the 10-per-cent supplementary duty on imports, will certainly affect the Canadian economy, he said, but they are not to blame for the recession and mass unemployment.

In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Stanfield said it is more likely that a federal election will be called next year than this fall.

Throughout his trip, the theme of his speeches was "the incredible incompetence" of the federal government in the face of increasing economic problems.

He said the federal government should cut taxes in order to stimulate the economy. This, he added, would be a "declaration of faith in the power of the incentive system."

In his address Wednesday, he urged the government to adopt more aggressive foreign trade policies. China's recognition trade policies will prevent immediate expansion of trade with Canada, he said, and Canadians should concentrate their trading efforts on Japan and other countries.

Pine Point Folk Ready To Flee

PINE POINT, N.W.T. (CP) — The 1,500 residents of this community near the south shore of Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories were waiting early today for an order to evacuate in the face of a raging forest fire.

The evacuation signal was to be a blast on the town's fire siren and all car owners had filled their gas tanks Wednesday night in preparation for the evacuation.

The blaze, of undetermined origin and size, was within eight miles of the townsite about 1:30 a.m. MST today and visibility was down to about 100 yards because of smoke.

A few families, including that of Mr. and Mrs. William Howerton, evacuated Wednesday night.

"It's pretty hard to leave your home and just shut the door," Mrs. Howerton said in an interview.

House Holiday Ends Tuesday

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament plans to settle in for a long, chatty fall with income tax legislation.

But before that, starting Tuesday, it will deal with an economic emergency.

As soon as the Commons reconvenes Tuesday after a 68-day summer holiday, the government will introduce special measures designed to offset the "very serious setback"—Prime Minister Trudeau's description—to the economy created by the U.S. surtax on imports. About one-quarter of all Canadian exports are affected.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters Wednesday he hopes for quick approval of the special measures by the Opposition. Their nature will not be disclosed officially until the Commons meets.

Legislation to change the personal and corporation income tax system remains the government's first priority for the renewed parliamentary session once the emergency economic measures have been cleared away, Mr. Trudeau said.

Mr. Trudeau said, after Wednesday's cabinet meeting, the tax legislation remains imperative if millions of Canadians are to be exempted from income tax by Jan. 1, 1972.

Informants said the government is prepared to spend at least two months on the tax bill —it has not yet been tabled in the Commons—with only small breaks for other legislative items and days set aside for opposition parties can bring up other subjects.

But a two-months government estimate could easily turn into three months, or more.

A Conservative spokesman said his party has had chartered accountants looking at the tax bill and that they can make neither head nor tail of it.

The government wants to get the tax bill through all stages before it prorogues the current session and immediately starts a new one. The new one would carry on until the expected dissolution of the 28th Parliament for a 1972 general election.

Seldom has a government faced a reconvened Parliament with only one major item on the immediate legislative menu.

The tax bill will not be sent to a Commons committee but will be dealt with in the house by the entire House.

There is no way of knowing yet how many amendments the opposition intends to introduce. But they are expected to be numerous.

Surtax Has Little Effect Here

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The 10 per cent American surtax on imported goods will have small impact on local industries, a survey today revealed.

Of those Belleville industries that could be contacted, only three, Allied Chemicals, Northern Electric and Brooke Bond Foods, export to the United States. And all said their exports were only a small percentage of their production and the surtax will have minimal effect on their operations.

A spokesman for Allied Chemical said the company exports plastic film to the United States but "the surtax hasn't hurt us yet". He indicated that the effect locally would depend upon the market price for the product in the United States and whether or not sellers there absorbed the surtax.

Export make up a small percentage of the total output of Northern Electric's plant here, its manager, W. A. Thompson, said.

"It's too early to say what effect the tax will have. I suspect we will know more in a month's time," he said. "But the effect on our work here will be small."

At Brooke Bond Foods a spokesman said the surtax affects only dutiable items and it will have little influence on operations here. "We're not affected to any extent," he said.

30 Injured
Bombs Rock Belfast In Noontime Terror

BELFAST (CP) — Three explosions rocked downtown Belfast today, injuring at least 30 persons in five minutes of noontime terror.

Hysterical girls with blood-covered faces ran screaming from a shattered government office block and a clothing factory near city hall.

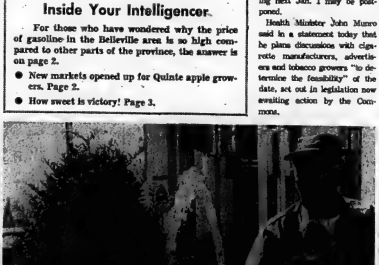
Others were injured by a bomb which shattered the front of the Glengall Street headquarters of Prime Minister Brian Faulkner's Ulster Unionist party.

Hospitals said every ambulance in the city was called into action. Most of the casualties were victims of flying glass.

All three blasts erupted after mid-day when the city centre was at its busiest.

Police and troops cordoned the area searching for more bombs.

Cigarette Ad Ban May Be Postponed



OTTAWA (CP) — The proposed ban on cigarette advertising next Jan. 1 may be postponed.

Health Minister John Munro said in a statement today that he plans discussions with cigarette manufacturers, advertisers and tobacco growers "to determine the feasibility" of the date, set out in legislation now awaiting action by the Commons.

Name Withheld--'I Don't Want to Die'

Respected Quebecer Said FLQ Director

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir quotes a government press officer as saying the co-ordination of FLQ terrorist activities during last October's kidnap crisis is a well-known and highly-respected Quebecer.

But the newspaper says Joseph Crumpt, press secretary for Solicitor-General Roy Fournier, would not divulge the man's name to reporters "because I do not want to die."

The newspaper says in a Quebec City story that Mr. Crumpt made the statement in an informal talk with three reporters "but with no restriction" about publishing the conversation.

The story says the co-ordinator of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec's activities last fall lives on the St. Lawrence south shore, south of Montreal, and was not disturbed by police during the crisis.

It also quotes Mr. Crumpt as saying:

—An important member of the FLQ's Chenier cell, which kidnapped Pierre Laporte, is still at large. Mr. Laporte, then Quebec labor minister, was later murdered by his abductors.

—The FLQ co-ordinator whom Mr. Crumpt would not name is the author of the FLQ manifesto, which was read on the CBC's French network at the crisis peak in response to a demand of the kidnappers.

Four members of the Chenier cell have been charged with kidnapping and murder. Two have been convicted of murder, while the other two await trial on murder charges.

Le Devoir says Mr. Crumpt spoke to journalists in Quebec City while Mr. Fournier was in Montreal.

Lynch and Heath Both Ask End to Border Crossings

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath will meet Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic on Monday and Tuesday and will ask him to help stop terrorists of the Irish Republican Army from crossing into Northern Ireland, informed sources said today.

Lynch in turn is expected to ask Heath to do something about British troops crossing the Irish border, something the Irish say has happened 30 times in the last two years. The British Army claims the border violations are accidental.

The meeting, announced Wednesday, had been set for October. It was moved up after a British patrol crossed into the republic last week and one of its soldiers was killed. Shots were fired at British soldiers Wednesday from the republic's side of the 260-mile border, but no one was hit.

The British cabinet was meeting today to go over proposals for discussion at the Lynch-Heath meeting. Some reports said Britain might consider a demand, backed by Lynch, for proportional representation for Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority in the all-Protestant Belfast government.

The plans to meet indicated that Heath and Lynch had cooled down after a furious exchange last week growing out of the killing that followed British internment of suspected IRA leaders in Northern Ireland.

First, Lynch warned Britain against trying to achieve "military solutions" in Northern Ireland, and promised support for a campaign of non-violent civil disobedience by Ulster's Catholics if British authorities didn't change their tactics.

Heath in reply accused Lynch of interfering in "affairs of the United Kingdom" that were none of his business. Lynch retorted it was his government's business because Irishmen were getting shot or imprisoned.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A broad band of cloud extends from northwestern Ontario southwards to Lake Erie this morning with showers and thunderstorms reported mostly in the northern regions. This activity will spread eastward today and as temperatures climb into the near 80s in the south some thundery weather could be expected this afternoon and evening. The warming trend will continue through Friday with some sunny breaks indicated.

Plant Opens New Markets for Apple Growers

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Quinte Fruit Growers' Ltd., formerly known as Northumberland Cold Storage, is expected to become this area's largest apple packing facility.

The new packing plant has been organized by Trenton-area growers Harold Bonter, Kenn James, Andrew Little, Dr. David Zimmerman and Osborne grower Walter Rutherford.

Members of the Quinte Apple Growers' Association yesterday touring the new packing plant, observed additions for storage of approximately 40,000 bushels of apples in two rooms, both with controlled atmosphere storage. Original storage room was provided for approximately 25,000 bushels.

Touring growers were told by Walter Rutherford a packing room measuring 80 feet by 220 feet is being built at Quinte Fruit Growers' Ltd. This is the first time packing facilities have been offered in this site and it is expected they will be in operation by mid-September.

Mr. Rutherford later said a Food Machines Corporation packing line has been purchased and will feature a water dump for bulk bins, waxing and can pack in baskets, poly bags, cellopacks or overwrap trays.

Mr. Rutherford noted, to date, seven apple growers in addition to the packing plant's five organizers, have decided to utilize available facilities.

All growers are being encouraged and Mr. Rutherford remarked, "We want as many as are interested."

He added the packing plant probably will employ about 25 persons and containers will be available to growers for apple storage.

He explained apples placed in cold storage are kept in a room where relative humidity is fairly high and the temperature near freezing.

In controlled atmosphere storage rooms a great deal of oxygen is taken from the air and specified levels of carbon dioxide and nitrogen are introduced. This alteration of the oxygen and carbon dioxide levels prevents the apple from breathing at its normal rate and it consequently matures more slowly.

Cold storage apples usually are sold from October to January, then apples in controlled atmosphere storage are offered for sale.

The Quinte area's new packing plant will supply large-demand markets which has been impossible in past years.

Small local packing plants have been able to sell to several of the smaller stores in this district but could not meet the demands of the larger chain stores.

Prince Edward County apple growers, in the past, have sent their crops either to the Prince Edward Fruit Growers' Co-operative, Picton, or Colbright Orchards, Colborne.

The Prince Edward co-operative can guarantee only the price for which the packer can sell his apples. The grower must rely on the best offer obtained for him by the co-operative's management.

The new packing plant planned for the Quinte area will not make an offer on apples by the bushel. Each interested grower owning preferred shares in Quinte will be paid specified number of bushels and will later be paid on a grade-out basis. The purchase of preferred shares owned by the grower will determine how many bushels of apples he can store.

Buyers sending trucks from long distances into the Quinte area must gauge their offers to growers accordingly. With the benefit of a packing plant, hopefully growers will now receive more value for their harvests.

Preferred shares in Quinte Fruit Growers' Ltd. are expected to cost $10 each, giving the grower the right to store 25 bushels at all times.

This share basis can be broken down to a charge of 50 cents per bushel. Growers also must pay an annual charge which covers refrigeration costs. The introduction of a packing plant in the Quinte district has offered a new dimension to the apple industry.

Mr. Rutherford said yesterday an official opening will be held when the plant becomes operational.

Prince Edward growers joining yesterday's tour also visited the Agriculture Canada Research Station, Harrow Orchards, Dr. David Zimmerman's orchard near Trenton and the Smithfield Research Station.

Walter Rutherford Explains Plant to Local Growers

High Local Gasoline Prices A Matter of Competition

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

It's the number of discount gas stations in any particular area that governs the retail price of gasoline.

And it is because of the relatively few discounters in the immediate Belleville area that motorists here pay anywhere up to eight or more cents more a gallon than their counterparts in, say, the Metropolitan Toronto area.

"Go down Ottawa way where there are two or three discounters for "regular" gas down around the 40 cents a gallon mark.

Even motorists at Peterborough and Lindsay, and to a lesser degree in Cobourg and Brighton have been enjoying lower gasoline prices than their counterparts at Belleville.

Here the price for "regular" brands remains a steady 52.9 cents, although a few discounters post signs as low as 47.9 cents a gallon.

In the words of a district sales representative for one of the major oil companies, the price for gasoline in the Kingston - Belleville area has remained "firm" in the past few years.

Officially the "tank" price for gasoline to retailers is set by the major oil firms according to zones.

The general rule is that the further the zone is from the refining stations, the higher the wholesale price of gasoline.

Belleville, for instance, is in what one district sales representative called Zone 4 stretching from west of Brighton to the Brockville area and north from Picton to Madoc and Campbellford.

Within each zone the wholesale price of gasoline is supposed to be close to the same figure for all retailers.

But if there is a large number of discounters in the area, the big oil companies make no secret of the fact that they protect their dealers by subsidies.

This means that retailers in the immediate area of the discount station could buy their gas at a lower wholesale price than would otherwise be the case.

But at the same time the retailer may be asked to absorb part of discount through a reduced markup on his sales.

"We try to protect our own dealers when there is a large amount of discount gas in the area," said one sales representative.

However, one major oil company distributor said his firm late in August had discontinued discounts to their own dealers and was charging a uniform price.

Depending on the area, the volume of gas handled and other circumstances, the retailers' markup on gasoline sales can range anywhere up to 8¼ and 9¼ cents a gallon.

At the same time the major oil companies say they don't control actual retail prices charged by their individual retailers.

In other words they don't tend to interfere if a retailer decides to accept a lower markup in an attempt to gain trade by charging under the going rate.

But it is a slightly different kettle of fish for the discounters, who apparently are controlled a bit more rigidly by their suppliers.

One discounter on Highway 2 west of the Belleville retail price — currently 47.9 cents or five cents under the going 52.9 cents rate — was dictated by the supplier.

"They tell us what to charge," was the comment.

Currently there are little more than half a dozen discount gas bars in the immediate city area.

Normally they are on the main highway entrances to the city and post their discount prices in large print for the benefit of passing motorists. In addition to the lower price a gallon, other sales gimmicks are often offered to attract customers.

It might come as a surprise to many motorists but they get their gas from the same sources as do the brand name retailers.

"Unfortunately they get it from the major oil companies — it is the only place they can get it," noted one distributor.

And the seemingly strange part of it all is that the major oil companies sell the gas to the discounters at a lower rate than to their own retailers.

Why do the major oil companies sell gasoline to the discounters?

Local oil company representatives say this is done as a means of disposing of surplus gasoline supplies.

Motorists again might ask the reason for surplus gasoline when all that would seem necessary to return stocks to an acceptable level would be to cut back on production and refining.

But it apparently is not quite all that simple.

Oil company men say that gasoline, like many other commodities, has a tendency to deteriorate and it cannot be stored indefinitely without loss of some of its octane rating. Storage for more than 18 months apparently is not recommended.

So when the big oil companies build up an oversupply of gas they sell their surplus to the discount operators in blocks of several million gallons or so.

So when a motorist stops at a discount station and says "fill 'er up" he never knows exactly what particular brand of gasoline they may be getting.

It may be a few months longer from refinery than if the brand name station had it but it will still be Shell, Imperial, Texaco or whatever.

So the number of gas discounters in the immediate area are not sufficient to lower the general market price.

But their number is gradually increasing and if the unbranded stations become sufficiently numerous, Belleville-area motorists may eventually get the same price break now enjoyed in the Toronto-Oshawa area.

Visiting Man's Body Recovered

BANCROFT (Staff) — Ontario Provincial Police divers have recovered the body of a Metropolitan Police constable who drowned in Wahnipitae Lake Monday evening while on vacation with his wife and family.

OPP scuba diver Constable Barry Munro of the Minden detachment, discovered the body of Constable Robert Latimer, 29, of Scarborough, at 10.40 a.m. yesterday.

The dead man and a companion, Gordon Graham of Toronto, were boating on the Ore Hill area lake when their outboard motor boat was swamped. Mr. Graham was unsuccessful in his attempts to rescue his friend.

Moore Appointed General Manager

TRENTON (Staff) — Quinte Fruit Growers' Ltd., has announced the appointment of Rick Moore as its general manager. Mr. Moore was formerly sales manager for British Columbia Tree Fruits Ltd. and sale sales promoter for all fresh apples in that province.

Plant manager will be William Tiefenbach, earlier in charge of apple packing in Penticton for a large Canadian grocery store chain.

Toronto Dailies Raise Milk Price

TORONTO (CP) — Three major Toronto dairies announced Wednesday increases in the price of milk by one cent a quart, following similar moves by several dairies in various Ontario centres.

Silverwood Dairies Ltd. raised the price of homogenized milk to 38 cents a quart, effective Wednesday, attributing the cause to increasing labor and production costs and pressure from wholesalers.

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board recently announced an increase in the wholesale buying price of milk by 30 cents a hundredweight, effective Wednesday.

Mental Hospital Change Planned

TORONTO (CP) — A plan to have regional boards take over the operation of Ontario's mental hospitals from the provincial government was revealed Wednesday by Health Minister R. H. Lawrence.

Mr. Lawrence said the boards, made up of citizens, would be responsible for administration and policy.

"We wouldn't do the detailment of health he directly responsible for them or run them," he said.

Mr. Lawrence was unable to say how long the changeover would take.

IN MEMORIAM

BRYCE — In memory of our son, Arnold Bryce, who died on August 30, 1965.

Sweet memories are all we have,
Dear Arnold,
Death tries to break, but all in vain,
For as long as life and memory last,
We'll keep you in our hearts.
The years may wipe out many things,
But they'll never wipe out memory.
The memory of those happy days,
We always will remember.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by mother, brother Jack and family and Art and Kenny.

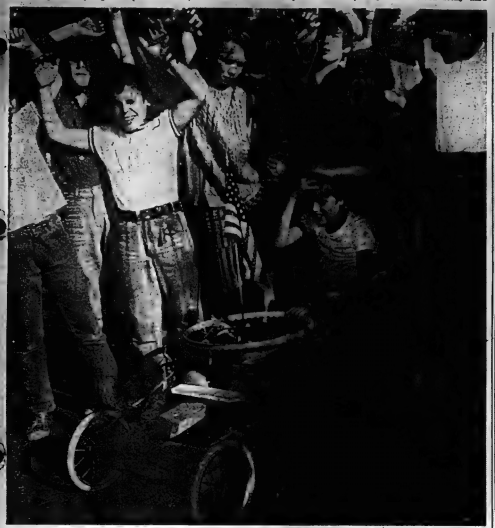
Soapbox Derby Victory Goes to Jim McPhee

It was a grand day for young Jim McPhee who rode to a convincing victory in the annual MacDonald Avenue Grand Prix Soapbox Championships held yesterday.

The 11-year-old youngster captured the maximum 30 points in three races he entered, finishing first each time and gained the coveted Tico Grand Prix Trophy. Sponsored by local residents, the competition was open to area boys ranging in age from 10 to 14 years.

Yesterday's perfect performance by Jim marked the first time that a grand champion had won all three compulsory races. Only one other competitor finished his three races without damage to his soapbox car, and that was runner-up Randy McKerracher, 12, riding in the Daredevil car.



"I knew I would win this year. I worked really hard on building my cart, using the best possible materials I could get, and using real good wheels. It just had to be the beamed during post-competition celebrations staged by friends and supporters.

Other top-ranked competitors were Sterling McPhee, the 14-year-old elder brother of the grand champion, who gained a total of 23 points, seven less than Randy, and Keith Thrasher, 12.

Young Keith met the most hard luck as he only finished one race, and just barely. Constant trouble with the front wheels. I just had to be the ed the racer throughout the best today," young Jim said.

The competition was held through efforts of many youngsters, among whom Allan Davis, 65; Pierre Pilon, 11; Leslie Bolton, 11; Kenny Thrasher, 14; Billy McPhee, 10; Bill Mondville, 15; Dean Stoliker, 9, Russell Smith, 14; and Dave Holloway, 9, performed essential services.

The Alemite Open Grand Prix Derby will close the racing season in two weeks, and promised to enter this last event. The Alemite derby will be open to all Belleville youngsters between 19 and 13 years old.

Hail the Conqueror!

A Better Way

The results of that drug survey among Belleville area young people are a sad commentary on our society. Some 40 per cent of more than 2,000 teenagers should interviewed were shown to be drug users and there is an interesting observation on this theme by Globe and Mail columnist Richard Needham; it expresses a thought we set down in this column a while ago and one which likely has occurred to others.

"I don't think anybody will deny," said columnist Needham recently, "that many or most high schools in Ontario are hotbeds of drug-pushing and of drug use. Yet the law of Ontario compels parents of teenage children to send them to high school until their 16th birthday compels them, in other words, to put their kids in the middle of the drug scene. I'd like to see some parent challenge this situation, perhaps in the courts. Isn't it a crime under Ontario law to expose a young person to moral and physical harm? Should parents be compelled to take part in this crime?"

What can be done then? For better or worse we are stuck with the schools and the collective society they engender. In addition to what is their main function of imparting knowledge, skills, ability to think and hopefully, prepare them for adult responsibilities and a useful place in the world.

It is the collective thing that can be the danger, where individuals may be corrupted by the whim of the group, by the specious rationale that this or that is the thing to do because everyone is doing it. The young person who can stand on his own feet, who has no need of the group as a crutch, either for their favor or dubious friendship; who chooses his own friends carefully for their worth and concern for a sound and honorable lifestyle, is the kind of person who should prevail. But those who go with the mob as it were must accept the fact that by abdicating personal responsibility their course of conduct may be compromised, with the sort of consequences we see today in the evidence of drug usage and the physical and psychological damage which can accompany it.

In the end the fittest survive, as always. Happily some may even come from that 40 per cent who discover a better way, but the chances are most of the success stories will be among the 60 per cent who already know life has better things to offer.

School Grants

Premier Davis has reiterated cogent arguments against extending provincial grants to Grades 11, 12 and 13 in Ontario's Roman Catholic high schools.

Briefly, they are that a system which is now paying out more than 40 per cent of the provincial budget on education cannot afford the extra funds that would be necessary, that to subsidize the separate schools would leave the door open to similar requests by other private schools and furthermore would fragment the present system "beyond recognition and repair. . ."

So now, on with the election. Premier Davis had promised to make a statement on the grants issue first; he has done so and there is a renewed speculation about mid October as the time for a vote.

Actually the government's decision against extending the grants had been anticipated, and all are agreed that it will be one of the major issues of the provincial election. However, the Opposition parties may be over a barrel, because on the one hand they favor grants to the separate schools while on the other they have blasted the government consistently on the high cost of education.

Air Saga

Today's air show at CFB Trenton is another reminder of the marvel of powered flight which we take so much for granted. As the planes fill the Quinte air space we look back to earlier days, to the first halting attempts to put a machine in the air — to Blériot and the Wright brothers, to the onward progress of flying and to men like Alcock and Brown and their first non-stop flight across the Atlantic, to Charles Lindbergh and British pioneer aviators Alan Cobham and Francis Chichester, (the same Chichester famed in more recent times for his solo voyage around the world), to Canadian John McCurdy and first world war fighter ace Roy Brown of Carleton Place who was credited with shooting down Baron von Richthofen, all magnificent men in their flying machines, as they are today if in a much more advanced and sophisticated era of flight.

Levelling Process

P.M. Plays Musical Chairs with Ministerial Deputies

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — Give Prime Ministers this much — some of them actually get around to doing what they promised to do.

And high on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's initial "must do" priority list — formally announced at one of his early postelection press conferences three years ago — was a shaking up of "The Club."

This is the continuing powerhouse of federal authority that does that actual running of annual $15 billion federal administration.

Just the biggest enterprise in the land by far.

The hands on the levers of power of his administrative minister which devise, collects and spends nearly 12 times as much in any one year as Alcan, Aluminium, Canada's largest industry, grosses in sales (last year, $1,367,853,000) are those of the members of "The Club," the 94 — at last official count — deputies and the chairmen of federal boards, commissions, corporations and agencies.

Too many of them pull the strings on which their ministers — and supposed political masters — are activated like puppets.

The "short-circuiting" of federal power was wrong, he said, and promised to right it.

He shook the kept, the deputies playing administrative musical chairs, moving from one department, commission, board and agency to another so quickly there's no time to build personal power structures and less time to become bored and barnacled.

In no department has he played a faster chair-changing tune than in External Affairs, that citadel of the Very Proper Public Servant.

Pierre Trudeau, who, in his political preparatory years, did a tour of federal duty in the East Block, could scarcely have helped getting a closeup of the social graces of the diplomats at work.

There is the tea hour. And there was the cocktail hour — yes, during the so-called working day — for the departmental elite when martinis, served from ice-water beaded silver shakers, were sipped.

You never actually "retire" vulgar word — for External. Instead, you were "in" THE departments.

And in none of the 24 departments, boards, commissions, crown corporations or agencies was the pecking order more revered as almost a sacred rite.

They guarded their perquisites and privileges — many as cash - in - the - bankable — and their accident of promotion to their High Places, the ambassadorships at Washington and Paris, and the most prestigious of all, London, with their very career lives.

Ahh! By fuel it oh, so very very good, for wasn't their leader and protector - of - privileged position, Lester Bowles Pearson, for years the lord of the diplomatic manor and for six years Prime Minister.

Then along came Pierre. And their world began collapsing around the tea-and-crumpet set.

One after another the Prime Minister picked off their bright boys, putting them to the crude, uncultured world of the "ordinary" Government department.

That was chaos enough.

But now the unspeakable has happened.

To the top appointment in London, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, the unfeeling Prime Minister has dispatched the senior executive of Industry, Trade and Commerce, the despised and hated departmental rival, even in the hallowed halls of the Gentlemen of External.

You see, the Very Proper Persons of External assign to diplomacy, Industry, Trade and Commerce people are "mere salesmen, peddlers." Minches from Defence are only to be tolerated with difficulty. Means no difference that all three levels must rub Rosie in the same overseas missions.

So now Jack Hamilton "Jake" Warren, blithe spirit and a very fine horse and away - type guy who would look like a tailor's dummy in striped pants and a cutaway coat, has come over from the vulgar "Trade" to plush the topmost plum in External's tree.

Jake Warren, as Assistant Trade Deputy, was taken as Man Friday by former Prime Minister Diefenbaker to the Nassau conference, on western defence, to the Bermuda Conference with John Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan.

So what, you ask? So a little incident there will give you a clue as to the "Sacred Cows" of Jake Warren in London.

Dief was having a press conference prepared for him, and Victoria Hotel, the RAF insignia in color glamouring beneath the lights under the crescent water.

"Is it true," asked a parliamentary reporter from Windsor, "that John Kennedy hated your guts?"

It was, of course, true, as Mrs. Malcolm (nee Jean) Sharp, aged, all but tumbled backward into the pool.

But Jake wouldn't have objected if his listeners jumped to that conclusion.

The American dollar, like the British pound, the German mark and the French franc in other situations was under pressure because of economic realities. There was nothing artificial about the dollar. It was not brought on by manipulators.

Every businessman who buys and sells commodity or stocks is a speculator. He speculates on the best timing for his transactions, on the relative levels of international currencies, on prices. Thousands of such persons reached the same decision about the U.S. dollar and the U.S. economy at the same time. They are not all geniuses, not all evil.

"Of course we're not upset about your surcharge, Dick — oh by the way, we're sending your Bomarcs back!"

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sept. 1, 1911 . . .

One of the most remarkable feats of seamanship in history ended 67 years ago today — in 1904 — when Captain J. C. Voss of Victoria arrived in England after circumnavigating the world in an Indian dugout canoe. Voss took three years, three months and 13 days to cover 40,000 miles in the 26-foot craft for which he paid $75. It had been carved 50 years previously by a Nootka Indian with axe and flint on the west coast of Vancouver Island. The canoe carried no sail, only a motor but sailed under three masts, carrying 224 square feet of canvas. Voss died in 1922 in California.

Wild Life Protection

Almonte Gazette

Again last month there was a case of some fishermen near Kazabazaing spotting a one to two week old moose lying on the side of the road. Without checking to see if the mother was around, they brought the young bull into town for attention. While the Department of Lands and Forests has been required to care for young animals on other occasions, moose out-patient treatment is probably a rarity for most hospitals. Since this young moose was in a very exhausted condition, he was transported to the Experimental Farm where the farm's veterinarian tried to keep him alive, but without success. Next day the moose died.

Publication of this humane incident even should not be construed as a department sanction for removing wild animals or birds from their natural habitat. This event is a most unusual case, in fact it is suspected that the mother of the animal might have left her baby in search of food.

A knowledgeable sportsman is aware that: wild animals and birds seldom abandon their young; by removing these "babies" from the forest you are depriving them of their home and maternal care; you subject yourself to injury through attacks by parents; you are breaking the law which prohibits the taking of animals and birds except under the terms and conditions as set out by the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council.

Again, the story we have relayed is an isolated instance and rather than see it start a rash of removals of young from the bush, we ask you to be a good conservationist by leaving animals and birds where they belong — in the forest with their parents — undisturbed.

For Homesick Briton

Those Speculators

Ottawa Farmn

Who are these "international money speculators" who President Nixon said have been waging an all-out war on the American dollar? he asked.

The President evoked was of a group of evil financial geniuses (those mysterious "gnomes of Zurich?") deciding among themselves which currency they would bring under attack this week.

International money speculators make good targets, they are conveniently - anonymous. They are parasites: much easier to attack than the investors or the buyers and sellers of goods whose motives, of course, are all altruistic!

Perhaps there are some real people who put down their occupation as "international money speculator," But there are not enough of them to weaken the American dollar.

President Nixon didn't really say that speculators were the cause of the monetary crisis. But he wouldn't have objected if his listeners jumped to that conclusion.

The American dollar, like the British pound, the German mark and the French franc in other situations was under pressure because of economic realities. There was nothing artificial about the dollar. It was not brought on by manipulators.

Every businessman who buys and sells commodity or stocks is a speculator. He speculates on the best timing for his transactions, on the relative levels of international currencies, on prices. Thousands of such persons reached the same decision about the U.S. dollar and the U.S. economy at the same time. They are not all geniuses, not all evil.

Historical Coincidence

Letter in Birmingham (U.K.) Sunday Mercury

My wife and I have just returned from a visit to our son in New Zealand, and en route one evening we had a quiz program. This coincidence was, mentioned:

Both John F. Kennedy and Abraham Lincoln were concerned with civil rights.

Lincoln was elected President in 1860, Kennedy in 1960.

Both Kennedy and Lincoln were killed on a Friday in the presence of their wives.

Both were shot in the head.

John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln's assassin was born in 1839.

Lee Harvey Oswald, Kennedy's assassin was born in 1988.

Both assassins were Southerners favoring unpopular ideas.

Both were shot before being brought to trial.

Andrew Johnson was born in 1808.

Lyndon Johnson was born in 1908.

Both were Southern Democrats of humble origin.

Lincoln's secretary, whose name was Kennedy, advised him against going to the theatre that day.

Kennedy's secretary, whose name was Lincoln, advised him against going to Dallas that day.

Compost Refuse Useful

News from South Africa

Delivering a paper at the 85th annual congress of the South African Association for the Advancement of Science, Mr. J. M. Fourie, Chief Research Officer of the National Institute for Water Research, said the re-use of municipal refuse in the form of compost as against disposing of such refuse, appears to be an ideal method for South Africa.

In the western Cape there were four installations in operation producing compost from municipal refuse. They were unique in the world in so far as all of them could be run as potentially independent economic units. This was due to the fact that there was a ready demand from farmers for all the compost produced at an agreed price of $7.70 a ton. Farmers were taking every ton of municipal compost made available to them and the potential demand far exceeded the supply.

Wanted for Export: One Ghost

Winnipeg Free - Press

Are ghosts exportable? According to an official in Canterbury, England, no. Replying to a letter from South Africa asking for a ghost to help relieve the homesickness of an uprooted Briton in Johannesburg, the Canterbury official could only express regret. Canterbury ghosts, he wrote, were not only ethereal (and therefore hard to contact) they seemed to have an affinity for their usual haunts.

The correspondence calls to mind a motion picture of several decades ago, starring the late Robert Donat — The Ghost Goes West. In this case the ghost haunted a castle in Scotland which had been bought by an American, from proverbial Yankee flair, the American decided to tear down the castle and ship it, stone by stone, across the Atlantic. But when he reassembled the castle he discovered the ghost had come with it. Like the Canterbury ghosts, it had an affinity for its usual haunts, even when they were shipped to another continent.

Perhaps the South African who is interested in helping his homesick friend; by providing her with an English ghost should try again — although a Canterbury ghost, provided with the building he happens to haunt, might prove rather expensive; and there would be further difficulty that Canterbury officialdom might decide that the ghost's habitat, as much as the ghost, was non-exportable.

Horse Show Now Has Permanent Facilities

A preview of horse shows combining English and Western categories that in years to come will help raise funds for local charities will be staged this Sunday a half mile east of Elmwood Drive on Highway 2.

Sponsored by the non-profit Quinte Western Horse Association, Sunday's presentation will list riders from Kingston to Port Hope as well as those from the Quinte district who will compete for cash prizes and ribbons in 29 classes. The "open" show will include both men and women in addition to youngsters riding in pony classes.

On land donated by Dr. Jack Hart on the south side of the highway just before the Point Anne road, members of the association have been working this week preparing the site for what is hoped to be the beginning of future shows to help raise funds for such charities as crippled children, church groups and service clubs.

"All admission fees will be directly funnelled into supporting local charities after expenses. This Sunday, the show will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and we'll charge only 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for youngsters 14 years old and under," Robert Burrell president of the horse association, stated.

The 150 - member association, which has been in operation for nine years, has invited one of Ontario's top judges from St. Catharines to oversee the competition. Peter Cameron will act as final arbitrator for Sunday.

The youngest competitor will be eight years old in the pony classes and one of the youngest riders, 11 - year - old Michael MacDonald of Belleville, will compete in the charlot races.

"He's one of the best riders in the district, and he'll be a treat for all. I would think local boys will root for him over the adults," Mr. Burrell added.

In the morning, the program will consist primarily of line shows when horse handlers will parade their steeds without halters in all classes.

The afternoon session will list chariot racing, pony and horse class competitions and horse games.

"Among the 11 or 12 games we have lined up are such crowd - pleasing games as pole-bending and bell racing," Mr. Burrell explained.

If the preview show is successful, the association will plan similar shows next year, starting slowly with two planned. In later years, plans will depend heavily on how local residents respond to them.

"We're not out to make money for ourselves. We will combine both fun and games along with competition in order to help local groups in need of public support," Mr. Burrell stated.

The site will probably resemble a makeshift effort for some of the public, but the association promises that the area will become a permanent place, and the work done this week by volunteers will hopefully prove worthwhile.

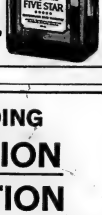
"While it's only a preview, the entertainment to be offered will be top-rated, and the public will certainly enjoy themselves," Mr. Burrell stated.

Dianne Goes For Top Spot

Miss Dianne Gunning, of Tweed, who for the past year has reigned as Ontario Dairy Princess will be a competitor in the Canadian Dairy Princess competition to be held at the Canadian National Exhibition tomorrow (Sept. 3).

Her successor as Ontario Dairy-Princess will be crowned at the CNE this evening.

Susan Ray, 18, of Roslin, new Hastings county dairy princess was out in her preliminary competition last week but failed to place in last night's semi-finals.



"There's always another year," said Miss Ray from her Roslin home this morning.

Permanent Track Nears Completion

Several members of Quinte Western Horse Association are seen building outside track fence on site of horse show presentation for this Sunday. Previous show of future charity shows will be staged a half mile east of Elmwood Drive on Highway 2. Program is scheduled to run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

R. C. Bishop Orders High School Study

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Bishop G. Emmett Carter of the London Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church said Wednesday study councils will be set up to study the future of separate high schools in the diocese.

Bishop Carter's comment followed a decision by the provincial government to extend aid to separate schools beyond Grade 10.

Separate high schools in the diocese include two in Windsor, and one each in Sarnia, St. Thomas and Tecumseh, a Windsor suburb. They all had deficits last year, he said, some of them losing as much as $100,000.

He said any decision on the future of the schools will have to be made by "the people" but warned that if parishioners can't pay increased fees to meet deficits, the schools may have to be closed and sold to the public system.

A decision is expected before September, 1972.

Earlier, the chairman of St. Patrick's Senior Secondary School in Sarnia, said the school may be forced to close before the 1972-73 academic year if the directors could not pay off a $180,000 deficit in operating expenses.

Lewis Gelinas said the school would be open this year "because we have a commitment to the students and the teachers who have been contracted for this year."

But next year "could be a different matter," he said.

Doctors Say Audit May Reveal Secrets

TORONTO (CP) — Secret visits by one member of a family to a doctor could be revealed to others in the household if doctors' accounts are audited, an Ontario Medical Association official suggests.

Dr. Glenn Sawyer, general secretary, writing in the Ontario Medical Review, says family upheavals could result if the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan asks for confirmation of medical services received by some members of a family when the services are unknown to others.

He cited as examples of potential family trouble a daughter who has been to a gynecologist, a son to a drug clinic, the mother to a psychiatrist or the father to a urologist—"and none of them wanted the other members of the family to know about it."

Dr. Sawyer said one way a doctor can protect his patient's privacy is to ask him if he wants OHSIP to pay the account. This will solve the problem for the patient, who can pay himself.

No Warrant Out For Diplomat

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no warrant of arrest or any charge outstanding against A. E. Ritchie, external affairs under-secretary of state, the United States Embassy said Wednesday.

The Embassy said it issued a statement to clarify what it called an incomplete report of an incident involving Mr. Ritchie last Friday at Fort Fairfield, Me., when his sister was charged with speeding.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said a representative of the police chief at Fort Fairfield had appeared in court and had asked the judge not to issue a warrant of arrest. The representative had requested the case be closed.

Invasion of Privacy Threat to Young

TORONTO (CP) — George Springate, Liberal member of the Quebec National Assembly for Ste. Anne, said Wednesday invasion of privacy is the greatest threat to the young.

Mr. Springate told a Canadian National Exhibition luncheon that the federal government may be creating a Canadian version of the United States' Central Intelligence Agency with its solicitor-general's elite investigation corps.

Mr. Springate, who retired Tuesday night as place-kicker with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, also said the solicitor-general had "better explain this thing a lot better."

He was referring to plans for a small "elite force" to investigate suspected subversives.

Ten Canadians to Probe War Measures Effects

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten Canadians plan to hold public hearings across Canada on the effects of the War Measures Act, starting here Oct. 12, two days after the anniversary of the kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, murdered Quebec labor minister.

Fernand Daoust, group spokesman and secretary-general of the Quebec Federation of Labor, said Wednesday the group will accept briefs from anyone.

The inquiry will be under the chairmanship of Woodrow Lloyd, former premier of Saskatchewan.

Laurier Lapierre, a McGill University professor, told a news conference the group will study the WMA, how and why it was applied during last fall's kidnap crisis, the legislation's effects on human rights and civil liberties, and assess the role of the government, citizens and the media during the crisis.

He said the inquiry will also study the WMA's successor, the Public Order (Temporary Measures Act) 1970, which expired April 30, and the nature of Canadian federalism during the crisis.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

Canadians Among Top Pipe Buyers

LONDON (CP) — Canadians are among his best customers; Scots among the poorest. The product? Bagpipes.

Glasgow manufacturer Arthur Leavrie says he is astounded by the rising Canadian and United States demand for his pipes as well as kilts, sporrans, dirks and all the other paraphernalia usually associated with Scottish tribal pursuits.

"The Canadian market especially has shot up in the last five years, with sales of pipes tripling in that period," the 52-year-old company chairman said in an interview.

"There appears to be no end to the enthusiasts, especially in Nova Scotia, Ontario and British Columbia."

Leavrie, the biggest pipe manufacturer in Scotland, estimates 90 per cent of his trade is with North America. Only one per cent of his orders come from Scotland.

"People here (in Scotland) would never dream of buying new," he explains. "A good bagpipe will last indefinitely."

Sociologist Says Hippies Fading

GUELPH (CP) — Hippies will soon disappear because their dream society was too much to accomplish, sociologist Kenneth Westhues said Wednesday.

Mr. Westhues, a professor at the University of Guelph, has just completed a study of the hippie movement in Canada and the reasons why young people are using drugs.

He said 1972 is an appropriate time to begin discussing hippiedom's history "because the movement has now gone about as far as it will go."

"The fashion in which the movement has matured is less than we hoped for five years ago, and veterans of the movement cannot help but be a little sad."

Mr. Westhues also said, "the drug use that has reached such stupendous proportions in high schools all across North America symbolizes the alienation of high school students and their sharing in at least parts of the hippie ethnic.

Action Canada To Seek Votes

HAMILTON (CP) — Paul Hellyer said Wednesday Action Canada, will run candidates in the next federal election.

Mr. Hellyer, speaking at a news conference, said the members of the new political movement voted more than 2 to 1 in favor of sponsoring candidates in the next federal election. He said the movement will hold its first national convention in Toronto Oct. 1-3.

"And in the space of three weeks we have already formed 14 riding associations in British Columbia as well as a number in the other provinces."

He said he was not in a position to name candidates.

Mr. Hellyer, an Independent Liberal MP, formed the movement last May after quitting the federal Liberal party caucus.

Surgery on Nose His Own Decision

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is 25 years old, a college graduate and presently employed in a large, top-notch firm.

ANN LANDERS

Several weeks ago Mendel became engaged to a girl he met while on vacation last year. She lives in another city but they have been together every weekend for the past several months. (Usually she comes here.)

Yesterday Mendel told me he is going to have "rhinoplasty." I didn't know what he was talking about until he explained that he plans to see a plastic surgeon about getting his nose shortened. I asked him how come he suddenly decided his nose was too long, seeing as how he had done rather well with it, (Phi Beta Kappa and a Fulbright scholarship). His answer was what I had suspected. "Phyllis wants me to."

Does a woman have the right to ask a man to do this crazy thing? Mendel is a wonderful looking boy. You wouldn't know he had a nose if you didn't see him from the side. I'm afraid he will ruin his looks altogether. Should I call Phyllis and tell her to keep her hands off Mendel's nose? — WHITE PLAINS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: No. This is between Mendel and Phyllis. A 25 year-old ought to know what he's doing. If he makes a mistake he'll have a reminder in the middle of his face for the rest of his life. This decision, however, must be his.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Most of your advice is sound but now and then you see only one side of a problem and that's when you run into trouble. For example, I didn't like your advice to the woman who had taken a rich cousin into her home and then complained because the cousin paid her only $50 a month for room and board.

What is "rich?" Forty years ago an aunt of mine who had inherited $50,000 was considered rich. Today all wonderful why she didn't take expensive trips, buy fine clothes and give fancy presents.

"Auntie" was conservative with her money. We thought she was tight. She said she was saving for her old age. She was right. They had no Social Security in those days.

Today a person who has $50,000 is not rich. That sum. Invested at 6% interest, yields $250 a month, which is not a great deal of money when one considers the high cost of living and the inflationary pattern of our economy.

If the woman who wrote feels her "rich" relative is not paying enough for room and board she should say so and not write to Ann Landers. — SAME BOAT

DEAR BOAT: Why shouldn't she write to Ann Landers? You did. And I'm glad. Your advice to "Auntie" was precisely the same advice I gave her. You write rather well. How come you can't really?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son called yesterday to say he is coming home for a week. He wants to bring a young lady for him and his girl at a nearby motel. He added, "Please get a room with a large bed. We don't like twin beds." I told him I did not approve of his "new generation" arrangements and to make his own reservations. His voice became brittle, (as it always does when he becomes irritated) and he replied, "I am 23 years old and I don't need your approval. All I am asking you to do is make the call. Will you?" I said, "No. I will not." Was I wrong? — NORTH PLATTE MOM.

DEAR MOM: Your son had no business asking you to make that call. Had you done so you would have been condoning the sleeping arrangement — which is what he was after. You out-fazed him, Dell.

Try This Colorful Vegetable Plate

By MARY MOORE

One slim little woman with one baby in her shopping cart adn three older children trailing along, stopped at the egg counter and asked the stock-er medium-size eggs at 33 cents per dozen. I wondered how she would use so many.

To demonstrate how I dou. eggs at 33 cents per dozen could be used to a major advantage I bought some too and made six picturesque vegetable plates.

SIX BUDGET PICTURE PLATES (Serves 6)

12 med. eggs, hard - cooked
6 slices whole wheat toast, buttered and cut in halves
6 tbsps. margarine
6 tbsps. flour
1½ tsps. salt
1½ tsps. (or less) curry powder
3 cups skim or 2 per cent milk
12 small potatoes
6 large carrots
1 lb. green beans
(If desired, to prevent cracking, prick large end of eggs with thumb tack.) Put eggs in large pot, cover with hot water, bring to boil covered and reduce heat to simmer (or turn off heat if electric) for 12 min. Drain. Keep warm.

Scrub and cook unpared potatoes. Scrape carrots and cut in thin crosswise and cut these halves into thin strips. Wash and snip blossom ends off of beans. Separate and cut in halves crosswise.

Make Curry Sauce by melting margarine. Remove from heat, stir in flour, salt and curry powder, then stirring in milk until thick. Keep hot.

At serving time line up six preheated dinner plates. Place two toast halves, end to end, at centre of plate. Peel and cut warm hard-cooked eggs into 4 wedges each. Arrange 8, like little boats alongside each other, across entire length of toast platform. At right hand front and left hand back arrange ½ bundle of carrot strips neatly. At right hand back and left hand front arrange a neat bundle of green bean strips. Separate each bundle of vegetables with one small potato in at the joint of the toast halves on both sides.

Now pour 1-3 to ½ cup curry sauce in a long golden ribbon over all of the egg wedges and toast. Serve at once.

The main course of this meal cost about $1 for six.

NOTES: 1) If you run out of burners you can cook the carrots and beans together int the bottom of double boiler and make sauce over them in top of double boiler. 2) In winter you could substitute small boiled potatoes for the small boiled potatoes.

Quick Treatment Is Essential for Venereal Disease

By DORIS CLARK

A large poster on a Canadian university campus reads, "Venereal disease is on the increase and must be treated quickly.

"If you suspect you have VD, see a doctor."

"Go to the student health service, the health department, or your family physician."

Then along the bottom of the poster: "Immediate treatment is essential for your health, and that of others."

A large sketch in the centre of the poster shows Cupid drawing his bow and about to shoot an arrow. However, behind the smiling face of Cupid is the shadowed face of the devil. You draw your own conclusions.

Is a recent bulletin of WHO we read this:

"There is little doubt that the upswing in incidence of VD, despite known methods for control and treatment, is attributable to modern life styles — to industrialization, and to urbanization, but also to society's more tolerant attitudes toward sex. 'A climate of opinion has developed favoring sexual activities,' is how Dr. Guthe put it.

"It is evident there is an increase in sexual activity, among younger age groups, and in the number of their contacts, and that this increase is conditioned by psychological, educational, social and cultural factors in the environment which encourages engaging in promiscuous sexual activities should do so knowing the cost — and the threat to their own health.

VD can damage the body's vital centres, the heart and central nervous system. Result may be mental illness, paralysis, crippling and blindness. Sex organs may be damaged and even sterility may result.

Dear Doris: Please send us your leaflet on Golden Anniversaries. My parents are celebrating theirs.

Also, let me know if the daughters and sons wear corsages, and who are in the receiving line. Is it necessary to have tea pourers? — Just Mary.

Dear Mary: The only ones to be decorated with flowers are those being honored — the bride and groom of 50 years ago.

There is no formal receiving line. Daughters, sons and in-laws may greet the callers and lead them to where the Happy Couple is seated — I hope. You might seat a guest beside the 50 - year bride or groom for a short conversation; then with a little diplomacy encourage said guest to pave away — perhaps to the refreshment table — when someone else is brought over for a greeting.

Tea pourers are a happy thought, and an honor. Is there an original bridesmaid available, or a sister of the bride who would enjoy doing this?

Confidential to Anxious: It's fine for a girl to smile and say Hello first to a young man she's attracted to. After that, the moves are up to him. If the attraction is mutual, he'll move.

And look: You ask for an answer in a hurry, then spoil your own chances by failing to sign your letter or give me an address to which I could promptly mail a private reply. This message to you is being written five weeks before it can possibly appear in your paper.

• • •

(Have you asked Doris about your dilemma? Perhaps she can suggest a Canadian resource that will help.)

Air Price War Still Possible

MONTREAL (CP) — An open-rate situation affecting 40 world airlines is still up in the air following a decision Wednesday to give Lufthansa two more weeks to withdraw its sole veto of the proposed North Atlantic price schedule.

If the West German carrier still has not changed its negative vote by Sept. 15, airlines will be free to set their own prices Feb. 1, 1972, when the current agreement expires.

Originally, Lufthansa had until Wednesday, Sept. 1, to withdraw its veto.

But the International Air Transport Association, under pressure from several members anxious to avoid the competitive open-rate situation, announced just hours before the deadline that Lufthansa would be granted an additional 15 days to reconsider.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously Wednesday that IATA had decided not to give the airline any extension of the deadline. The confusion stemmed from IATA's position that no deadline could be officially announced until member airlines had given their approval to do so.

The go-ahead came early Wednesday and the extension was formally announced.

Lufthansa said it did not oppose cheaper fares but maintained the current system of several types of group excursion rates was confusing to the passenger.

Sources close to the airline industry, while declining to comment officially, believe the 15-day extension will not affect Lufthansa's veto.

The West German carrier announced in August that "in case it comes to an open-rate situation, as looks possible, Lufthansa will offer its own tariffs which will mean an all-round simplification and reduction."

Its plans include a 14-to-60-day excursion fare of about $216 return between New York and Frankfurt, compared with $442 now for a 17-to-28-day ticket and $772 for 29 to 45 days.

Air Canada, BOAC, Trans World Airlines and Pan-American Airways have all indicated their intention to match or counter Lufthansa's proposed fares.

Treasury Bills Will Be Sold

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will raise up to $150 million by offering 91-day treasury bills of $25 million to be auctioned on Tuesdays, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Wednesday night.

He told investment dealers and bankers the bills will be issued in denominations of $25,000, $100,000 and $500,000.

David Holmes, Ontario comptroller of finance, told the group consideration is being given to offering six-month bills if there is a demand.

The minimum tender will be $1 million at any one price, Mr. Holmes said, and called for tenders at the meeting.

Davis Helps Open Election Office

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis officially opened a local Progressive Conservative candidate's campaign headquarters Wednesday night for an election that he has yet to call.

Mr. Davis, who helped Morley Kells launch his campaign in Lakeshore riding, said there will be an election and "we're going to win it."

Mr. Kells is using a service station ready for demolition for his headquarters and Mr. Davis told the 125 guests on hand:

The premier then left and moved on to the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand.

There he presented the rock group, Lighthouse, with a gold record. He gave Skip Prokop the award for outstanding record sales and in return was given a T-shirt—with the Lighthouse inscribed on the front.

And to the delight of the crowd Mr. Davis put it on over his shirt and tie and walked away, smiling.

Plot to Rescue Greek Prisoner Said Uncovered

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government says four persons, including the Greek widow of the discoverer of penicillin and two Americans, have admitted plotting to rescue a Greek serving a life sentence for trying to assassinate Premier George Papadopoulos in 1968.

Government spokesman Byron Stamatopoulos told a news conference all four had made statements "incriminating themselves and confirming the escape plan."

He said they were arrested early Tuesday as they approached the suburban prison housing Alexander Panagoulis. Panagoulis, 32, was condemned to death in November, 1968, for an attempt three months earlier to kill Greece's military premier, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment following protests from abroad.

Stamatopoulos said the four would be tried by a military court following a brief investigation. The maximum sentence possible is five years' imprisonment.

The spokesman said the government learned of the escape plan by intercepting correspondence between Panagoulis and his brother, who came to Athens recently from Rome. He said Panagoulis planned to drug his guard with sleeping pills in a soft drink and then escape in the darkness over the fence of the military police training centre where he was held. Lady Fleming was to drive the getaway car, Stamatopoulos said.

He said Panagoulis tried to insure the plan by bribing a guard, but the guard tipped off the authorities who set a trap for the four alleged conspirators.

Panagoulis escaped from prison in June, 1969, but was caught in an Athens apartment four days later. He tried to commit suicide last year by setting fire to a mattress in his cell, authorities said.

Lady Fleming, daughter of an Athenian doctor, was Sir Alexander's second wife. She married him in 1928, but he died two years later at the age of 73 and she returned to Athens to live.

Stamatopoulos said Skelton is an "anarchist who expressed himself strongly against U.S. policy." His sister, Sandy Ramsey, 29, said in Bellevue, Wash., that her brother had been working in Greece almost two years in an international church program and planned to go next month to Geneva for six months of study before returning to the United States.

Carbide Takes Grip On Industrial Title

Union Carbide are on the threshold of another Industrial Softball League Championship and Ned Johnson has the formidable task of closing the door on them.

Defending league champion Union Carbide took a commanding three games to one lead over Meads Wednesday night by virtue of a 10-3 win leaving the losers with the unlikely problem of winning three games in a row.

Ken Osborne picked up the win for the Bakelite allowing six hits while fanning four and walking three. Cliff Hinsman had the big bat for the winners smashing a two run homer and two singles. Bob Salkowitz had a solo blast in the Carbides three run third while Jack Hughes and Gary Little each had doubles.

Sonny Holloway was touched for 10 hits on the Meads mound. He struck out four and walked two. Ken Lessels recalled Meads hottest hitter by pounding out three singles. Rick Hay had a triple and Bish Young a double for the losers.

Fifth game in the best of seven series will be Friday night in an 8:15 contest at the Alemite.

KEN OSBORNE.

'Hut One, Hut Two'....

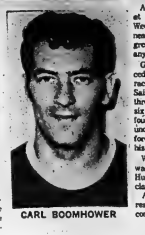
No. Brewers Mills catcher Jim Clyde isn't trying a football-type snap with the softball (near right foot) in fourth-inning OASA Intermediate action at the Alemite last night. The visiting receiver had the ball knocked from his grasp as Rollins' shortstop Paul Goodfellow slides in safely with his team's first run. The Belleville club came from behind to take a 3-2 victory in the third and deciding game of the series.

Rollins Accomplish Big OASA 'Undertaking'

Just call them the Mortician and the Gravedigger, although they sign the Rollins scores card as Carl Boomhower and Jerry Hill.

When Brewers Mills decided to roll over and play dead for a brief spell in the game in the third and deciding game of their OASA Intermediate "A" series played at the Alemite last night, Boomhower promptly slammed the lid on their casket with a screaming single down the right field line to drive in the tying and winning runs in a 3-2 Rollins victory.

Any thought of a resurrection by the losers were put to rest in the bottom of the ninth inning when Hill turned in a heads-up fielding play to officially bury Brewers Mills.



The visitors carried a 2-1 lead into the seventh inning, but managed to play themselves into trouble when catcher Jim Clyde missed a swinging third strike by Ralph Plane and batterymate Phil Litchfield mis-played Wes May's sacrifice attempt to put men on first and second. Dale Akey went in to run for May and both players collected on a sacrifice by pitcher Wayne McConnell. Litchfield then disposed of Rollins' batter Steve Ling on a called third strike before Boomhower smacked one of his deliveries into right field for the winning tallies. It was only the third hit of the game off the Brewers Mills ace, and the lone solid connection that the Belleville batsmen could make.

In their final at-bats Brewers Mills, who were designated as the home team, saw lead-off man Jim Clyde single off McConnell. The runner was erased on the next play, however, as Hill took the throw to first on a sacrifice bunt attempt and made a snappy relay to shortstop Paul Goodfellow to nail Clyde rounding second for a double play. McConnell then got this final batter on a ground ball to give Rollins the series.

The Belleville hurler got his drop-ball working after a shaky start to check the losers on six hits recording eight strikeouts and issuing two walks. Litchfield lost a three-hitter, sending 11 men down on strikes and walking only one batter.

Ernie Tuck Has 'Soule'

When you've got 'Soule' chances are that a city championship will soon be in store!

Such is the case of Ernie Tuck Appliances who captured the city finals of the Belleville Minor Softball squirt play-offs Wednesday night behind the two hit pitching of Tim Soule. The 6-0 victory over Stephan - Licence marked the third year in succession that Soule has been on a city championship team.

Soule struck out 20 batters and issued only one walk and that one intentionally in going the route for the winners. Allan Brock's triple in the first inning drove in two runs for the Steelers giving them the lead they never lost. Brooks tripled again in the fourth inning to knock in two more runs and then Mark Wardle homered in the seventh for the final run.

Rod Begley fanned five and allowed nine hits in taking the loss for Stephan-Licence. Begley's single and Allan MacQuarrie's double were the only hits the East Hill champions could manage.

Lengthy OBA Weekend Kinsmen Juniors Have

Monday's holiday means a long weekend for most people and the Kinsmen Junior baseball club is no exception as they expect a very long three days.

The Juniors open their best of three Ontario Baseball Association semi-final play-off series with Brantford this weekend and if last years record is any indication the local squad may be facing their toughest test of the season.

The Brantford Braves were All-Ontario champions last year and rumor has it that the club is as strong as ever, illustrated in their pennant winning performance over a London Major 'AA' team in the Intercounty Junior League.

The Kinsmen will be making the 180 mile trip to Brantford Saturday, for a 2 p.m. game but will be home Sunday for the return game and Monday if a third game is necessary. Both Belleville games have 2 p.m. starting times. The Monday game will be in Belleville no matter how the flip lands as Brantford has no field for that date.

The two home games, if the calls for the billeting of the Brantford players, and anyone interested in putting up any boys is asked to call Garth Bradshaw at 962-4835.

Kingston Drivers Stake Claims

A pair of claims were staked at Frontenac Downs during Wednesday nights card of harness racing but the rustle of green will take the place of any gold.

Gerry Walsh set a new precedent at the new Kingston raceway when he claimed Sailor Farr for $1,200. The three year old gelding had six wins, two seconds and a third in 24 starts and had won just under $1,500 this season before Walsh claimed him for his stables.

Walsh's Frontenac example was soon followed though as Hugh Wemp of Harrowsmith claimed Chanda C for $1,775.

After the high finances were resolved and the rpcing card continued Hugh Wemp of Centreville emerged top driver of the night picking up three wins including a track record for trotters of 2:06 with Kate McLaird in the ninth race. He also picked up wins on Peter Magic in the sixth and Babe's Girl in the third.

A crowd of 1,922 were on hand and pushed $41,891 through the pari-mutuel betting wickets.

Watkins Win Title

It was all uphill for the Eric Watkin Juveniles after their first game with Trenton for the Belleville Minor Lacross division title — all the way up!

The Belleville team stopped Trenton 5-3 Wednesday night for their third straight win after a first game tie.

Kerry Reid potted three goals with Roy Muldoon and Graham Wilkens scoring single tallies in Belleville's championship winner.

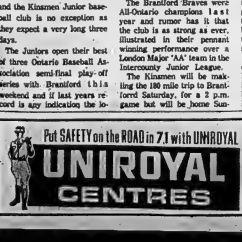
Consistency Wins Out



Hillier used consistency to overcome surges of power from Mountain View in Wednesday night's opening game of the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League. Hillier tallied runs in six of the eight innings played for an 8-6 win over the Mountain, who did all their scoring in just three innings.

John Bell and Clark Alexander picked up the win for Hillier combining for a seven hitter. Bell allowed all six runs on five hits while fanning five and walking an equal number. John Allison had three safeties with Pete and Paul Pettingill adding two hits apiece for the winners.

Gary Eardley went the route for Mountain View giving up nine hits and striking out the same number. Brian Montgomery had two hits to lead the losers at the plate.

Next game in the best of seven series will be tonight at Ameliasburg. Game time is 8 p.m.

Galt May Compete in Sweden

CALGARY (CP) — Senior hockey teams from Calgary and Galt are scheduled to play in international hockey tournaments in Europe later this year, president Joe Krycka of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said Wednesday.

Calgary Stampeders are to play in the Star Cup tournament at Gothenburg, Sweden, and the Allan Cup champion Galt Hornets in the Bunny Ahearne tournament in Stockholm.

Krycka said both events are played on an individual team basis and have no national squads entered.

The CAHA approved at its annual meeting a resolution allowing participation in such championships.

"This doesn't change our national team situation . . . we turned down an invitation to play in Colorado because the Czechs, Swedes and Russians were sending their national teams."

All But Three Classes Cancelled

Light Winds Continue to Plague CORK

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Light winds again plagued the Canadian Olympic Training Regatta Wednesday, forcing abandonment of races in all but three of 11 classes.

Only the Solpes, O.K. Dinghies and Flying Dutchman managed to complete their races in three Wednesday. No boat in the Tornado, Soling and Dragon classes crossed the finish line within the 4½-hour time limit, so the races over the 15-mile course were cancelled.

Scheduled races in International 14, Star, Lightning, Fireball and Finn classes did not even start.

CORK officials considered holding two races for the eight classes today but decided to run only one.

Classes which finished Wednesday now have completed four races while the remaining classes have run three of six scheduled races.

Cancellation of one race could affect the top five in three classes where each sailor has a good chance of winning the championship.

However, organizers have said they cannot extend the race week past Friday because many sailors have other commitments.

Sailors are allowed to drop their worst of six races. If only five are held they can still drop the but would have less leeway in computing points. There is stiff competition in all but the Star class.

Ted Hains, 23, of Oakville, Ont., crossed first Wednesday and said he was "just lucky."

Augustin Diaz, 17, of Miami, who had threatened to run away with the class with two early wins, finished third. Tuesday he was 10th.

In the Flying Dutchman class, Tony Zegers of Montreal won after three bad previous races. Roger Green of Toronto finished second.

Craig Thomas of Auckland, N.Z., picked up his third victory in the O.K. Dinghies class. He was second in his fourth race.

Colin McMullen of Toronto came second Wednesday, as he did on Sunday.

Speedy Wears Crown

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Speedy Crown is the new champion of the three-year-old trotters, winner of the Hambletonian classic in straight heats of 1:57 2-5 and 1:59 1-5.

Belsinger, 46, said he was training Speedy Crown at about 2:16 for the mile when he sold the colt to Tom and Frank Anoacci, the Crown Stable, Inc., of Palmview, N.Y., in March of 1970. Belsinger remained the trainer.

"I raced him lightly last year to manner and educate him," Belsinger explained. Speedy Crown responded well for his teacher Wednesday, capturing $64,805 in the classic.

Speedy Crown brushed off a midway challenge by Hoot Speed, the 2-1 favorite to take the first heat of the Hambletonian by three lengths. The time has been bettered in the Hambletonian only by the race record of 1:56 4-5 set by Ayres in 1964.

Bombers Hot, Argos Not - - But Both Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers upset Calgary Stampeders Wednesday night, and coach Jim Spavital said the 31-13 Canadian Football League triumph was due to "total involvement . . . total commitment."

For Edmonton Eskimos, it was a case of total collapse as they blew an 11-point lead in the last 2½ minutes and lost an interlocking game 16-15 to Toronto Argonauts.

Spavital said Winnipeg's best effort in four years spilled Calgary from the ranks of the undefeated and thrust the Blue Bombers into a share of second place in the Western Conference with British Columbia Lions and Saskatchewan Roughriders. The three clubs are four points behind the Stampeders, who won their first five games of the season.

In Edmonton, coach Ray Jauch had a plea for fans who may be fed up with the Eskimos losing—they now have lost six of seven contests.

"Don't get excited or worried," Jauch said, "You have to stick with me for a while."

There's something positive from this defeat. We discovered we had backs who can run hard, nothing fancy, but hard. We have ends who can catch the ball and a quarterback who can get the ball from point A to point B fast."

Toronto coach Leo Cahill said he felt "fortunate" to get the win, which gave the Argonauts a 5-1 record and kept them in first place in the Eastern Conference.

In Winnipeg, where 22,553 fans watched Calgary taste defeat for the first time, a much-maligned defence got a major portion of the credit for the victory.

Spavital said the defence's performance was the result of having time to work on basics, which they were weak on previously.

The defence gave quarterback Don Jonas time to recover from the shock of five pass interceptions that helped Calgary pull ahead 15-6 in the third quarter.

There was no stopping Jonas once he had regained his composure. He threw four touchdown passes, and kicked three converts, a single and a field goal. Bob LaRose caught two touchdown aerials, while Paul Markle and Jim Thorpe grabbed one each.

DON JONAS

The Stampeders managed touchdowns on a 78-yard end run by Jesse Mims and Larry Robinson's 85-yard gallop with a pass interception. Robinson booted two converts and Bill Van Burkleo kicked a single.

The big change in the Winnipeg defence, which gave up 198 points in its previous seven games, was on the left side where newcomers Al Dotson and linebacker Carl Crennel came up with some unexpected muscle.

It was the third win of the season for Winnipeg—one more than they managed all last year—and first at home since Aug. 26, 1970, against Toronto.

The Calgary defence got a solid poudking, as it gave up more points then it had in its five previous games combined.

Disaster struck suddenly for the Eskimos, who appeared to have wrapped things when they pushed ahead 14-3 on Bob Howard's touchdown at 8:32 of the fourth quarter.

As 22,261 fans watched in dismay the Argonauts swiftly marched 84 yards for a touchdown by Bill Symons at 11:32.

The Argonauts needed three passes to get the winning touchdown, with 57 seconds to play. The touchdown pass went 12 yards to Mike Eben, a former Eskimo.

The big gun in the Toronto comeback was Joe Theismann, one-half of the Argonauts high-priced quarterback combination. Most of the damage was done with Theismann passes, eight for 100 yards with three going to Mel Profit for 68 yards.

For the first time this season, Cahill abandoned his rotating signal-caller strategy which normally has Greg Barton alternating on offence with Theismann.

The Eskimos tried their own comeback and it just missed. Dave Cutler attempted a 50-yard field goal on the last play.

Cuellar Finally Able to Conquer Boston's 'Green Monster'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Cuellar's pitching baffled Boston Red Sox with a six-hitter Wednesday night as Baltimore Orioles coasted to an 8-3 victory.

It was his first ever in Boston's cozy Fenway Park, making him a winner in every American League stadium.

Cuellar says he's pretty sure he's won in every National League park, too—if you don't count San Diego and Montreal which didn't come into the minors until 1969, the year Cuellar came to Baltimore after four seasons in Houston.

In Wednesday night's other American League action, Chicago White Sox beat Minnesota Twins 3-0 in 11 innings, Milwaukee Brewers edged Kansas City Royals 3-2, Detroit Tigers nipped Cleveland Indians 4-3, Oakland Athletics topped California Angels 7-0 and, in an afternoon game, Washington Senators zipped New York Yankees 2-0.

Left-handers, intimidated by the "Green Monster," the short left field wall, generally fare poorly at Fenway. And Cuellar was no exception. But, he "recalled, "When I came out here tonight, I said to myself: 'Well, I've got to win one here sometime!'"

He did it to its team-mate Pat Dobson with 17 victories. And he did it with a baffling assortment of pitches that had the Sox limited to three hits—including Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring single—through eight innings before they nicked him for three more and their other run in the ninth.

Merv Rettenmund had Ray Oyler thinking about the wall. The Baltimore outfielder knocked the Boston starter out of the game with a three-run homer over it in the second inning, his 11th of the year.

The Orioles had already scored twice in the first and two other times in the second before Rettenmund's blast tucked the win away.

Wilbur Wood, the White Sox' knuckleballing reliever-turned-starter, and Bert Blyleven ducked through nine scoreless innings but neither was around when the game ended. Cuellar, May's pop-fly single and Walt Williams' sacrifice fly off Bob Oldshark of the Twins won it for Bart Johnson. It was a reversal of Tuesday's outcome when Oldshark beat Johnson.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Jan Kodes, the Czechoslovakian hard-court specialist who bowled over top-seeded John Newcombe on the West Side Tennis Club hurf Wednesday, thinks his grass game is a joke but he doesn't like anyone to say so.

"Everybody says I'm lousy on grass," said the 23-year-old Kodes after crushing Newcombe 2-6, 7-6, 6-3 in the first round of the U.S. Open tennis championships. "but it makes me really mad because, for us Europeans, we don't get enough practice.

"I step on grass twice a year — at Wimbledon and here — so the pros have the advantage because they always play on grass.

But Kodes' broke his twice-a-year habit, arriving in New York early for six days of practice, and it paid off. He became the first player in 41 years to eliminate the top seed in the first round and stage the day's only major upset.

"I couldn't find how to play the first two games," said Kodes, the French Open titleholder, of his poor start. "But I won the second set and I started thinking I could win."

Kodes won the second set, as well as the third, in best-of-nine tie breaks. The final set was no contest.

"My service just didn't seem to have much steam in it," said a disappointed Newcombe, adding that Kodes was swinging at everything as if he had nothing to lose.

Taking the centre court today in an effort to move at least one top seed into the second round was Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., Mrs. King, ranked No. 1 among the women, meets Jeanne Arth of St. Paul, Minn. in the day's opener.

Also on the centre court will be 16-year-old Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., whose victory over Virginia Wade gave the U.S. the Wightman Cup last month. Miss Evert will play Edda Buding of West Germany.

Seaver Follows Vernon's Law

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver of New York Mets tamed St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 on four hits Wednesday night, becoming the first pitcher to beat St. Louis veteran Bob Gibson three times in a season since Vernon Law of Pittsburgh Pirates did it in 1959.

"He wasn't the real Bob Gibson tonight," said Seaver. "But he's still one of the best pitchers in baseball. I don't think I've ever seen anybody work any harder."

Despite Seaver's praise, Gibson has been erratic this season, winning only 13 and losing 12, although pitching the first no-hitter of his illustrious career. And, instead, it has been Seaver who has developed into one of the game's outstanding pitchers.

The victory was his fifth in a row and gave him a 18-8 record for the year. He also lowered his earned-run average to 1.92, best in the National League, and struck out seven, increasing his league-leading total to 233.

Meanwhile, San Diego's Dave Roberts, National League runnerup in ERA, fired a five-hitter as the Padres defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-1; Pittsburgh outslugged Philadelphia Phillies 10-7; Los Angeles Dodgers walloped Houston Astros 8-2; San Francisco Giants blanked Atlanta Braves 4-0; and Chicago Cubs topped Montreal Expos 5-2 after losing the completion of a suspended game 11-2.

Seaver, the winner of the 1969 Cy Young Award as the National League's outstanding pitcher and a strong candidate again this year, has allowed only four runs in his last 54 innings of work and compiled a glittering 1.24 ERA since the All-Star break.

"I can't remember when I've had such a good stretch of pitching," he said. "I've just been pitching well and pitching the ball where I want. I've been changing speeds and keeping the ball down."

It was Seaver's 16th complete

Cowan, Weslock Near Leaders

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Martin West III and George Haines come from different worlds but they chased the same prize today—the 71st annual National Amateur Golf Championship.

The 23-year-old West held a two-stroke lead over the 28-year-old Haines as they started the second day of the four-day, 72-hole tournament. West shot a first-round, four-under-par 67 and Haines a 69 over the 6,972-yard, par-71 Wilmington Country Club course Wednesday.

West is the son of an affluent game and his third against Gibson and the Cardinals. He beat them 13-2 with a seven-hitter on April 26 and 2-1 on a six-hitter on May 7.

"But I always manage to lose the shutout somewhere along the way," he quipped. "I give up a home run or I do something."

Wednesday, he lost it in the ninth when Ted Sizemore doubled and scored on Joe Torre's single.

But by that time, the Mets were comfortably ahead. They had belted Gibson for 11 hits and six runs in 6 2-3 innings, and added a run off Stan Williams, making his first appearance for St. Louis, in the eighth.

Dufty Dyer and Ken Boswell each drove in two Met runs.

Roberts, San Diego's hard-working left-hander, won his 12th game with his second five-hitter in two starts against Cincinnati this season. The only run off him was unearned and came with two out in the ninth.

The hard-luck Roberts, who has lost 14, now has a 1.99 ERA.

Manny Sanguillen belted a two-run homer for the Pirates, who shelled four Philadelphia pitchers for 13 hits.

Los Angeles backed Don Sutton's four-hit, 12-strikeout pitching against Houston with an eight-run uprising in the second inning. Richie Allen's two-run single keyed the big inning in which the Dodgers sent 13 batters to the plate.

Ferguson Jenkins, the National League's biggest winner, gained his 21st victory for the Cubs with a six-hitter in the regularly-scheduled game against Montreal. Jenkins also drove in three runs with two homers, his third and fourth of the season.

In the completion of the suspended game, the Expos' Mike Marshall posted his 19th save of the season with three innings of two-hit relief. The game was suspended Tuesday with Montreal leading 8-1 after six innings.

Decentralization of Power Sought

Fifteen Quebecois to Carry Fight to Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen prominent Quebecois who believe the province is a nation which has the right of self-determination, are considering forming a "Quebec bloc" to work politically at the federal level for this end.

A spokesman for the group said Wednesday all believe that Ottawa's powers must be decentralized in favor of the provinces.

However, the spokesman said in a telephone interview that any bloc formed would not be a separatist party at the federal level.

It also was not intended to promote Rene Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois.

Fernand Alie, former chairman of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, and Guy Bertrand, defeated Parti Quebecois candidate in the provincial riding of Dorchester, were also there, said last week that a meeting to discuss the creation of a Quebec party had been held.

Another meeting is scheduled for tonight in Montreal.

The spokesman said the group had to agree on one of two "types of action."

These are either to form a pressure group or create a new Quebec federal party.

"Many among us favor a pressure group, others favor a political party and some prefer having first a pressure group to be followed by a party," he said.

Mr. Alie, one of those favoring pressure, said such a group could support the Trudeau government if it decided to reverse its constitutional position in favor of Quebec's position.

Mr. Bertrand, however, favored creating a party which would not be a federal separatist group. He said the bloc must not necessarily promote the Parti Quebecois or independence, but the interests of Quebecers first.

It would be a party intended "for those who are ready to act for Quebec even to the detriment of Canada, if need be," he said.

Mr. Bertrand said the bloc should not be separatist because there are some Quebecers who are good people and who are not yet ready "to make the jump for independence."

The bloc, he added, would keep its distance from the Parti Quebecois in order not to alienate those who are not totally in favor of independence.

As far as he knows, Mr. Levesque is not opposed to such a bloc.

Paul Hellyer, former transport minister and leader of Action Canada, said he did not know what an independent party could do on the federal level.

Action Canada advisers had warned him that the Quebec bloc could only be a "nuisance," he said.

France Has Cancelled Pacific Atomic Tests

PARIS (Reuter) — France announced Wednesday it has cancelled further nuclear tests in the Pacific this year, saying no scientific purpose would be served by continuing them.

Hamon would not divulge the contents of the letter, but said the Pacific explosions were being halted "for lack of further objectives."

Five blasts, one a hydrogen-type detonation this year, had fully met the hopes of scientists, he said.

The over-all aim of the tests and of those scheduled for next year is to prepare nuclear weapons for use by France's new generation of missiles, aircraft, submarines and tanks.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Writer Stands Up To Be Shot At

Long ago I read somewhere that a writer "stands up to get shot at." He becomes a ready target for any reader if one is a novelist, someone is likely to say, "He's dirty. All he writes about is sex." If he is if historian, then the dates are all wrong." If he is a medical writer and there is a typographical error in his book or column "he doesn't know what he is talking about."

A few weeks ago a staid Doctor of Philosophy took me to task for saying to a Mrs. U. that frequency of urination a night might be due to a faulty prostate gland. (As I hastened the original "Mr." in the script came out "Mrs."

In the column but you do not always get the benefit. From all readers of innocently suffering a mistake which is liable to occur in the best of periodicals.) The good Doctor of Philosophy said, "Since when does a woman have a prostate gland?"

Speaking of prostate, how easy it is to make the mistake of printing it "prostrate gland." In classes once the accusing flurries saying, "The man is an MD and still does not know how to spell 'prostate.'"

What brought all this up today? Well, while reading a column of mine on heart attacks, this frequent misprint stared me in the face. "Infraction" instead of "infarction." You can see how this might easily be an error sometimes when set up in type.

But I was talking about coronary attacks and "infarction." On seeing the error, the writer can visualize quite a few condescending smiles from both laymen and some professional men who say to themselves or to others: "The guy talks like an expert on heart disease and can't even spell 'infarction.'"

And so it goes. I feel no malice. When I stop being shot at it is because I have turned from writing to painting or just to keeping quiet.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a terrible problem. I am 14 years old, 5 feet eight, and weight only 111 pounds at my skinniness. Please! — Miss heavies! My figure is 32AA-22-32.

Do you know of any reliable pill that will make me gain? You will probably say I'll grow out of it, etc. But I can't wait that long.

I am so self - conscious it is pitiful! I stay cooped up in the house because of my W.

COMMENT: I am really sorry, but I know of no reliable pill that will help you put on weight. And I will also disappoint you by saying what you do not want to hear. "You will probably grow out of it and fill out in time."

I realize you cannot wait, because youth is always in a hurry. When I was your age I wanted all the good things to happen right away, too.

Meanwhile, I advise you to do the opposite of what we tell overweight people to do: Eat fattening foods. Take milk shakes, potatoes, butter, candy, cream, bread, cake, pastries, etc., in addition to a good, wholesome regular diet. You are bound to gain soon.

I have seen youngsters like you who have gained as much in a few years that they soon had another problem: obesity. So I suggest that you be content to gain slowly and surely rather than hope to put it on overnight.

For Mrs. A.: Some people have what we call a "low renal threshold" and they "spill" sugar in their urine although they do not, true diabetes mellitus. Your doctor can make the differentiation by taking a series of blood sugar tests. Incidentally, uncomplicated renal glycosuria is not a threat to health. But it deserves check-ups every year or so.

Ignoble Means Corrupt Ends

Thoughts at Large:

Every household should include at least one good tape recorder, so that the family's voices can be played back to them (especially after bickering during a meal), giving children and parents both an opportunity to hear how awful the whining and screeching sound to the objective ear.

To be superior to another, it is absolutely essential first to add to subtract any thought or feeling of superiority; this is perhaps the central paradox of character.

Ignoble means corrupt, rather than sustain, our well-intentioned ends; as Ghandi put it, "Liberty and democracy become unholy when their hands are dyed red with innocent blood."

Horoscope

For September 3

Your Birthday Today: Your coming year is full of a restless search for a better way of life and more clearly defined understanding. Today's natives follow customs and rules more as a convenience than any will to conform. They are self-sufficient in most ways, great admirers of the opposite sex.

ARIES (March 21 — April 19): Economy of means and actions is the keynote for today. Make use of reserves gathered during the week; settle questions raised in the last three days.

TAURUS (April 20 — May 20): So many people have a place for you in their schemes that it may be difficult to choose until you reflect on your original goals.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Career gains arise from today's hasty changes, competitive moves. An early start is strongly favored as later hours become quite crowded.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Be ready for abrupt changes, perhaps settlement of an old problem. Fresh competition is almost certain in any vocational specialty.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): A reality check is in order. Settle as it is, your circumstances as they are. If you are not happy with things, begin some plans for changes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your projects and obligations suddenly turn out to hold much higher importance than originally planned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Let well enough alone; clear up details of your workweek. Nobody is ready for any fresh bright ideas or last minute experiments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Giving your projects a chance to work toward the goals you set, steady repetition of recently acquired habits produces results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Most of the story is quite well known; however, the details that don't show are the most important. Be a bit cautious on promises of long term arrangements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Set something aside for savings, equipment for future uses. Survey your belongings, plan for replacement of anything that's not really the best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Something new is at work in your local environment. Everything must be re-examined, revalued as you go.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — March 20): Bring your friends together for a review of the last few weeks. Close ranks to move on to a more effective way of life. Discard outworn equipment,

Some personalities are shaped by what they admire; others are disfigured by what they hate; this is why giving a child a model he can look up to is the most important element in his education.

Sixty Countries Try to Stop Interference with Aviation

MONTREAL (CP) — High-level diplomatic talks involving more than 60 countries are to be held here next week with the objective of drawing up a legal convention to condemn all unlawful interference with civil aviation.

The talks are being held under the auspices of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

A spokesman for the Montreal-based organization said that the main thrust of the debate will be aimed at devising an international law to punish those who interfere with airport operations and the safe transit of passenger-carrying aircraft. Debate at the conference, running Sept. 8-22, will deal specifically with saboteurs.

The conference is a direct follow up of the June, 1970, emergency assembly of ICAO's member nations, which was called at the request of 11 member countries, to lay the groundwork for establishing such a document.

The 81 nations attending the June, 1970, assembly drew up what subsequently has become known as the Montreal Declaration, which:

—Condems all acts of violence which may be directed against civil aircraft, crews and passengers engaged in, and against civil aviation personnel, civil airports and other facilities used by, international civil air transport.

—Requests concerted action on the part of states towards suppressing all acts which jeopardize the safe and orderly development of international civil air transport.

All countries attending the talks, except Algeria and Cuba, endorsed the declaration.

The calls for an internationally-acceptable condemnation of sabotage was spurred by the February, 1970, explosion of a Swissair aircraft, which caused the loss of more than 40 lives.

The Palestine Liberation Front at first claimed then later denied responsibility for the bombing.

Next week's talks also take place almost a year to the day after the Labor Day week, 197 hijackings of four European passenger-carrying aircraft sites in Jordan and Egypt, culminating in the destruction nea Cairo of a Boeing 707 jumbo je

The ICAO spokesman sa that the anti-sabotage dis tion was not aimed particu at those countries involved the Middle East conflict pinc incidents of that sort had o curred in other parts of th world.

He also pointed out that th upcoming debates were no aimed at condemning blacklis That was a different are which was dealt with last D cember when a diplomatic co ference drew up an anti-hijack ing document, called The Hag Convention, which currentl being ratified by ICAO's mem ber countries.

The Montreal conference al mark the first time in Russian will be used as one the languages of debate. The Soviet Union became ICAO's 120t member nation last November Talks previously were held in Spanish, French and English.

Hughes Must Pay $145 Million Damages

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The United States Court of Appeals Wednesday ordered Howard Hughes and his Hughes Tool Co. to pay Trans on April 14, 1970 decision of $145,448,141, plus interest.

The appeals court affirmed on April 14, 1970 decision of his federal district court. Hughes is expected to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The judgment was based on a suit brought by TWA June 30, 1961, charging that Hughes was using his position as 75-per-cent stockholder to damage the airline in violation of the U.S. anti-trust laws.

Union Head Says Freeze Will Stay

MONTREAL (CP) — Harry Sayre of Albany, N.Y., president of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers, said Wednesday there is little likelihood President Nixon's wage freeze will end after 90 days.

He told the 29th convention of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers the freeze on wages and prices announced Aug. 15 by Mr. Nixon is one of the most confusing and unfair decisions yet made by Washington.

Negotiations would have to be carried out for future contracts despite Mr. Nixon's action, said Mr. Sayre.

He called for all unions representing the pulp, paper and printing industries to work more effectively in bargaining for new contracts.

The success of the various unions is what is standing in the way of a merger and formation of a giant union to represent the workers of the entire pulp, paper and printing industry, said Mr. Sayre.

Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO, told the 1,200 delegates from across the United States and Canada:

"When President Nixon took office in January, 1969, he inherited a strong and productive economy. There had been an eight-year period of economic expansion. The unemployment rate was 3.4 per cent, the lowest in 15 years."

There now are five million workers unemployed in the United States, said Mr. Kirkland. "About 14.5 million Americans are on the welfare rolls and 25.5 million citizens of the richest nation on earth are living in poverty."

But there has been no recession for bankers and giant corporations, he added.

Because Mr. Nixon's tight-money policy drove interest rates to the highest level in a century, bank after bank reported increases of 15 to 20 per cent in their profit rates.

Kahn-Tineta Horn Wants Whites Ousted

OTTAWA (CP) — Kahn-Tineta Horn Wednesday campaigned here while people removed from the Caughnawaga Indian reserve near Montreal.

The 29-year-old Indian activist wanted to find out why the justice department is taking so long to act on her complaints.

"I gave them the information in mid-June, and there has been nothing but delays, delays."

She filed a statement of claim with the federal court charging her sister with trespassing. Her sister, now Mrs. Walter Pichonich, lost her Indian status when she married a white man, said Miss Horn.

"I decided to have a test case," she told a news conference, "and I was thinking of who I should start with. I knew people would say 'why doesn't she start with her own sister?', so I did."

She said her sister and her husband are paying $30-a-month rent on the reserve. The same house would cost $150 a month off the reserve.

Britain Beginning Economic Recovery

LONDON (CP) — Britain has begun a long-awaited economic recovery, but recuperation may be lengthy and painful, says an influential forecast.

The National Institute of Economic and Social Research, an independent agency, said in a report Thursday that Britain has passed through the worst of the current recession and a moderate recovery has begun.

But improvements may not be fully apparent before mid-1972, the institute added.

In the meantime, Britain—like Canada—faces the double threat of unusually-high unemployment and increasing prices.

The institute said unemployment, now considered extremely high at 3.7 per cent, will likely continue to increase until early next year and remain excessive through most of 1972.

The report noted that expansionary measures introduced by the Conservative government in April and July will have a favorable effect in bringing about a general recovery. But it said these actions should have been taken earlier.

Despite the government's moves, however, no general improvement in the demand for capital goods could be expected before mid-1972.

The institute expressed alarm at skyrocketing wage increases. As a result of recent action by the government and leading private industries, however, there might be some decrease in the rate of price increases.

Most of the country's 200 largest industries recently signed an undertaking to restrict price advances to five per cent per year for the coming year. The government subsequently pledged that nationalized industries will match this restraint.

There have been indications that labor unions will modify wage demands if the industrial initiative proves effective. The institute said decreased wage demands are essential before any decrease in inflation can be expected. Average earnings would increase by at least 13 per cent this year.

The annual rate of increase in consumer prices might ease to about six per cent from the present level of almost eight per cent as a result of industries' efforts, the report said.

The institute estimated industrial output fell by about 1.75 per cent in the first half of this year and consumer spending, as well as investment, also dropped off.

However, consumer spending in 1972 was expected to increase by about five per cent and exports also were likely to expand. An increase in over-all growth rate of about four per cent was likely in 1972.

Unranked Player Tops Champ

VANCOUVER (CP) — An unranked Canadian player, Ed Formanek of Ottawa, stood on the brink of knocking world champion Boris Spassky of Moscow out of top-money contention in the Canadian open chess championship Wednesday night.

Formanek, who has already defeated two grandmasters in the 11-round tournament, held a decided edge when his game against Spassky was adjourned to this morning.

Canadian champion Duncan Suttles of Vancouver and Hans Ree of Holland, both international masters, couldn't break their first-place deadlock as they agreed to a draw on the ninth round. He is George Kuprejanov, who, with seven points, adjourned his game against Grandmaster Walter Browne of Australia, the U.S. open champion, who has 6½ points.

The adjourned games made it impossible to list second and third-place contenders. At least 17 players are still in contention for first-place money.

Only one player remained with a possibility of taking sole possession of first place in the ninth round. He is George Kuprejanov, who, with seven points, adjourned his game against Grandmaster Walter Browne of Australia, the U.S. open champion, who has 6½ points.

The adjourned games made it impossible to list second and third-place contenders. At least 17 players are still in contention for first-place money.

Farmers to Escape Price Freeze Damage

OTTAWA (CP) — The price freeze ordered by President Nixon Aug. 15 will not be as damaging to Canadian agriculture as it first appeared, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said Wednesday.

But the surtax on imports will affect certain Canadian farm products in varying degrees of severity, Mr. Olson told a news conference following a two-hour closed session with about 50 representatives of national farm organizations, commodity groups and food processors.

Although no one can predict what will happen to the market price, Mr. Olson said, the fact that U.S. prices were frozen at their highest rate since May 25, 1970 means that few agriculture goods will suffer from the freeze.

But about $125 million worth of imports will be hit to varying degrees—some minimal, some severe"—by the surtax.

Mr. Olson said the farm leaders expressed some concern about the imbalance that could be placed on the mutually-agreed trading arrangement now in effect between the two countries.

He said the hog market will be watched with particular care since prices for pork products have been severely depressed in the last few months.

President Roy Atkinson of the National Farmers' Union, one of those attending the meeting, said Canada should slap a similar tax on American goods entering Canada.

West Conservatives Begin Policy Parley

SASKATOON (CP) — Western Conservatives begin a three-day policy conference tonight with the blessing of national party headquarters.

A similar conference last year, to which national leader Robert Stanfield was not invited, created friction within the party.

But Mr. Stanfield is to participate this year and the conference is welcomed by national headquarters, national director Leo O'Brien said Wednesday night.

Mr. O'Brien said in an interview the conference will have an effect on policy papers to be presented to the annual meeting in Ottawa in October. The policy papers, issued earlier this year, are being redrafted for the annual meeting.

A May policy conference of Quebec Conservatives drew about 400 delegates, and successes in the Atlantic provinces have met this summer, he said.

No formal agenda has been drawn up for the conference, which will feature "a nice western cannadean," Mr. Stanfield will speak Friday night.

Mr. O'Brien said the party will not be caught by surprise if Prime Minister Trudeau calls an election this fall.

Earlier Wednesday, conference chairman Jack Horner, (PC—Crowfoot) said the meeting will concentrate on agricultural policy, but will also examine policy papers on other topics.

Resources development and foreign investment are of particular concern to the capital-hungry west, he said.

Mr. Horner expects about 150 persons to attend, depending on weather and the harvest. Presidents of the 67 Prairie and British Columbia Conservative constituency associations were invited to send delegates, and some of the 25 Prairie Conservative MPs will attend.

Quinte Board Balks At City Plan's OK

Ulster Border Guard Slain

BELFAST (CP) — Gunmen killed a soldier serving with Northern Ireland's part-time defence force today near the border with the Irish Republic.

The soldier — a member of the Ulster Defence Regiment — was gunned down from a passing car as he stood on guard duty outside a police station in Kinawley, County Fermanagh.

He was the second member of the 4,000-man regiment, to be killed this year.

Seventeen British soldiers have died in action since sectarian violence erupted in Ulster two years ago, excluding the two fatal casualties belonging to the Northern Ireland defence force.

A British major was shot in the stomach by a sniper at midnight Thursday night.

The shootings climaxed one of the country's worst days of terror.

Maj. Robin Alers-Hankey, 35, was reported in critical condition today after an emergency operation. He was the first senior officer seriously wounded since British troops were sent to Northern Ireland two years ago to intervene between the battling Protestants and Roman Catholics.

The shooting was the most serious incident in a night which followed one of the worst terrorist outrages to date—a four-pronged bomb attack in Belfast's busy shopping and commercial area which left 46 civilians injured.

The four bombs exploded within seven minutes of each other in the Unionist party headquarters, an office block and a parking garage soon after noon Thursday.

"So what's wrong with a one-man Presidential election?"

Narrow Vote Favors Hiring Consultants

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

With Belleville's controversial official plan and accompanying bylaws passed on to the Quinte Planning Board by the retired Belleville and Suburban Planning Board Aug. 26, predictions that acceptance would be delayed became a reality last night.

In a narrow, 10-8 vote, the Quinte Planning Board adopted a motion to hire consultants to work hand in hand with planning staff for the preparation of an official plan and proper zoning bylaws for the city.

At the same time, the board agreed to have the staff report on the hiring of consultants, who could present an official plan for the entire Quinte Planning Area.

Planning director Bert Kenny said passing of any motions last night was a case of putting the cart before the horse. He stated the new staff "hasn't a clue as to what the nuts and bolts are."

The representatives of nine area municipalities thereupon voted to have the staff prepare a report outlining the terms of reference and function of the board, which last night took over the reins for planning in the city of Belleville, the town of Trenton, the villages of Brighton, Frankford and Stirling and the townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Brighton and Murray.

Two board members who opposed acceptance of an original motion by Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott, to deal solely with city planning problems, were Belleville Alderman E. Arnold Orr and Murray Township Councillor William R. Ellis.

Said Mr. Orr: "I don't think it should be limited to Belleville; consultants should bring in an official plan for the whole area."

He said each municipality could adopt an official plan, these plans to be accumulated by consultants preparing an overall scheme for the area. Although the town of Trenton, the village of Stirling and the village of Brighton have prepared new official plans, only Brighton's has been accepted by the minister of municipal affairs.

Mr. Orr suggested Belleville's could be given first priority and with each of the drafts eventually accepted, consultants would not be bogged down with the problems of compiling a complete plan for the area; rather, they could perform somewhat of a backbinding job, adopting each plan as a chapter.

"We've been talking about an official plan for so long, it's got to be a joke. We kept our staff so damn busy in other areas that they didn't have time to work on the official plan," he said.

Ganges Floods Push 4 Million Out of Homes

CALCUTTA (AP) — Floods from the Ganges River have driven four million more Indians from their homes, raising the total made homeless by flood and the Pakistan civil war to an estimated 26 million in West and East Bengal.

Cholera has broken out in many areas. In Katwa, 40 miles north of Calcutta, the disease took five lives Thursday.

Officials said 10 million persons now are homeless in the Indian State of West Bengal. Flood waters fed by fresh monsoon rains have covered some 5,000 square miles. The government admits to 69 deaths. Unofficial estimates put the death toll between 600 and 1,000.

Across the border in East Bengal, or East Pakistan, officials estimate that the Ganges has flooded 4,000 square miles, killed more than 70 persons and driven nine million from their homes. Crop losses there are heavy, increasing the threat of famine already posed by the civil war in the spring, which sent seven million refugees streaming into the Indian states of West Bengal, Bihar and Assam.

The flood is the third major disaster to hit Bengal in 10 months. Last November, a devastating cyclone and tidal waves killed hundreds of thousands of East Bengalis. In March came the civil war, when the army from West Pakistan tried to wipe out the independence movement in the eastern half of the country.

Richest Trading Nations Study Common Approach

PARIS (Reuter) — Ten of the world's richest trading nations meet today to try to thrash out some form of common approach on the troubled international monetary system following the upheaval caused by President Nixon's tough economy moves.

Officials from the finance ministries and central banks of Canada, West Germany, France, Italy, Holland, Belgium, the United States, Britain, Japan and Sweden will be trying to narrow their differences before a ministerial meeting of the group of 10 nations in London in two weeks.

Any progress that can be made in Paris and London in sorting out the tangled world monetary system would be vital for the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Washington at the end of September.

See Page 18
For Stories On Canadian Side Of Problem

But monetary sources were pessimistic about much progress emerging from the Paris meeting, bearing in mind the differences in policy brought into the open since Nixon's decision to cut the dollar's links with gold.

The sources noted that while floating of the Japanese yen and other leading currencies meant a partial success for Washington in the appreciation to date of most of these currencies was insufficient to satisfy the Nixon administration.

The sources also recalled the wide divergence between the positions of France and West Germany, two of the major European Common Market states, towards the dollar crisis.

France has struck out alone with a two-tier foreign exchange system, thus maintaining its old parity against the dollar, while West Germany has urged a collective floating of market currencies against the dollar.

Accord Signed

BERLIN (CP) — Ambassadors of Britain, the United States, France and the Soviet Union signed a Berlin agreement today intended to mark the end of an era and the start of a new East-West relationship in the heart of Europe.

Signing had been delayed a full day because of last-minute wrangling over an official translation into German to be used by East-West German negotiators, who are to complement the four-power agreement with an arrangement of their own.

The Soviet Union achieves one of its long standing goals, diplomatic representation in West Berlin on the consulate-general level. In a real sense, the pact is de facto Western recognition of the Communist East German regime.

Quebec Admits Beatings Of Jailed FLQ Suspects

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes Quebec Solicitor-General Roy Fournier as saying his government satisfied itself during a closed inquiry that allegations of beatings in Orsainville prison during the FLQ crisis last year were true —but had never made the finding public.

The newspaper said Mr. Fournier told this to a Globe and Mail reporter and added that the director of the prison near Quebec City, Marc O'Neil, had been dismissed largely because of his responsibility in the beatings.

A cabinet order dismissing Mr. O'Neil did not give any reasons, but recent escapes from the prison were widely assumed to be the cause, although the Quebec civil service commission referred to his having permitted brutal treatment of prisoners.

Mr. Fournier said the escapes played a role in the dismissal but so did the beatings. The Globe and Mail added.

Claude Samson, a young Quebec lawyer, first reported that prisoners arrested under the War Measures Act during the crisis had been beaten by guards. He himself had been imprisoned under the act.

Wind Change Turns Fire

Mining Town Is Spared

FINE POINT, N.W.T. (CP) — A change in the direction of the wind appeared today to relieve the threat a forest fire posed for this remote mining community of 1,500 persons.

Although a state of emergency still was in force as the fire continued to burn seven miles to the northeast, children were allowed to return to school and it was business as usual for many people.

Since the fire first was reported Aug. 26—one of dozens started by lightning—it has been fanned by steady northeasterly winds. But it has resulted in deaths of six persons, four in the crash of two water bombers Wednesday. One of the others died after walking into the turning propeller of an aircraft and the second when a tree fell on him.

The four flyers died after the collision in the air of two Canso amphibians answering a distress call from a crashed helicopter.

The helicopter pilot was taken to hospital in Edmonton where he was reported in critical condition.

About 97,000 acres had been burned by Thursday over a front 16 miles wide. The region along the south shore of Great Slave Lake, about 500 miles north of Edmonton, is primarily unmarketable spruce and pine over dense undergrowth.

Stompin' Tom Connors Got Big Break in Bar

His first job his nickname in Peterborough, when the announcer apparently forgot his last name and introduced him by his trademark, a large plywood board used during every performance.

To the accompanying beat of his guitar, Stompin' Tom Connors learns his basic note his songs of back board, which survives on the average of one week, producing a distinctive thump in the background of his songs.

Born in Saint John, New Brunswick and now a native of Tignish, Prince Edward Island, Tom Connors travels the length and breadth of Canada composing songs about people he meets and folk stories he hears.

Orphaned at an early age, Connors was brought up by foster parents whom he left, thumbing and bumming his way through Canada and the U.S. At jobs such as stevedoring, tobacco harvester, lumberjack, factory worker, bulldozer and miner, he met the men which now exist in more than 500 country and western songs.

While working in Halifax, a French - Canadian dockworker showed him his first two guitar chords. "I'm no guitarist," he says, "I play best out of the things. But I can get enough out of a guitar to accompany myself, and that's all I need."

He began writing about the people he had met and his songs came easily. Describing himself alternately as a step ahead of the law in many cases, and one who could sing for his supper with the guitar, Connors' first big break came in the northern Ontario community of Timmins.

Down to his last 25 cents, it was a bartender at the Maple Leaf Hotel, who in 1964, started him on his musical career. Trying to make up the difference for a beer, Connors was asked to sing in the tavern for the price of his drink.

He sang, and he went to fetch the boss. He came in and listened, and asked me how I'd like to sing at the hotel for a week, for money," he recalls.

"They gave me a bed and my food and $25 for the week.

I stayed for 14 months and by the time I left, the place had been packed every night for well over a year."

He credits his success to the popularity of country and western music in Canada, a situation he says is frowned upon by producers of television and recorded music.

"I believe that country music is enormously popular in Canada. The people who run the music business just don't like it, so it doesn't get the exposure it deserves.

"But I know one thing: The people like country music. Certainly they love it outside the big cities and there's people in big cities who like it too."

By 1965 he was on the road again, but instead of using his thumb, he had a truck equipped with a camper on the back. Beginning his tours in northern Ontario, he started accumulating fans, producing 15 singles and four long-play albums plus special records, most of which contain his own works, now numbering over 200.

Some of these singles, including Bud the Spud, which tells the story of a truck driver rolling between PEI and Toronto with loads of potatoes, have hit the top in country and western recording charts.

His success was heralded in Canada's Centennial province during a Charlottetown parade. Canada's minister of agriculture presented him with a gold - painted spud and 9,000 people turned out to hear him sing that night.

Appearances on the CBC Tommy Hunter television show, CTV's Country time, and personal appearances across the country, have made him, according to many critics, one of Canada's best-known male country singers, with a peculiar, slightly off-key twang to his singing.

Stompin' Tom Connors and his band will perform at Belleville Collegiate Saturday night, Sept. 4 at 8.30 p.m. for the Trent Valley Jamboree.

Matt Lucas Back With A Vengeance

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Matt Lucas filled the Sun Valley last night with the blues and showed the unsmiling large audience how a blues band performs when it has been awarded one of Canada's largest recording contracts.

Matt Lucas, after selling 3.5 million copies of I'm Moving On and being Belgium's artist of the year in '63, fell off the ladder "with the help of booze and broads" and became a prisoner in London, Ontario.

"I was just sitting around wondering cause lover and what for to do a little music with them for a good time. Someone heard me, offered me money and here I am," said Matt.

It was rags, to reform school, to riches and then to rags for Mr. Lucas but he grew up and now, says Mr. Lucas, "I've got a part of the blues."

Lucas is not the only man in the show business to be known it. Realizing the need for a good band, he has surrounded himself with some of the best blues men in the business. Gathering talent from Canada, the United States and England, he has managed to put together a band that will not allow the audience to sit still.

Members of the band have played with Muddy Waters, Chuck Berry and Rhinoceros. The harmonica player, who has been with Matt the longest, is a highlight of the show as he sings and makes notes come from the "harp" that don't seem physically possible.

Matt and his newly formed band will be doing their first recordings in the coming weeks, and will be cutting into their contract which guarantees them of 22 cuts at $3,000 a cut.

The contract was awarded through AHED Music Corp. last fall. Matt has a the blues."

He has done dope, lived in a reformatory and has been married enough times that he knows why he's looking for. He entered the divorce ring again and already has a few lady.

After the audience warmed up to the music, couples began threading themselves through the tables to the dance floor to try their hand at dancing to the tricky blues beat.

"There is nothing to dancing to the blues," said Mr. Lucas while sitting watching his band perform. "You have to feel the music and your body will move itself."

Picking from a large assortment of boogie, rock and roll and blues, the band makes its way to the end of the evening.

"There aren't many playing this stuff, but its real and alive," said Matt as he finished another drink and called to the audience to "rock and roll."

No one at the Sun Valley knows exactly how long it's taken for Matt to get there but for at least the rest of the week Matt will be singing the blues to anyone who wants to hear.

Helicopter Rehearses Prime Minister's Visit

That big twin rotor chopper seen floating at low level over the city Wednesday evening had nothing to do with yesterday's sky show at CFB Trenton.

Instead, it was a dry run by a Canadian Forces helicopter mapping out the route to be taken by Prime Minister Trudeau when he visits the Quinte district on September 11.

The route program calls for the Prime Minister's helicopter to set down at Trenton's Mallard with later visits by the official party to Four Season's Hotel and the CJBQ radio offices in Belleville before flying on to Picton.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers have also been in the city conferring with local police officers in laying out the security program for the Prime Minister's visit.

Referring to the appearance of the Canadian Forces helicopter over the city Wednesday evening, Deputy Police Chief Harold Reid said it was just a day run for the Trudeau's upcoming visit.

While in the city, the big chopper sat down briefly at the rear of the Four Seasons Hotel.

Loyalist Enrolment Up

The figure was given to the college's board of governors by director of finance P. G. Harry at Thursday night's board meeting.

Registrations now stand at 573. Last year's enrolment at the college was 532.

If the college attracts 650 students, the minimum estimate now expected to be exceeded, the growth over last year would be 25 percent. About 30 per cent is the usual enrolment growth rate for 20 Ontario community colleges.

Mr. Harry said 45 have registered in first year technology programs, and as a result the degree classes can be expected next year when students branch out into options. Only 30 were expected. In technology programs was 25.

The communications artis first year program is almost at capacity enrolment, and the early childhood education course is now full. The colleges received 123 applications for the 45 available places in the early childhood education course.

Two Local Firms Win Loyalist Jobs

Two local firms have secured contracts in connection with the construction of the new building at Loyalist College.

Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., Belleville, will supply pre-cast concrete for the $2,750,000 building, and Central Bridge Ltd., Trenton, will supply and erect all the structural steel.

Wilson Concrete was the successful bidder, among five contractors, for the precast concrete contract of more than $300,000.

Central Bridge competed with nine other companies for the $300,000 structural steel contract.

Lawsuit Threatened

The Quinte Planning Board, which announced its acceptance Aug. 5 of a tender for office space in Leasehold Construction Corporation's shopping plaza on Highway 2 at the Wallbridge - Loyalist Road, now faces a legal suit from a firm that lost out on the bidding.

A letter signed by Douglas Whitley, representing W. D. Whitley, president of Future Developments Ltd., received at last night's meeting of the QPB, advises the board "we are very disappointed in the method by which you propose to let a tender for space."

The letter expressed dissatisfaction with the board's method of accepting the Leasehold tender, charging a conflict between architectural requirements and actual acceptance methods. "Your subsequent procedure leaves a lot to be desired," the letter continues.

The firm advised representatives of the nine municipalities which constitute the QPB that they are seeking legal action to "force you to consider."

Thank Doria For the Rain

It was Doria that did it!

According to the Tweed climatological station it was the fringe benefits from the Atlantic coast hurricane Doria that stalled a heavy pall over Belleville and Tweed district resulting in drought-breaking rain during the latter part of August.

The close to two inches of rain falling on August 25, 27 and 28, was too late to save some crops and fire damaged forests but did serve to replenish lakes and streams which were dangerously low.

Altogether 2.94 inches of rain fell during the month as compared to a normal three inches of rain for August. Last year only .35 inch of rain fell in August. During the month there were seven electrical storms and 12 days on which rain fell.

But despite so abnormally dry July, the August rains helped to keep Tweed district forest fires in check.

To the end of the month, 87 fires were reported in the Tweed district with 110.8 acres being burned over.

Last year on the same date 111 fires had been reported with 1,052 acres burned over.

Tractor Driver Eludes Coroner

BRIGHTON (Staff) — "It was quite a shock — I guess I am lucky to be here," commented Doug Macklam of RR4, Brighton who escaped yesterday with only minor injury when his tractor was involved in half by the Canadian National Railway's Rapido.

Macklam, a 39 - year - old Northumberland farmer, was taking his enclosed-cab tractor across an unsignalled crossing a mile and a half west of here when the accident occurred.

In the 1:30 p.m. crash, the front portion of the tractor was pushed more than 500 feet down the tracks by the westbound passenger train and it came to rest only after severing a telegraph line beside the tracks.

CN officials reported today that railway crews were in the area and communication service was restored within minutes.

The crack Rapido was halted briefly for repairs to its front section before continuing to Toronto. Driver of the train was Carl Fisher, 35 Turnbull St., Belleville.

Brighton detachment, Ontario Provincial Police reported that when they received word of the spectacular mishap, they had assumed that Macklam had been killed.

However, when police arrived on the scene they found the tractor operator required medical attention for only an ankle injury. He was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital, treated and released.

Bills and Garbage Festival Aftermath

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
and COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporters

A month has gone by since Madoc township's rock festival on the James Quinlin farm, but the event has left a trail of unanswered questions and confusion in its wake.

Youthful festival workers, recruited by brothers Leon and James Quinlin Jr. to construct privies, park cars and sell tickets claim they have not been paid, and the promoters of some are considering legal action.

The brothers, who organized the festival on their father's farm, say $16,000 in gate receipts was stolen during the festival and they now stand at a break-even point on expenses.

But the invasion of Satan's Choice and Para-Dice motorcycle club members was not the reason for cancellation of the last (Sunday) night program of bands, Leon said Saturday.

The brothers said at the time of the festival that fear of personal and property damage by the motorcyclists was the reason they were trying to close the festival seven hours ahead of schedule, before the best-known and more eagerly anticipated groups played.

Yesterday Leon told the press: "All the gangs did was burn some fabric that wasn't even a tent, hit one person, and there wasn't any rape, they just initiated a girl who wanted to be initiated."

Asked the reason for the early end of the event, he replied "That's for Jim and me to know".

The two bearded brothers and a small group of relatives were busy yesterday cleaning up the garbage left by festival fans.

The Quinlin acres were still littered with bottles, broken glass, tin cans and paper. They were picking up only the "hard garbage" — bottles, glass and cans, and leaving the paper to rot away.

The refuse left after the festival was scattered widely across the fields. No garbage receptacles were provided during the festival.

The plywood privies, in various stages of disintegration, are still on the site, including the farmer's shelter, now with half its sides torn off. The stage is still in position, and will remain so, but the brothers plan to remove the plywood floor.

The mortgages, reported to be $30,000 taken on the farm to pay pre-festival expenses, they said "are due the due August 15, said Jim. The money was lent by the company holding the mortgage for a period of one month only, he said.

"That's why we're cleaning up now," commented Leon. "If we had lost the farm we'd have left the garbage."

Leon who has left home, is moving out and "dad may sell the farm, he isn't able to work it," he said. "But that's for him to decide."

The brothers gave conflicting reports on their future plans. Jim said they would hold another festival next year, "but not on this farm. Hastings county is too heavy for us."

He said they would obtain backers, contract for big name American bands and "sneak in quick and hold the festival before anybody has a chance to stop it".

But Leon said they would never hold another festival, despite the experience the y feel they have gained with their first.

"We made a lot of mistakes," both brothers s a i d. "We didn't know where to put security forces, the best places for exits and entrances and enough about the water situa tion".

All bills for the festival are now paid, said Jim, and the cancelled Sunday night bands got 50 per cent of their fees, the amount of the deposit the brothers made to, the bookers.

But Leon said they were forced to pay the full scale of fees for the cancelled bands. And Leon also admitted that young workers at the festival had not been paid.

Later, he amended this to "they were and they weren't it's not fair to say they weren't paid, we paid them as much as we could."

He was asked if, after all the bills contracted for were paid, he had divided the remaining money among his workers.

"That's about it," he said.

But Leon refused to comment further when asked if the brothers had just broken even on their festival.

He blasted press coverage of the event, claiming newspapers had unfairly termed it "a lousy festival" and had made unwarranted attacks on the facilities.

"If I ever have another one, the press will never get in. I don't need them," he said.

"The first injunction killed it," Leon said in reference to the injunction banning the festival granted to Madoc township in early June. The event, originally slated for the first weekend in July, was postponed until the second weekend in August. Prolonged litigation resulted in refusal of further injunctions sought by the township.

The brothers confirmed reports circulating in the district that they had been robbed of $10,000 during the festival Ontario Provincial Police spokesmen said the brothers had reported "alleged missing money" of "an unspecified sum." The report was made to police about two weeks after the brothers said the theft occurred.

"We didn't report it earlier because we were too busy paying bills," said Jim.

He said gate receipts were hidden in a second floor bedroom over the farmhouse kitchen. The room could be reached by a back stairway, and Jim surmised that someone had entered the room by the back stairs on the Saturday night of the festival and made off with the money. His mother, he said, later found a loose bill on the bedroom floor.

The theft was discovered after the festival when the brothers recounted the money, Jim said. He confirmed that the amount missing was about $10,000. "We don't expect it will be recovered," commented Leon.

The missing money was the reason the workers weren't paid in full the brothers said.

A Madoc police officer employee, Kenneth Livingston, says he has a list of about 25 people who were not paid for their work at the festival.

"I was one of the older people who didn't see why they shouldn't hold a rock festival," said Mr. Livingston.

His son, Ian, 18, recruited teenagers from the village to work at the farm three or four days before the festival began. They did construction work in preparation for the festival and during the event parked cars, sold tickets and performed a variety of other tasks.

The boys were given a verbal promise of $2 an hour wages and the girls were promised $1.50 an hour. Amounts owing the young people range up to $150, for a total of well over $1,000.

"There is a written agreement somewhere on the girls' wages. I'm trying to track it down," said Mr. Livingston.

Two days after the festival, when some of the young people asked for their wages, Leon Quinlin said money had been stolen and he 'would pay the workers when the money was recovered.

"He signed a paper saying that, and it was witnessed," said Mr. Livingston.

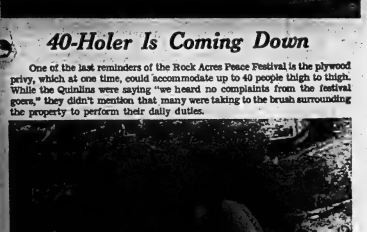
Mr. Livingston then sent a registered letter in his son's name to Leon Quinlin, and received a registered letter in reply from the Quinlin's lawyer.

The letter, Mr. Livingston said, reaffirmed that money had been taken, but due to unusual circumstances had not been reported to police, and restitution to the workers would be made on recovery of the money.

The letter also requested proof of the wage scale promised.

"If each of the 25 young people kicked in $5 for legal fees, it would be well worth going to court," said Mr. Livingston. He is conferring with the parents of other workers on a course of action.

"Most of the kids were hard workers," said Leon. "A few quit at the beginning but the rest worked hard."



In Madoc, opinion seemed agreed that the festival "did not cause any trouble here".

A garage operator said "the can hold one every week, we never did better business".

But some grumblings were heard during the festival that water was being drawn from the better of the village's two wells to serve the fans at the farm. In the middle of the August drought, some villagers feared a water shortage, and didn't appreciate it being trucked away.

40-Holer Is Coming Down

One of the last reminders of the Rock Acres Peace Festival is the plywood privy, which at one time, could accommodate up to 40 people thigh to thigh. While the Quinlins were saying "we heard no complaints from the festival goers," they didn't mention that many were taking to the brush surrounding the property to perform their daily duties.

Garbage Marks the Spot

The Quinlins have finally busted themselves to the task of clearing the mounds of garbage that have littered the grassland around the stage area. Beer bottles and cans constitute the bulk of the load while many smaller pieces of "soft garbage" will remain in the grass. "These papers and such will decompose on their own time," says Jim Quinlin pictured here.

Quinte Planners Seek Consultants

Vice-chairman of the board, Mr. Orr had attempted to have the old Belleville district board adopt the residential chapter of Belleville's proposed official plan, together with the residential zoning bylaw, but his efforts met with defeat.

He predicted that, once in the hands of Quinte board, establishment problems would keep the staff too busy to devote any time to real planning for at least several months.

Mr. Ellis agreed with Mr. Kenny that consultants would be the answer but "they shouldn't neglect other areas while looking after Belleville."

Mr. Kenny said there are "so many problems with the whole organizational setup that if it's to be expedited, it's by consultants."

Mayor Scott, in making his original motion, said "If we do not deal with it immediately, we'll deal with it piecemeal and it'll tie up our board meetings for hours."

He told the board, the minister of municipal affairs and his whole staff in Toronto, had been kept alerted to Quinte problems by Dr. R. T. Potter MPP for Quinte and "they are very concerned with it."

Dr. Potter, in a telephone conversation this morning, said: "I'm anxious to get the whole thing settled and I have discussed it with the minister.

"It's ridiculous to go on for years after year; let's get moving. I've been talking for years about the need to get cracking on an over-all plan which we have been working on for 10 years."

Dr. Scott agreed, commenting, the holdup has been "creating headaches and flack all over and getting people upset."

The mayor said with an annual average of between nine and 10 million dollars in city building permits, and 1970s permits topping the scales with $17 million, further delays are disastrous.

"I can appreciate the fact that the problems of the whole urban question do not owe t with the ideas of the township people, but if we can get the of official plan for the city, we can then get ahead with the whole area," he stated.

Reg Meurdy, Sidney township councillor, said: "Sidney and Thurlow are not prepared to accept the plan without consideration for the whole area."

This statement was followed by Dr. Scott's suggestion that the board proceed with adoption of a plan for the city, excluding the adjacent townships.

The department of municipal affairs "will approve that section if they finish it first, without being done for Sidney and Thurlow," said Dr. Scott.

At this time, only the residential chapter of the official plan has been prepared, with future requirements for economic, industrial, park, commercial, education and transportation requirements, already in draft form, still to be tabled.

Women's Lib Busy

The Women's Lib people are still on the march — as in New York recently when marches, rallies, picket lines and a brief skirmish with the American Stock Exchange marked the 51st anniversary of women's franchise in the United States.

Eight feminists invaded the floor of the Stock Exchange, hung a banner reading Women Even and interrupted exchange proceedings with shouts of "De-sexagrate Wall Street" and "We can't bear any more bull." Mayor Lindsay proclaimed "Women's Rights Day" and named the first woman police captain in the city's history. Just across the border in Vermont the government's commission on the status of women chose the day to announce a drive to get women registered for the vote and prepared for more active participation in politics this fall.

And from Washington comes word that the first sex discrimination case filed against the state department has been decided in favor of the complainant, Elsa Peterson, who in 30, charged that three ambassadors had denied her consecutive posts to Tanzania, Uganda and Ethiopia respectively on account of her sex. Now she is to be given her choice of a "desirable African assignment."

It is interesting to note that one excuse advanced for the non-advancement of women to U.S. political posts in Africa was that in some countries there women are considered inferior. Clearly the women's lib in Africa have even farther to travel down the road of women's lib than they do on this continent. We wonder do they not beat the drums there with the menfolk, as a means of communication or whatever. Consider women in the news media here — there are many of them and not a few who are publishers. There is the famous "Ma" Murray, publisher of the Lillooet B.C. weekly, and in Perque, in the Kitchener area, we see the weekly News-Record has been bought by Mrs. K. C. Cragg, widow of a newspaperman and a former women's editor of The Globe and Mail. Latterly she was Fergus branch manager of the Guelph paper, retiring in June, 1970, Mrs. Cragg is back in action again because she was "bored silly after being used to newspaper work."

If Mrs. Cragg is another example of enterprising women making their own way in the world — she has been widowed since 1948 — others are still rooting for a better deal for women at large. Oshawa controller Mrs. Margaret Shaw for example, who startled male delegates at the recent Ontario Municipal Association convention by charging that election of officers was a cut-and-dried affair. Described as "a pert blonde," Mrs. Shaw called on the men delegates to nominate candidates to the executive from the general session. This was done, but the results were negative. Mrs. Shaw later accused the OMA of being controlled by men. One woman however, Brockville alderman Frances MacOdrum, was named to the 21-member executive.

From the executive suite to the world of the young and salvaging bricks on a demolition site in Toronto is a far cry but that is what Beverley Wootton, 21, and Carrie Wilson, are doing. They were laid off for a day recently because they did not have proper safety boots. The girls are back on the job now and they earn — get this — $10 to $12 a day. Consider too that Air Canada jumbo stewardesses earn up to $9,800 a year.

So really the girls do not do badly these days. So many activities — and as may be seen, the pay is good. Still, these selfasame young women may be aiding one day with their elder sisters as they seek still further equality in a competitive world.

College Courses

Loyalist College's plans for training mental retardation counsellors for the new hospital in Picton is an excellent example of the community college's function. But should it be the purpose of these colleges to have a foot in anything and everything — like the snowmobiling course at Seneca and the courses this college plans to introduce in sailing, riding, smithying, harness-making and buggy repair? Or is this only part of the raison d'etre, to offer expertise in the kind of recreational and non-academic activities the universities would not touch? But snowmobiling for example? Granted a lot of people need to be shown how to handle these machines properly and with safety, but remember the colleges are publicly-financed institutions and there should be no need to set up courses in an activity which may be learned virtually in the course of a day in an open field.

Berlin Easement A Milestone in East-West Relations

LONDON (CP) — In global politics, someone applies a switch touch in one country and the effects are felt 25,000 miles away.

One of the finest exponents of this system was Lester Pearson. With the help of advisers, Richard Nixon may be operating on the same indirect use of influence.

Nixon's recent thaw with Peking Ji appears, has had some impact in speeding Russia toward making an agreement still in draft form—with Britain, France and the United States over the long-gnawing status of Berlin.

Some theories think that Russia, with an eye over its shoulder toward China, where both nations have big forces lined up on their common border, would like to ease off in Europe to leave more strength free to glower at Peking.

Whether or not this is a sound theory, one result of the tentative Berlin agreement is likely to be a certain easing of the tensions in Europe where NATO forces have been confronting larger forces of the Warsaw pact countries for years.

Certainly, there seems to be a loosening of Russian belligerence, even though this has been mostly vocal for the last few years.

The agreement over Berlin, improving the status of West Berlin and guaranteeing access to the city from West Germany, is regarded as a landmark in post-war relations with Russia. It is a big move toward a settlement of the seething problem between East and West over Germany.

It could set the seal on a final and definitive division, formally and legally, between East and West Germany recognized by all the powers.

This could get rid of a lot of the tensions on both sides.

But at the moment it is just in the air and not about to be nailed down.

In London they view it: We are making progress in that direction.

"I don't suppose it ever occurred to you to become a drop-out?"

Self-Determination For S. African Tribal Groups

News from South Africa

The Zulu Territorial Authority sitting at Nongoma, has decided that Uhendi, near Mahlabatini, will become the permanent capital of Zululand. At its meeting recently, the Territorial Authority accepted the principle of a legislative assembly for the Zulus. It was decided that the executive committee of the T.A. draft a constitution for the assembly, in collaboration with the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, Mr. M. C. Botha.

The chief executive officer, Chief Gatsha Buthelezi, said he hoped the assembly would become the mouth-piece of the Zulu people. He reiterated that the Bantu people were loyal to South Africa and said the Zulus, like any other people, were prepared to fight for their country.

Chief Wenzels Mota, of the South Sotho nation living in Witsieshoek, said that the tasks his delegation had had with the Prime Minister, Mr. John Vorster, and the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, Mr. M. C. Botha, had been aimed at a higher degree of self-government for his people. He told a press conference that the measure of self-government the South had enjoyed until now had been limited. He said it was necessary for any government to have a degree of self - determination before it could help itself towards progress.

Chief Mota's councillor in charge of education and cultural affairs, Mr. H. Mota, said he did not believe his people were fighting "reckless" in his advance towards greater self-determination. "We are not fighting anyone," he said. "We have the full support of our people and we have no aspirations towards self-realization. We feel it is in separate development (apartheid) affords the ideal opportunity for the progress and development to all of South Africa's black people."

Some Myths About the Youth Scene

Portland Oregonian

One of the myths of this myth - embracing age is that youth is taking over the country merely by numbers.

A letter, just arrived on the editor's desk, begins: "Did you know that half of America's population is under 25? Did you know that young people make up the most potent force in our nation's history?"

No, we didn't know it, and it's not true. For most of the history of this aging country, youth, measured by years, has been more dominant than today.

The youth myth has soared because the median age has indeed been going down for several years and today's youth has much more opportunity for self-expression. The 1950 census found half the population of the United States under 30, the highest level the U.S. median age has ever reached. In 1960, the median age was down to 29.5. Now it is about 27 and may go lower.

But it will certainly take a long time before it gets down to the level of 1800, when it was 21, or the Civil War years, when half the population was less than 20 years old. And in the days of the formation of the Union, in the late 18th century, the median age of U.S. residents was about 16.

Those were really the days of youth in America, and the standards they set for the youth to follow were high.

The 'Haves' and the 'Have-nots'

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Just made a visit to our beautiful new mall. It is certainly an added attraction to the many attractions that are bringing more and more people to choose Belleville as their home. It is clean, bright and everyone seems to be moving about in a happy, carefree fashion.

But something struck me as I was wandering around looking at all the wonderful displays by local and national distributors. Wouldn't it be great if the other three-quarters of the world could enjoy something like we have achieved in our affluent society? When I came home I picked up the paper and read the appeal for Pakistan. Relief made by Canon Wright of Christ Church. I couldn't get to sleep until I had at least pledged to match what I had spent at the mall on myself with a contribution to this worthy appeal.

I hope others think as I did.

Ireland: A Lack Of Moral Leadership

Ottawa Journal

A British patrol straying across the border between Ulster and the Irish Republic. Escaped villagers holding the troops at bay an hour. The IRA storying into position and ambushing the soldiers as they stopped to repair their armoured car's flat tire.

The plot is stage - Irish, right out of Sean O'Casey and a dozen lesser playwrights of a half-century ago; too trite for serious dramatists today.

It is unbelievable that such a scenario should be played out in Ireland in 1971. That it has tragically, means that the end to the present contagion of madness is more difficult than ever to imagine.

Some commentators talk airily of solutions after the bombings end the gunfire have stopped. The authorities in Ireland, North and South don't have that luxury. The first goal must be to stop the anarchy.

Internment without trial was supposed to do that. But the detention of 329 men did not save Belfast offices from brutally indiscriminate bombings. It did not prevent more than 20 explosions during the past weekend and still more last night. It has in fact shown that the number of gunmen is greater than the government has ever been willing to admit existed.

The best chance for the return of reason in Ulster is some kind of moral leadership. But if all the churches cried out for peace in the name of God, the results could be no greater than those the politicians have so far achieved.

Grant For University Program

Peterborough Examiner

Since newspaper readers have become rather blase about stories announcing the expenditure of large sums of money, many may not have appreciated the significance of last week's news about Trent University.

After a considerable amount of time and effort on the part of University officials, the Toronto Dominion Foundation has been persuaded to part with $302,300 for Trent's new Indian-Eskimo studies program.

By American foundation standards, $302,300 isn't anything to get excited about; the Rockefellers donate millions at a time.

But by Canadian standards, the grant is substantial. The fact that the Donner Canadian Foundation is willing to put up much money into the Trent program says a great deal for the university.

Toronto's Crowded Airport

St. Catharines Standard

There seems to be no end, at least in the foreseeable future to the criticism of poor operation and delays at the Toronto International Airport. Judging by some of the editorials and letters — to the editor, it isn't just that the airport is often jammed with people waiting for a delayed departure or waiting for relatives or friends arriving on a plane that's hours late, but also a matter of unnerving and pointless delays between getting off a plane and getting out of the terminal building.

The Department of Transport which is responsible for the airport operation, admits that daily passenger volume exceeds the airport's designed capacity. Beyond that, the department is doing precious little.

Alberta: Back in the Mainstream

Ottawa Journal

Social Credit appeared to govern Alberta by divine right, a notion that its leaders did not discourage and that even the public reasoners of the province seemed to confirm.

Most Canadians cannot remember the day when Alberta did not have a Social Credit government. In politics, 36 years is a dynasty. Now it is over, and it is probable we shall never see its like again; today's society craves change, as the turnover of government in so many recent provincial elections has shown.

Yet such was the spell of Social Credit over Alberta that a Conservative victory, which should have been predictable, is now regarded as a great upset. The Conservatives simply did not dare to believe the evidence. Social Credit would lose some seats but would stay in power; that was the conventional wisdom.

But Alberta has rolled over all the way. The province has not chosen a new political philosophy. It remains committed to free enterprise, which was mainly what Social Credit came to stand for after the monetary theories of Major C. H. Douglas were discreetly discarded. Alberta has chosen the dynamism and youth of the Conservative leadership of Peter Lougheed. Alberta has come back into the main stream of Canadian political life. Now is the significance of the election. Social Credit is a spent force in the province, though it has left a record of decent, capable government. The premier-elect was generous enough to acknowledge that good record even in the flush of his victory.

Peter Lougheed is a leader of great promise. He has now to prove himself in the demanding years ahead. The time of Alberta's automatic prosperity from oil and wheat has passed. But Lougheed's election should be a profound encouragement to the whole Conservative party. Lawyers Cautioned

New Taxes Too Involved for Dabblers

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Canadian lawyers were told Thursday that if they get into the taxation field only occasionally, they won't be able to understand the proposed new tax system just by reading the law.

R. D. Bell, a Calgary lawyer, told the convention of the Canadian Bar Association that lawyers, both old and young, who tackle taxes occasionally, will find it "absolutely impossible from reading the bill to obtain a working knowledge of the new system."

Jack R. London of Winnipeg said he made several attempts to start a paper on the new bill but each try was abortive because the most important part of the depreciation puzzle in the proposed legislation—its regulations—were not available.

Delegates considering 17 papers on Finance Minister Benson's new taxation legislation described it as complex, difficult, confusing and a letdown.

The association has a special committee set up to make representations to Finance Minister Benson on the new tax reform bill.

A Vancouver resolution asking that hospital abortion committees be eliminated was referred to provincial sections of the association for further study.

Peter Butler of Vancouver, who introduced the motion, said certificates from a therapeutic abortion committee because some hospitals in smaller areas, "or for religious reasons" have no such committee.

The motion asked that the Criminal Code be changed to permit qualified doctors to perform or prescribe abortions "at the request of a patient."

Abortion now is permitted only to prevent harm to a woman's physical or mental health, as judged by a committee at a hospital.

Patrick Furlong, a Windsor, Ont. lawyer, said he opposed the motion because "what we're voting for is legalized murder by doctors only."

Dr. Morris Shumiatcher of Regina, not a medical doctor but a recognized expert in civil liberties, said the rights of the unborn child now are being recognized in civil law. Drug manufacturers had to pay damages to children born with defects after their mothers took thalidomide during pregnancy.

"It seems inconsistent and anomalous if we say that the unborn child can't be a cripple but he can be killed," he said.

"That, in effect, is my view of what an abortion amounts to."

Stephen Scott, Toronto, said that if they supported the resolution, lawyers "could be well on the way to" supporting euthanasia and population control.

Police Chiefs Hear Report Crime Invades Governments

CALGARY (CP) — Organized crime in Canada has infiltrated government and one of the main reasons is public apathy, the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police was told Thursday.

The statement was contained in a report to the association's annual meeting by a 10-member committee studying organized crime.

Bookmaking, illegal lotteries and other forms of gambling are "the largest individual revenue producers for the overlords of crime," the report said, and law enforcement is barely managing to maintain its own.

Director-General Maurice St.-Pierre of the Quebec Provincial Police, who headed the committee, said part of the problem is general public enjoyment of such activities as prostitution and gambling, areas in which "easy money supports syndicated crime.

"On the basis of intelligence available, organized crime groups have made inroads in the public administration by subverting or inciting politicians, law enforcement officers and civil servants to corruption," the report said.

Toronto Chief Harold Adamson, a member of the committee, said in an interview syndicated crime "doesn't exist in Toronto."

"But we must still be alert to it since it does exist in parts of

36 Policemen Murdered

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal statistics show that 36 policemen were murdered while on duty during the 10-year period from 1961 to 1970.

Statistics Canada, in making an intensive computer study of murder during the period, and the table on police killings is among 2,500 expected to be produced.

Parliament next year will debate whether to make permanent a five-year suspension of the death penalty. The suspension doesn't apply in capital cases involving the slaying of police or prison guards.

The report said organized crime continues to traffick in narcotics in Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal.

"It would appear that our hard-drug population is continuing to increase with a high level of enforcement doing little more than control the situation. . . .

Chiefs were forbidden by their association to comment on the report and Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer also refused comment.

Others on the committee were Chiefs F. E. Skoose, Edmonton; L. G. Lawrence, Hamilton; G. O. Robinson, Halifax, and Eric Silk, Ontario Provincial Police commissioner.

The convention ends today.

Government Has Little Hope Of January Date for Ad Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has all but given up hope of implementing a ban on cigarette advertising by next Jan. 1.

Health Minister John Munro offered Thursday to negotiate an implementation date with cigarette manufacturers, the advertising industry and tobacco growers.

They will meet during the next three weeks to discuss the date and other aspects of the tobacco products legislation introduced in the Commons last June.

The talks will cover such things as levels of tar and nicotine that should be permitted after the legislation is approved.

However, approval is probably months away because the bill has been given no legislative priority yet and other items such as Finance Minister Benson's tax changes are first on the agenda when the Commons resumes Tuesday.

Mr. Munro's office said the uncertainties of the legislative timetable were the sole cause for trying to negotiate a new implementation date for the cigarette ad ban.

Jan. 1, 1972, was given in the legislation when it was introduced as the date of implementation.

The bill would require manufacturers to include on the package the statement: "Danger to health increases with amount smoked, avoid inhaling."

The fate of the current bill depends on whether the government intends to wind up the present parliamentary session after securing approval of Mr. Benson's tax reforms.

If this occurs, the cigarette bill and any other legislation not through all legislative stages will die. Any further government effort to legislate a ban then will have to start all over again in the Parliamentary mill at a new session.

Dr. Ross Chapman, special adviser to the federal deputy health minister and co-ordinator of the talks on implementation of the bill, said "there is no intention of the government backing away from the legislation."

Besides the date, questions of the permissible levels of tar and nicotine, filters, types of cigarette paper and various kinds of tobacco will come under scrutiny.

REDNERSVILLE WI

For the August meeting of the Rednersville WI, members toured the Mead Johnson plant in Belleville. Mrs. Peter Moran had made the arrangements and all met there at 1.30 p.m. August 26. All were asked to register and given paper caps to wear. They divided the group into two and guides took each through a large business office and into a laboratory. Here samples of everything that comes into the plant are tested, to be certain they are as labelled. This seems an important step, especially where foods are concerned.

It was interesting to see the quantity of the materials — rice flour, oat flour, lactose, etc. — used in the making of the different baby foods and dietary aids. One striking thing was the huge drying drums used in making powdhim. These were around 30 feet long, turning slowly, and the pahium came over them in thin, opaque sheets that resembled plastic. As it emffed a trough below the drum the sheet was broken up and sent on its way.

The groups also saw pills being made, small bottles being labelled and cans of ointment being filled, capped and packaged — all this by machine, with few attendants. The guide said most of the nutriment is for export. Cleanliness was very evident all through the plant.

The plant cafeteria had been offered for the short business meeting, but the seating accommodation was limited. Instead it was decided to hold the meeting on the sloping lawn near the parked cars. It turned out to be a success.

Members were reminded of a collection for the blind to be held at the September meeting.

As September is a very busy month no "visiting volunteers" were called for. If need arises a volunteer will be available.

A new short course for this fall is Marlo Fruit. Canning leaders for it was deferred as a number of members could not be present.

Two items concerning Picton Fair were discussed. The Women's Institute has been asked to put up a display of the hats made by members during the hat course last fall. Also they have been asked to supply cookies and to serve tea and cookies at the fair on Sunday afternoon September 12.

The meeting was adjourned and some went to George's Restaurant for lunch.

Previously, Rednersville WI entered a float in the parade for the Quinte Exhibition on August 17. A wagon was loaned by Alfred Cairns, who also towed it in the parade. A long blue and gold banner was made and the whole float very nicely decorated.

A large group of members, dressed in old-time costumes, rode on the float singing songs. They were accompanied by an accordion and kept time with rhythm band instruments.

Some of the group displayed rugs, quilting and other WI activities. All enjoyed taking part in the parade.

MELROSE WI

The regular meeting of Melrose WI was held at the home of Mrs. H. McAvoy on the evening of the 26th. There was a large attendance which included several visitors, one of which was the guest speaker, Mrs. Ralph Sills.

Responses to the roll-call "an industry or a building that once existed in the community" brought back interesting pictures of long ago as well as some of more recent times.

The display shown at Belleville Exhibition had attracted the attention of the judges and it had won a second prize. Mrs. Grandaigue was thanked for having arranged the exhibit.

A motion was carried that this institute will enter a display at the "world's fair" which comes up on the 11th and 12th.

Program convener, Mrs. Charles Bales Jr., called on her assistant, Mrs. Granddaigue, who spoke on "our museum (in Belleville); past, present and future." If new location is at 257 Bridge St. East, (to be opened later this year).

Mrs. Beare then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Sills, who had spent part of January last, and all of February on a tour of South Africa and the city of Rome. A short talk preceded the showing of slides which proved interesting to all. Pictures and souvenirs added interest to the program. Beautiful pieces of bead work, done by the natives, were among the souvenirs.

Following her slides, with commentary, Mrs. Sills was presented with a sterling silver teaspoon. She remarked that she now had more than 150 souvenir spoons in her collection and was pleased to add one more.

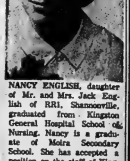
An amusing contest concluded the meeting (Mrs. Gokamp being first prize winner).

The social committee and the hostess provided refreshments.

The Public Health nurse will be the guest at the next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. G. McLaren.

MOUNTAIN VIEW WI

Mrs. Jay Spargus entertained for the August meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute at her summer home at Big Island. The meeting started with a pot luck dinner at 1 p.m. There were 29 women and 18 children present.



After everyone had enjoyed a wonderful dinner a short business meeting was held. A guest speaker, Corporal Hall of the Belleville Police Detachment was introduced and he addressed the children on safety. Mrs. D. Farmer thanked Corporal Hall and presented him with a gift and Mrs B. Barber thanked the hostess and also the co-hostess Mrs. K. Motley for their hospitality and the meeting was closed. The children and some of the adults enjoyed a swim in the bay after which the children participated in playing games for a time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is no gag. I am dead serious and nervous as a cat. You will find this hard to believe but my future mother-in-law has suggested that she and her husband go along on our honeymoon. At first I was sure she was kidding, but last night my fiance told me it is no joke. She asked how many suitcases she and her husband should take.

According to his mother, we would have a better time if another couple went along because "two people get bored with just each other's company." My fiance hasn't said much one way or the other (which bothers the daylights out of me), so now I must be the one to put the kibosh on the foursome. What shall I say? — ON THE LEVEL IN DETROIT.

DEAR ON: For openers you might tell your mother-in-law that ever since you were a little girl you've had a romantic fantasy about going on a honeymoon with the man you marry and you just can't seem to change that dream to include his parents. Send her a postcard from Niagara Falls.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a five-year diary which I have kept for the last two years. It has some very personal stuff in it. I never lie to my diary and everything I do gets recorded.

Yesterday my cousin was over to our house and she saw my diary in my bureau drawer. She asked me if it was "private" and I said, "Yes. Very." A couple minutes later my mother called me to help her move something off the back porch. I excused myself and went downstairs saying I'd be back in a minute.

When I returned, my cousin was reading my diary. Her eyes were darned near popping out of her head. I grabbed it from her but it was too late. She had already found out plenty.

When I told her she was a little snoop she said, "You really wanted me to react it or you wouldn't have left me alone with it." I think she is crazy. She said to ask you what the shrinks say. What's the verdict? — POINT-AND DILEMMA.

DEAR PORTY: The shrinks say she is right.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I didn't care for your advice on ways for children to release pent-up frustration and hostility, breaking old toys and smashing cheap dishes is disrespectful, wasteful and phony. It will not make healthier kids, happier houses or safer neighborhoods. It might make terrific soldiers for future wars but it won't get rid of hostility.

There are better outlets. Teach the child why a person can't always have his own way. Help him to see the other point of view. Show him that verbal communication might change things.

For the remaining resentment, there are real-life needs for a aggression other than recreational outlets. How about squashing tin cans for recycling? How about pounding meat, kneading dough, beating carpets, chopping vegetables? How about scrubbing and polishing? How about pulling weeds — or washing walls? How about writing a letter to Ann Landers? — ANOTHER MOTHER FOR PEACE.

DEAR MOTHER: Your suggestions for dealing with frustration and anger are superior to mine because they are constructive rather than destructive. Thank you for providing me with a better answer. Readers such as you have helped to make this column what it is.

Here's How to Handle Those Extra Tomatoes

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I will be watching for your catsup recipe because we have more tomatoes in our vegetable garden than we can eat. We give lots away but I thought I should make a batch of catsup because we use so much. You have been so good answering my questions before . . Anne Marie McM.

ANSWER: Thank you. I was surprised to find that the last time I gave a catsup recipe here was in October 1968. High time I repeated.

TOMATO CATSUP

One pack (15 lbs.) ripe, unpeeled cut-up tomatoes
6 med. onions, peeled and sliced
2 garlic cloves, peeled and chopped
2 sweet red peppers seeded and chopped
1 red hot pepper pod
1 bay leaf
1 tbsp. whole allspice berries
1 tbsp. celery seed
1 tbsp. mustard seed
1 tbsp. salt
1 stick cinnamon
½ tsp. white pepper (to keep color light)
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ cup light brown sugar
2 cups white spirit vinegar

In preserving kettle mash tomatoes with potato masher; add onions and garlic, sweet peppers and 2 cups water and cook until tender. Strain through fine sieve or cheesecloth-lined colander. Tie red pepper pod, bay leaf, allspice berries, celery and mustard seeds, stick cinnamon in cheesecloth bag and add it and the salt and pepper to the strained juice. Boil until it is reduced by one-half, stirring very often. Add sugars and vinegar and cook 15 min. longer. Pour into hot sterilized bottles or jars and seal or cork. If in corked bottles or bottles topped with screw caps, dip tops in melted wax when they have cooled down.

A Pat Can Be Such A Reassuring and Comforting Gesture

By DORIS CLARK

The sweet comfort of a pat!

My small nephew, David, didn't like my self-disappearement when I complained that I needed more piano practice if I was going to play for a family sing-song. So he protested, and as he did, he patted me to make me feel better.

I felt wonderful.

Then when we drove home late at night from a fireworks display, he rested his head on my shoulder and I patted his forehead.

I couldn't help but reflect on how expressive a pat is. Closeness, pathos, mean being understood, comforted!

* * *

Dear Doris: It seems I can date a girl only a few times. I enjoy her company, but I cannot turn an evening into the fun time that it should be. I am a boy 23 years of age and a farmer.

In the past I have been in the ski clubs and had a great time. Six years ago I had an operation on my throat to improve my speech, which it did, but I still have trouble making some people understand me. I feel embarrassed when, after starting conversation, I am not able to keep it going. When I say one thing, people think I am saying something else.

Other things that I do enjoy are bowling and curling, but I do not feel I can afford the cost. I have read some books on sex and dating. An evening feels empty when I go to a show or dance and do not have a date.

Am I just — A Confirmed Bachelor?

Dear Bachelor: No, you are a friendly, sociable person with a handicap.

If there is more work to be done before you can speak properly, your doctor to refer you to a speech therapist. If part of the problem is to make easy conversation, broaden your interests.

Part of the trick is to talk about what your date finds absorbing. Work on that.

* * *

Dear Doris: I read with great interest of the International People's College a while back, not realizing that perhaps, I, too, might be able to make a dream come true.

I need something like this to happen in my life. I long for more knowledge and would appreciate more details. I have retired from children and have been alone with them since my youngest son, age 11, was a baby. I'm sure he could stay with my relatives for three months.

I have a friend who is a nurse, and is also alone. We both discussed this and it sounds so worthwhile.

I'm 51 now. My birthday was yesterday and I would like to branch out a bit and learn more, as my life was becoming so humdrum. — Looking For A Challenge.

Dear Looking: You couldn't do better, to my mind, than enrol for a session at International People's College, Denmark, with its broad program and international flavor. I'm sending the leaflet of information and hope you and your nurse-friend will go.

If you do, how about a report for our readers?

* * *

Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.

Russia Gives Priority To Deterrence of War

LONDON (CP) — Russia seems to have joined the United States in giving No. 1 nuclear priority to the deterrence of war rather than to the offensive, the International Institute of Strategic Studies says.

The independently-financed institute, which has members in 46 countries outside the Soviet bloc, says in its annual study released today that Russia now is ahead of the U.S. in intercontinental ballistics missiles but apparently has slowed their development.

"Soviet strategic nuclear forces", it says, "appear to be designed primarily to deter an American strategic attack upon the Soviet Union.

"In terms of intent . . . it seems that deterrence of each other represents the first priority for both countries."

The institute estimates that Russia now has 510 ICBMs against 1,054 for the U.S. But it adds:

"Soviet deployment has, however, slowed down considerably since the beginning of 1967 and may have reached, or be approaching, its planned level."

Other points in the institute's survey:

1. The Warsaw pact nations are extending their lead over NATO's conventional forces in Europe;

2. China now is operational on medium-range ballistics missiles but not yet in the intercontinental class;

3. Russia is overtaking the U.S. in submarine-launched nuclear missiles and at the present rate could wipe out the U.S. lead by 1976;

4. Military budgets of most countries are up, with Israel and Egypt spending the largest proportions of their national incomes.

The institute also says that China, which up to last year lagged far behind in the missile race has succeeded in producing a medium range missile and has apparently deployed about 30 of them.

China has also increased its nuclear air strike capability by producing at least 30 TU-16 medium bombers with an operational range of about 1,200 miles and can build five more every month. At least one nuclear submarine is under construction.

Dealing with the confrontation between NATO and the Warsaw pact countries in Europe, the institute says that "the marked numerical disparity remains, with NATO having little more than a third as many operational tanks as the Warsaw pact and 2,300 fewer tactical aircraft."

"The imbalance has moved further in favor of the Warsaw pact during the year . . . ."

Admiral Says H-bomb Has Made War Unlikely

BRANDY STATION, Va. (AP) — Rear-Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, who helped spur United States development of the hydrogen bomb, believes nuclear weapons have made new major wars unlikely. He thinks man's biggest problem in the future will be to ward off widespread starvation.

"I suggest that the great wars are over," said Strauss, financial adviser to five U.S. presidents and former chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

"The fact that we and the Russians and the British and the French have had it now for this long a period without using it attests to the persuasive deterrence of nuclear armament," he said.

Strauss, 75, said in an interview that perfection of nuclear weaponry by the Chinese "represents a new factor."

He said "we don't know enough about Chinese mentality to know whether they'll bluff or actually use it some day."

Strauss said his greatest concern for the future is that world population growth will be so steep that the number of mouths to feed will outstrip food production.

"Then you have starvation. This is what is staring us in the face."

Police Scoff At FLQ Story

MONTREAL (CP) — Police scoffed Thursday at published reports quoting a government press officer as saying the co-ordinator of terrorist activities during last October's political kidnapping crisis is a well-known and respected Quebecer.

Insp. Paul Beaudry, head of the anti-terrorist squad, denied that an important terrorist suspect is still at large and said "there seems to be a concerted effort by some newspapers to credit terrorists with any number and variety of recent crimes."

The statement about the terrorist leader was attributed to Joseph Cromp, press secretary to Solicitor-General Roy Fournier, who admitted later he had had "a friendly conversation" with a number of Quebec reporters.

Mr. Cromp, a former Montreal newspaper man, issued a statement today saying he has not seen any police files since joining the solicitor-general's staff last Aug. 5.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Institutions Betray Us

One of the central — and perhaps parental — problems of mankind has not even begun to be solved. The problem is this: we cannot exist without institutions to serve us, and yet our institutions regularly betray our largest and deeper human needs.

Schools, government bodies, churches — whatever institution we create for whatever good and noble purposes — eventually develop a life and a raison d'etre of their own. They soon begin (unconsciously) to operate for their own sakes, for surviving, controlling and expanding, more than for the sake of the community that formed them, or the original purpose for which they were established.

Consider the question of "loyalties". A person's basic loyalties should be to his widest social group (humanity, ultimately). But when a person becomes a member of a self-perpetuating organization or institution, his area of loyalty narrows to the confines of that group, which takes precedence over the needs and demands of the whole society.

The Commissioner of Police is trying desperately to root out the crooks and bribe-takers in the department. Everyone in the city knows that gambling, prostitution, narcotics, and organized crime could not flourish without their active connivance.

Yet the men in the department have been so indoctrinated that their basic loyalty is to "the department," not to the city of New York or the society at large. The honest ones simply avert their eyes at the crooked cops' wrongdoings; they will not inform or squeal on them.

Here we have two ethical codes coming into conflict. One is the ancient maxim that you don't tattle on your colleagues — a principle we have all been taught at an early age. The other is the moral precept that everyone is responsible for the honesty and decency in a community, and that to condone wrong-doing is a social evil in itself.

What happens, realistically, however, is that the second is almost always jettisoned in favor of the first: Even the armed services of our nation, while professing "patriotism," have often demonstrated that they are more interested in the good of their own service — Army, Navy, Air Force — than the total good of the combined services. It has been terribly hard for civilians to get them to work together.

We seem most comfortable when our loyalty is restricted to a particular group within our larger group; our emotional structure does not seem capacious or resilient enough to embrace the highest level of community, and we identify only with our special part of it. Until we get over this hump, no real reform is possible in the dispersion and distribution of social justice.

Quebecois Want Chance To Tell It in Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty-two persons charged under the War Measures Act last October want their day in court despite a Quebec decision not to prosecute.

Some of those charged appeared at a news conference Thursday and demanded that their cases come before the courts at the fall assizes, starting next week.

The justice department has ordered Crown prosecutors to drop proceedings under the charges, but has not dropped the charges themselves.

Lawyer Robert Lemieux, who represents many of those charged and is charged himself, said "the Crown attorneys should tell the court that they have no evidence against the accused and should ask for an acquittal."

Technically, the charges could be revived at a later date if Justice Minister Jerome Choquette or any of his successors should so decide.

Most of the charges dealt with alleged membership in the outlawed Front de Libertion du Quebec during last October's kidnap crisis.

New York Police Differ on Anti-graft Campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — "God bless the man," said a policeman speaking of his boss. "Listen, if he gets rid of the graft, then I'm with him all the way."

The praise was for Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy and his efforts to root out corruption among the city's 31,700 policemen, largest force in North America.

But another man on the beat took a dimmer view:

"Morale is lower than it's ever been."

The mixed reaction comes as Murphy shakes up "New York's Finest"—his police department, —with charges that some cops have taken as much as $10,000 in single bribes from gamblers or narcotics dealers and that leadership was lacking in the department's command and administrative echelons.

Since Mayor John V. Lindsay appointed him last Oct. 9, Murphy has demoted, transferred and reorganized his men at command levels.

In one of his most dramatic moves, this week he passed over 72 men of higher ranking or seniority to appoint Inspector Donald F. Cawley as chief of patrol.

At 42, Cawley was the youngest inspector and is the youngest man to have direct command of the department's 29,000-man uniformed patrol force.

Murphy said his policy is to "increase significantly" the authority of his top commanders. In turn, he said "they will be held to greater accountability."

Wednesday he demoted one inspector because "he did not meet my standards," and busted Assistant Chief Inspector Lawrence Flood, whom he had appointed only two months ago to work full time on integrity control within the department.

Flood's demotion by one rank after 34 years on the job, Murphy said, "obviously reflects my dissatisfaction."

Vantage Points Vary

Regardless of the performance, finding the ideal vantage point from which to watch a show is often a problem but some members of the 5,000-plus crowd at Trenton's Armed Forces Day air show yesterday came up with fine solutions.

For the youngsters, seeking a place with unobstructed view was generally a must. Some clambered up fire-escapes on No. 9 Hangar; while others like Richie Howlett, (right), son of WO and Mrs. Fred Howlett, Trenton, sought parental shoulders, or in Richie's case those of binocular-equipped brother Michael.

However, for one group of officers, (above), sitting out on the roof of a heavy transport Hercules made for perfect viewing as a formation of CT-114 Tutor trainers passed before them in a display of precision flying.

Area Farmers Challenge Giant Milk Processors

Quinte area members of the National Farmers Union today are handing out pamphlets at four Belleville supermarkets urging a boycott of Kraft Foods products.

The NFU is boycotting Kraft's to back up their demand that the company negotiate in good faith with the farm union.

The information pamphlets presenting the farm union story are being handed out outside the Domian and A and P supermarkets at the east end Belleville plaza, at Loblaws on Pinnacle Street and at Steinberg's at the new Quinte Mall.

Similar action is being taken at Trenton, Kingston and 13 other urban centres in southern Ontario. The pamphlets urge consumers not to buy products sold under the Kraft, Sealtest and Dominion Dairies labels, companies all owned by Krafco Corporation.

"Right now," says the pamphlets, "they have no say at all about the price they are paid for milk used by the giant corporations like Kraft. They must sit back and take whatever price is offered by these monopolies and their marketing agents.

The result, according to the pamphlet is "unbelievably low incomes." Farmers and their families are being driven from their land every day.

A press statement by the union says farmers' attempts to negotiate are continually being thwarted by provincial and federal governments and their agencies (like the Ontario Milk Commission) and by multi-national agri-business corporations.

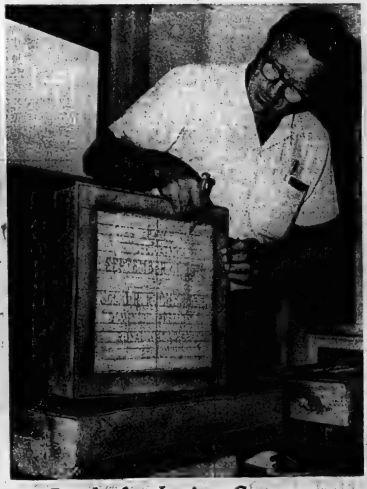
The losers include the farmers, the small cheese plants who have had their milk supply taken from them via the quota system, introduced and managed by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board and transferred to outfits like Kraft; the small town businessman, the taxpayers (through subsidized plants like Kraft's at Ingleside to the tune of $250,000 in the form of an interest free (forgivable loan) the urban dweller and the consumer.

Phosphorous Removal Joint Topic

City council will hold a special meeting with Ontario Water Resources staff September 8 at the city hall council chambers to discuss a possible phosphorus removal program for the city's bayfront sewage treatment plant.

The meeting has been arranged through G. L. Van Fleet, phosphorus program coordinator with the OWRC.



Belleville sewage plant.

The possibility of phosphorus removal at the Belleville plant was discussed briefly in city council some weeks ago and Mayor J. Russell Scott said he would try to arrange for OWRC experts to address council on the matter.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting on Sept. 8 at city hall will be open to the public.

Legion Prepares for Grand Opening

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

Ready for Legion Ceremony

With Dominion president Judge Remond Roche officiating, Belleville Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion opens its new modern building complex and convention centre Saturday, September 11. Assisting with the cornerstone laying at 4 p.m. will be the general contractor, Wieger DeJong of Stirling. The building, which cost $280,000 and took almost a year in the construction was designed by Harold Vaughan, a teacher of building trades in Belleville area schools most of his life. He is first vice-president of Branch 99. Preparing the stone for cutting is Bob Ricketts foreman for the Campbell Monument firm in the city.

Belleville Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion is being recognized publicly for its greatest achievement to date, the building of a permanent home on Pinnacle Street.

The event will be marked with reverence and dignity and a festive pause before members and their guests turn to dancing on the second and third floors where separate bands will provide music for celebrants throughout the evening.

The dedication service and laying of the cornerstone are set for Saturday, September 11 commencing at 4 p.m.

On the occasion, the Legion's Dominion president Judge Redmond Roche will officiate with Provincial president Don Wilson cutting the ribbon as the signal for those present to tour the premises and view the decor and functional excellence of the unique facility.

Prior to the cornerstone laying ceremony, Judge and Mrs. Roche along with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will proceed to the guest book for distinguished visitors to Belleville. Alderman Arthur Keegan, acting as mayor, will receive them. They will be accompanied by Branch president Jack Rashotte.

A highlight of the dinner program in the evening will be a special ceremony honoring Mrs. Irene Holland for her kindness to Branch 99. A plaque fixed to the wall inside the entrance to the second floor will be unveiled in memory of Thomas J. Holland. Jack Holland and Bob Holland, the husband and two sons of Mrs. Holland, a Silver Cross mother. Mrs. Holland owned and operated a plumbing and heating business for many years in one of the city's oldest buildings on the site of the new Legion complex. She will attend the dinner with her two daughters and daughter-in-law.

A new concept for buildings in the downtown area, the spacious modern complex is considered an architect's dream for its many practical features.

It is the brainchild of Branch first vice - president Harold Vaughan, a former instructor in carpentry and building trades at the Ontario School for the Deaf and city high schools. Since retiring from teaching school he's been active in Legion work, planning the new building and assisting daily on the site since construction started in earnest Oct. 1, 1970.

Actually, the complex, because of the great amount of space it offers to convention interests, gives Belleville a decided advantage over other centres in the whole of Eastern Ontario. There is plenty of room on the second and third floors for a crowd of 1,200 to congregate. And the kitchen is equipped to feed as many at a sitting. In fact it is possible to hold four wedding receptions on two floors simultaneously. The floor area on the three levels in the building totals more than 25,000 square feet.

For the membership of Branch 99, the branch's women's auxiliary and the Col. Pbay Wilks branch 387, the place will serve as a recreation and service centre as well as a location for all veterans to carry on projects in connection with the pension, advocate, poppy fund, public speaking program, youth sports program, student bursaries and other activities helping school children.

The complex, without windows in its four walls, appears unusual from the outside but the solid concrete block construction improves the effectiveness of air conditioning in summer and heating during the wider months.

To realise the magnificence of the structure and the worth of its capabilities to the community one must go inside and walk through all three

Lolich Has Trim Left Arm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit manager Billy Martin jokingly calls Mickey Lolich "the best left-hander pot-bellied pitcher I've got."

Lolich says, "I don't mind people saying that I'm pot-bellied or fat. People joke about it in the papers when I'm winning, but what I don't like is when I lose they sort of twist things around and make me look bad by calling me out-of-shape, a slob or things like that. I don't like that."

Lolich has not had to worry much this season about unkind remarks. Most of his press has been good. After all, he has won 22 games—only one less than major league leader Vida Blue of Oakland Athletics—and lost 10.

The veteran southpaw posted his 22nd victory—most by a Tiger left-hander since 1946 when Hal Newhouser won 26—with a six-hitter Wednesday night as Detroit whipped Cleveland Indians 7-0.

In the only other American League night game, the New York Yankees routed Washington Senators 11-1. In the afternoon, Boston Red Sox blanked Baltimore Orioles 3-0, and Milwaukee Brewers edged Kansas City Royals 1-0.

Lolich, who works every fourth day, said he thinks he has a chance of catching or passing Blue, who pitches every fifth day. In both victories and strikeouts. Lolich said he figures to make seven more starts to only five for the fire-balling Athletics left-hander.

Bill Freehan and Norm Cash provided the major batting support for Lolich. Freehan drove home three runs with his 18th homer, a single and a sacrifice fly. Cash knocked in two runs with a triple and a single,

Salami Sinks Dodgers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I don't know what else you could call it," Houston manager Harry Walker commented. "It wasn't an error. If it had been just a single or a double nobody would have gotten very excited about it."

Bob Watson of the Astros knew exactly what to call it.

"That's the all-time salami," he laughed.

But the official scorer put it differently, marking "HR, 3 on" next to Cesar Cedeno's name.

The bases-loaded home run, Cedeno's first grand slam in his two years in the major leagues, traveled barely 150 feet in the air, then rolled another 300 or so to the wall.

Nevertheless, the "blast," Cedeno's clouts the home of the year, was the big one for the Astros Thursday night, catapulting them to a 9-3 victory over Los Angeles that dropped the Dodgers 8½ games behind idle San Francisco in the National League West.

In the other two National League games, Montreal Expos edged the Chicago Cubs 4-3 and New York Mets beat Philadelphia Phillies 3-1.

Right fielder Larry Hisle opened the door to the Mets' decisive two-run eighth inning when he dropped Bud Harrelson's one-out pop fly. Harrelson came around on singles by Wayne Garrett and Cleon Jones, and New York Mets beat Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 for his 13th victory.

Expos' rookie pitcher Ernie McAnally, equalling Montreal's club record of five successive victories to boost his record to 8-9, chipped in with his first major league homer in a six-run uprising in the sixth inning that sent the Cubs down to their ninth loss in 13 games.

Gaudar Plans CFL Crack Down

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, showed Thursday he intends to crack down on teams bending CFL rules.

The commissioner, in a hectic day Thursday, sent a league official to Ottawa to ensure that the Rough Riders did not go through with a threat to break the league's suspension rule.

He also said he is continuing his investigation into recent player suspensions by three league teams accused of dodging rules involving injured players.

And in another controversy, Gaudaur said Winnipeg Blue Bombers broke a rule if they used grease on their uniforms in a game Wednesday.

At Ottawa, league secretary-treasurer Greg Fulton attended the Rough Riders' practice to ensure that suspended fullback Dennis Duncan did not practise with the team.

Ottawa coach Jack Gotta announced Wednesday he was going to have Duncan practise regardless of a league rule which prevents suspended players from working out with the team.

He said other teams in the Eastern Conference were dodging league rules by suspending players for a limited period of time rather than placing them on an injured list where they would be lost to the club at least 30 days.

"We are stuck in a terrible predicament and they expect us to risk blowing our entire season by living up to every letter of the rule," Gotta said.

Gaudaur is investigating Duncan's suspension as well as those of lineman Ed Harrington of Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes' Moses Denson.

He said he hopes to make a decision on the matter prior to Sunday since all three teams play Monday.

CAHA Blasts Bunny

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As officials of three sports bodies quarrelled Thursday over who said what to whom—one thing seemed clear: Canada's hockey players are no closer to the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo.

John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, took a hand in the debate Thursday by intimating Canada might be kicked out of the IIHF for refusing to send a team of amateurs to Sapporo, Japan, in 1972.

The Sapporo Olympic Committee said earlier this week it sent a formal invitation to Canada last July and still is awaiting a reply. Absence said he was behind the invitation.

"But these people very stupidly decided not to send over a bunch of kids who would give their right arms to get into the Olympics.

"Well, I've given up trying," Absence said. "There's only one solution. We'll have to cancel the affiliation of the CAHA with the IIHF."

"He can't be serious," scoffed Gordon Juckes, executive director of CAHA. "Mr. Absence knows the IIHF constitution as well as anybody. It is not a condition of membership that you compete."

CAHA president Joe Krycka said he was "a little tired of his (Absence's) political intrigues."

"He should be on solid ground before he starts shooting his mouth off," he commented.

"We'll have our official delegation in Prague and we'll see how he fares at that time."

The schedule for the Olympic tournament in Sapporo is to be drawn up in Prague Sept. 21.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A couple of college boys, one who admits golf is his life and the other who isn't sure he wants the game as a career, led the way today into the third round of the 71st annual U.S. amateur golf championship.

"I love to play golf, it's my life," said 19-year-old Eddie Pearce of Temple Terrace, Fla., after a two-under-par 69 and a 36-hole deadlock at 139 with Jim McLean, a 21-year-old from Seattle who plays from the University of Houston.

Two strokes behind the coleaders as the third round got under way is Gary Cowan, the Canadian who won the title in 1966 at Merion. Cowan shot a par 71 Thursday and would have been tied for the lead had he not blown two putts inside three feet.

Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., who has won the Canadian amateur championship four times, blew to 78 after having a one-under-par 70 in the opening round.

ATLANTA (AP) — Three policemen fired Thursday on charges of beating Atlanta Braves' outfielder Rico Carty plan to appeal, their lawyer said.

The three were fired by the police committee following an eight-hour hearing.

The two off-duty policemen contended Carty and Ramirez provoked the fracas during an exchange of words as the white policemen and the black men were driving in separate cars in downtown Atlanta.

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Lee Trevino, back in action after a four-week layoff, is ranked as the man to beat today in the $110,000 greater Hartford Open golf tournament.

The flamboyant Trevino, however, wasn't so sure.

"You know I usually don't play good right after a layoff," Trevino said Thursday before his only practice round for the 72-hole event on the 6,548-yard, par-71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

Buffalo Could Move East

BUFFALO (AP) — Ralph Wilson, owner of Buffalo Bills, and Erie County officials scheduled a late-morning huddle today in an effort to reach agreement on leasing terms for a proposed new suburban Buffalo stadium.

Negotiations adjourned after a 90-minute session Thursday amid rumors the National Football League club had been rejected out about a possible shift to New York City to replace the Giants.

Talks rather than talk about Yankee Stadium," Wilson told reporters as he arrived for today's talk but, on leaving the meeting, he announced a news conference for later in the evening.

Frazier Plans Fall Fight with Chuvalo

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The former world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier will fight—Canadian champion George Chuvalo in Montreal in October or November.

The paper says it has learned that the fighters have not signed for the bout to be held in the Forum, but that negotiations between Montreal boxing promoter Regis Levesque and the two camps are under way.

The bout, the paper says, would be scheduled for 15 rounds, with Frazier's world championship on the line. Frazier's manager Yank Durham said he is asking a guarantee of $150,000 against 45 per cent of the gate and ancillaries, but he admitted, "We'll settle for $100,000," the Inquirer says.

Frazier used the durable Toronto heavyweight as a stepping stone to the WORLD Boxing Association title when he stopped Chuvalo on a fourth-round technical knockout in Madison Square Garden July 19, 1967.

It was the first time in the 33-year-old Chuvalo's 15-year professional career that he failed to go the distance.

"I promised George Ungerman (Chuvalo's manager) when that match was made, that if I got the title he could have a shot at it," the Inquirer reports Durham said by telephone from Montreal Thursday.

Frazier has not fought since defeating Muhammad Ali by a decision in New York in March. Ali, who says he does not want to meet Frazier until next May or June, already has scored a TKO win over Jimmy Ellis since his loss to Frazier and probably will meet Jerry Quarry here next month, the paper says.

Ellis Junior pitcher Ted Waite takes to the air in Thursday night's final game of their Commercial Softball League semi-finals with Point Anne to avoid collision with Cementman second baseman Bruce Stickle. Ted was safe on an error in this play but it was one of very few Junior safeties in their 4-0 loss to the Pointers. Point Anne stopped the Printers' three game winning streak which had erased a 3-0 series lead from the Cementmen, and now await the winners of the Rollins-Howard and Roberts series for the league championships.

Point Anne Giants Cook Juniors Goose

The Ellis Juniors were on the verge of becoming giant killers in the Commercial Softball League semi - finals until they ran into a pack of hungry, and not so friendly giants from Point Anne and a pitcher with a golden goose egg.

The Cementmen finally got untracked after a three game losing streak that saw the Ellis Juniors tie their series at three games apiece to record a 4-0 win and finally take the series.

In the first game of the night Rollins Construction took a three games to two lead in their semi - finals series with Howard and Roberts Printing by stopping the Printers 6-1.

Don Holoway was the pitcher with the golden egg for Point Anne tossing a neat two - hit, shutout at the Juniors. The big right hander had a no - hitter going for six and two thirds innings before singles from Ted Waite and Brian Garlegy shattered his perfect game bid. He struck out eight batters and walked one to end his pitching up the series clinching win.

Mike Cook led off the second inning with a home run to centre field which started the ball rolling for the Cementmen who pushed across two more runs before the inning was over. A hit batter, Tom MacDonald's single and Vern Whalen's sacrifice produced the two runs. Bruce Stickle drew a walk to open the sixth frame and then raced home on Rick Rosebush's double for the final score of the night.

Ted Waite toed the rubber for the Juniors giving up just three hits. He fanned seven, and walked four. The only threats for the Printers, whose steam finally ran out, were in the second and seventh but both instances failed to materialize any runs.

The Rollins - Howard and Roberts series finally resumed after a week's delay but it didn't seem to hurt the Constructionmen as they tallied three runs in each of the fourth and fifth innings to record the 6-1 win.

Scott Reid was the big story for Rollins smoking a one-hitter at the Printers and cutting down 11 batters on third strikes. He lost his no-hit bid in the sixth inning when Gary Gow singled up the middle to drive in Pug Cellar who had reached on an error.

Carl Boomhower's single followed by Wayne McTaggart's triple scored one run for Rollins and McTaggart's steal of home plate gave the winners a 3-0 lead, which they never relinquished.

Bob Ebbitt started for the Printers going four innings and allowing four hits and five runs. He struck out four and walked three. Ken Gow's error relieved in the fifth giving up one hit and one run. The only major threat the Printers had was the third when they had the bases loaded but two strikeouts squelched any scoring hopes.

Reid's game in the best of seven series will be Sunday night at the Alemite in an 8 p.m. fixture.

Plane's Bombers Win Tadpole Title

Any doubts as to who had first claim on the Belleville Minor Baseball tadpole city championship were quickly squelched Wednesday night as Plane Crackers whopped up a pennant winning season by taking the city crown. The Concrete bombed Cadeveo 15-5 in the final game, for a sweep of the 3 of 5 series. Brian Crockright and Tony Parks shared the mound duty for Planes allowing only four hits while burning 14. Crockright smashed two home runs. Blaine Waddell a homer and single and Steve Goulah a homer for the winners.

Control problems spoiled defeat for Cadeveue as a quartet of pitchers tried in vain to stop the Concrete. They gave up 16 walks while fanning 13 and being touched for nine hits.

In a peewee play-off game Farrell Motors nipped Fosters Thurlow peewees 8-7 in their first game of a two of three series.

Clyde Rouley, Howie Coons and Joe Mcdonald combined for a three bitter on the Farrell mound. They struck out eight and walked 10. Mcdonald had a homer and single to lead the winners at bat.

Olympic Trial Rounds at Zwicks

These Archers Know Where Arrows Fall

"I shot an arrow into the air It fell to earth — right on target".

The lines may not be poetic but they're accurate, much like the marksmanship of the 80-odd archers who will be in Belleville this weekend for tournaments Saturday and Sunday.

Both tourneys, held at Zwick's Island, are listed as Olympic Trial Rounds and as a result they will draw top bow and arrow experts from across Ontario.

In order to even attempt to qualify for the Olympic archery team, competitors have to meet certain standards in regular tournament action throughout the previous 12 months. Men have to have recorded four scores of 1100 or better while their female counterparts must mark a quartet of 1050's in sanctioned tournaments. A perfect score is 1440, but is virtually impossible to approach.

As an added incentive to visiting archers, the Belleville tourney have been sanctioned by the Federation of International Tournament Archers and anyone recording exceptional scores will be eligible to receive plus commemorating the feat from the international archery body.

Two people who have their sights, so to speak, set on picking up plus as well as Olympic qualifying points will be Wayne Pullen and Don Jackson both members of Canada's national team.

Both will be shooting for marks of 1300 to become the first Canadians to attain that plateau of proficiency. Pullen, who reached third in the individual category at the world championships earlier this summer, recorded a round of 1198 while in England.

Belleville's Carol Armstrong will be the only member of the women's national team competing during the two days, but she still has a stiff task ahead of her. The world class competitor has yet to record an official round of 1050 or better this year and is hoping to gain two legs towards a sport in the Olympic trials by achieving the mark this weekend.

Another of the dozen-strong local contingent who will be shooting this weekend is Ontario Junior champion Bruce Thompson. The teen - aged competitor will be competing in the men's category against the likes of Pullen and Jackson to provide him with experience at the longer senior distances.

The events will get under way at 10 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday and run through until approximately 5 p.m. Spectators are welcome and are advised to bring a pair of binoculars to fully appreciate the skill involved in the sport, since targets are sometimes as far as 90 metres from the shooters.

New Quinte Harness Faces

New faces will highlight this week's card of harness racing at the Fairgrounds as no less than nine new horses will be on hand for the 10 heats.

Clarence Carson's Philsavie will be entered in the Maiden race after achieving its first victory at Frontenac Downs last week in 2:14. The three year old bay mare comes from the same stable as Quinty's Julie who will be entered in next week's Corby's Stake.

A five horse race will mark the feature Saturday night with the Great Mighty Flyer marked as the horse to beat. Trained by Orval Sleeth of Kingston Flyer has run a 2.17 at Rideau Carleton in Ottawa.

Weese's Regain Touch

Pennant winning Weese's Flowers aren't calling it quits yet in their semi-final Ladies Softball League series with Dairy Queen as they retrieved to old form Wednesday night, rumbling the Dairy Queen 9-3.

Dora Barberstock fired the win allowing seven hits while fanning six and showing perfect control. She also pounded a triple and single. Lillian Barberstock had two singles and Valerie Brown a double for the winners.

Marianne Silks was tagged with the loss giving up 11 hits. She fanned three and walked the same. Sharon Hannah hit three singles and Judy Pultz a double and single in a losing effort.

Fifth and deciding game will be played tonight at the Cheese Producers Field.

Eight Won't Suffice

Hillier wracked up eight runs within the first four innings in Thursday nights Prince Edward North Shore Softball League playoff game, the only rub was that Mountain View scored as many in just the fourth inning en route to a 13-8 win.

The octet of runs in the fourth combined with three in the second gave the Mountain View squad the victory and evened the best of seven finals at one game apiece.

Gary Eardley pitched four innings of no-hit relief for Mountain View while Rod Wyatt; Fred O'Brien and Ed Miller each had two hits for the winners.

Next game in the series will be Sunday afternoon in Ameliasburg at 2:30 p.m.

Trio of Titles Decided

Three Belleville Minor Lacrosse titles were won Thursday night but not before a battle was waged for each one.

The Belleville Auto Dealers grabbed the midget championship with a dramatic 6-5 overtime victory over pennant winning Sun Luck Gardens. Dan Nuttall had been the only threat for the winners during regular play scoring all five goals, but Andy Forgie became the instant hero by netting the winner in overtime.

Rick Bell with two, and Chris Kalmay, Bob Duffy and Wade Grier with one each were the Gardens scorers.

Regular season pennant winners Simpson-Sears kept their lacrosse ball rolling by taking the bantam title with a 6-3 win over the Queens Motor Hotel. Coons and Bob Bruce with two goals each and Kent Manning and Roger Chapman with one each propelled Sears to victory.

The Dairy Queen novices were the first in line for city honors last night opening the three game card with a 3-2 win over Bob's Sports.

Rally Dumps Dickens

A seven run lead after only two innings was more than just discouraging for Dicken's Voyageur Restaurant in Thursday night's Thurlow - Sidney Softball League final as Crookston had to come from behind for a 8-5 win.

Dicken's managed as many hits as the winners but they couldn't touch the big lead that Crookston had built.

Larry Barnard fired the win for Crookston allowing five hits while fanning nine and walking two. He also had two hits to pace the winners at the plate.

Stan Daloe had two hits for Dicken's when will host for some sort of ryerge Saturday when the second game of the series will be held. Game time for the contest is 8:15 p.m. at Stirling.

Western Rolls To Title

The door was closed on another season of Minor Softball in Belleville Thursday night as the only remaining series was wrapped up when Western Tire bombed the Richard Ellis Printers 15-1 in a peewee contest.

The Tiremen who didn't lose a single game all year including 10 league games, and four play-off games captured the city championship behind the strong arm of Rob Chase. He fired a one hitter blanking strikes past 13. Derek MacDonald was the big gun for the winners at the plate cranking a homer and single.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

No Specific Cure For Pancreatitis

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am not the complaining type, but when something chronic hangs on month after month it is human to become distressed and impatient. Although people do not hear of it too much, there must be many like myself who suffer from the condition called chronic pancreatitis.

I am a 46-year-old mother with young children. My case is not the type associated with drinking. It was diagnosed two years ago. I had been having abdominal cramps, extreme hunger not satisfied by large amounts of food, passage of large stools with foul odor, and general "indigestion." A 24-hour test for lipase confirmed the diagnosis.

I have been taking enzymes and a muscle relaxant. Also avoiding highly fatty foods and alcoholic beverages. I have been having more normal stools, but still suffer from indigestion, gas, bloating and fullness after eating. My 24-hour urine tests for lipase have remained quite high. My doctor says I am a puzzle. Doesn't anyone know how to keep the disease under control? — Mrs. M.

COMMENT: A puzzle it is in that we have no specific treatment that guarantees cure. Often we do not know its cause. As you say, it can cause much discomfort.

You are being wise in limiting your fat intake and saying "no" to alcohol in any form. By doing so you are least preventing an intensification of your symptoms.

In some patients I have seen removal of a pathological gallbladder has indirectly helped a chronically inflamed pancreas. Sometimes it is associated with duodenal ulcer or diabetes. The trouble may be due to faulty secretions by the gland itself or to some obstruction in the gland's ducts. Some stubborn cases have been helped by removal of part of the pancreas itself.

As you can see, Mrs. M., what is most important is to discover if possible the reason for the chronic pancreatitis. Meanwhile, omitting fatty foods, being a teetotaler, and taking enzymes and other medications makes good sense until a more specific method of treatment is devised.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: As a good friend of your column, I am asking for advice about the purchase of a "special" copper bracelet. One friend tells me that it has produced miraculous cures for arthritis patients. Another friend says it is poppycock. May I have your opinion? Mrs. H.

COMMENT: As a fourth friend, here it is: I agree with poppycock.

Recently I saw an athlete interviewed on TV. He was wearing a copper bracelet on each wrist. "I've been having rheumatic pains in both arms until I put them on," he said. "I feel great. If not for them, I couldn't possibly have won the tournament."

I was tempted to talk back to the TV and say, "Oh yeah?" Incidentally, he has not won a tournament since. I wonder how he feels about his armlets now.

I repeat, Mrs. H., there is no scientific reason for believing that a copper bracelet will eliminate the painful darts of rheumatic twinges.

* * *

For Mrs. S.: I doubt that two small hemorrhoids are the reason for a painful tailbone. See your doctor. It may be due to coccygitis — chronic inflammation at the very tip of your spine. That may be why it feels so sore after sitting for awhile. The doctor will suggest helpful treatment, depending upon the real reason for the tailbone pain. Sometimes simple treatment like sitting on a pillow for a few weeks will ultimately bring relief. If pain persists see an orthopedist.

Quebec Alone in Opposing Devaluation of Canadian Dollar

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec stood almost alone among the provinces Thursday in opposing devaluation of the Canadian dollar, and appeared to have won the early rounds if not the fight.

The opening blows were struck when Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin refereed a meeting with business and financial leaders from across the country. He told provincial trade ministers in-round two in the afternoon.

Round three is expected to be a series of suggestions by Mr. Pepin to the federal cabinet, based on arguments heard Thursday, on possible methods of combatting the effects on Canadian exports of the depreciating value of the U.S. dollar on international markets.

But the 10-per-cent import surcharge imposed Aug. 15 immediately made most Canadian goods intended for U.S. consumption that much more expensive for them to import.

And allowing the U.S. dollar to ally on international exchanges automatically makes exports by all other countries more expensive, even in non-U.S. markets, since the international economy is geared to the strength of the U.S. dollar.

The Thursday meetings were called by Mr. Pepin to sound out those most intimately affected on what the U.S. initiatives mean to their businesses and their provinces.

He said afterward that it was evident Canada was facing "a very serious situation."

But, even so, he could not make any commitments for the government either on the general devaluation suggestions—which he said fell into the responsibility of Finance Minister E. J. Benson—or suggestions that the government assist those industries hardest hit by the import.

Prime Minister Trudeau is to make this announcement Tuesday in the Commons, after Parliament returns from its 68-day summer holiday.

Meeting sources said most spokesmen supported at least the principle of devaluing the Canadian dollar, but the Quebec delegation dissented.

Gerard-D. Levesque, provincial minister of industry and commerce, said devaluation could create new problems and that Canada should concentrate instead on helping seriously-affected industries.

Allan Grossman, Ontario trade minister, said the provinces themselves were an indication of co-operative efforts to solve the developing situation, and that almost everyone at the meeting felt Canadian dollar devaluation was an important point in this regard.

"I think this is one of the things we'll have to do if possible," he said.

He also suggested across-the-board tax concessions for industry.

Leonard S. Evans, Manitoba industry and commerce minister, said U.S. dollar devaluation could be disastrous for Canada and B.C. minister Waldo Skillings also supporting devaluation, said:

"We have over half a billion dollars in exports affected by the surcharges, and are harder hit than any other province."

Ontario Businessmen Annoyed by Robert Nixon's Gloomy Report

TORONTO (CP) — Six businessmen said Thursday night claims made by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that the United States 10-per-cent surtax has adversely affected their companies are either fabricated or exaggerated.

Three other businessmen, however, said Mr. Nixon's assessment of their difficulties was essentially correct.

Karl Hentschel, president of Hentschel Furniture Ltd. of Waterloo, dismissed as "baloney" a quotation attributed to him by Mr. Nixon that the devaluation of the U.S. dollar was responsible for the loss of a contract.

He said he lost the contract for completely other reasons more than a month ago before the U.S. announced it would let the dollar "float" to its true value.

He said a caller who interviewed him indicated he was conducting "another one of the government surveys. . . . They never mentioned the word Liberal."

Another Waterloo furniture company president, John Simo of Simo Ltd., said Mr. Nixon's claim that his firm had "lost an eight-year-old customer" was untrue. He said he told the caller that orders from the company slowed during the summer, but that he didn't know why.

Mr. Simo said his firm still employs a full work force.

Arthur van Dyke, manager of Springdale Farms in Bradford, said it was wrong for Mr. Nixon to suggest his company might have to fold although 30 workers have been laid off recently, but only for three days.

He said he told the interviewer the layoff was only temporary.

Mr. Nixon quoted Jack Minter, accountant for Flexsteel Industries of Canada Ltd., as saying his Stratford firm would cut production by a third and lay off 15 more workers when a U.S. contract expires in October.

Mr. Minter denied the claim and said: "We're looking for people, we're looking for them right now."

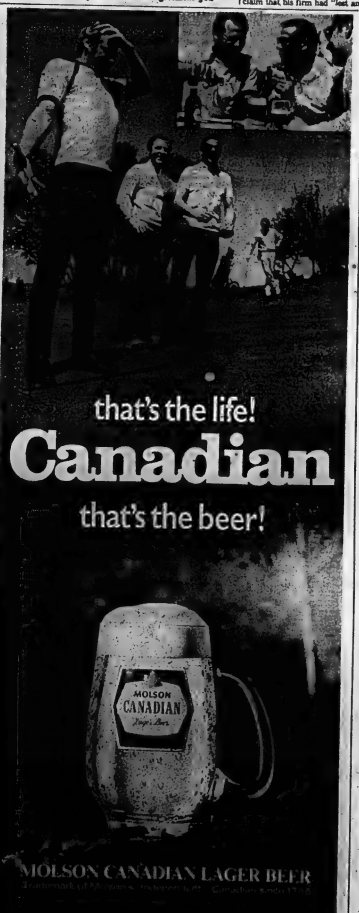
Company president Samuel Douglas said he didn't want to comment because "this has been blown all out of proportion. We had some upset employees . . . . We took steps to put these people at ease."

W. J. Whiteside, president of Ringer Safety Products of Simcoe, disputed Mr. Nixon's claim that his firm was unable to expand into the U.S. as planned, adding that his firm never had plans for such expansion.

W. H. Schneider, personnel manager of Weyhauser Lumber and Veneer Co. at Sault Ste. Marie, said his firm hasn't yet considered layoffs, as Mr. Nixon claimed.

William Gilmoure, Liberal party official responsible for contacting the firms, said "we have rechecked the firms we've been able to reach and we are satisfied that the information we received at that time was accurate."

A spokesman for Eddy Forest Products at Espanola confirmed Mr. Nixon's statement that 75 workers had been laid off because of the depletion of U.S. sales and that further cuts could cause the plant's shutdown.



John Lewenza, president of IBL Industries of Burlington, said Mr. Nixon's claim that 100 persons, who would have been employed this fall, won't be because of the situation. He said his firm can't compete with U.S. firms because of the duty.

H. L. Anderson, sales manager for Northern Wood Preservers Ltd. at Thunder Bay confirmed the duty will cost his firm $60,000 during the initial 90-day period.

Quebec Declines to Pay Army Cost in Fall Crisis

All Canada Affected Maintains Bourassa

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa announced Friday that Quebec has no intention of sharing the cost of using the army in last October's political kidnapping crisis.

The premier issued a statement saying he wrote Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday to outline Quebec's views.

His contention was that the cost of the troops totalled $12 million, of which $10 million represented the regular cost of lodging and upkeep and $2 million represented "supplementary costs."

It was this supplementary cost that Quebec was being asked to pay.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons in February that the cost was less than $2 million and "one or the other" of the governments would pay it.

Ky Threatens To Oust Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu withheld comment today on threats by Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky to bring down the government unless Thieu calls off his one-man presidential election Oct. 3, spite confirmation by all 10 reporters who attended the gathering, his press secretary, Lt.-Col. Vu Duc Vinh, issued an official denial today that Ky made the statements.

"We deny that so-called sources close to Vice-President Ky say that Ky will destroy President Thieu and his choice," he said Vinh. Vinh made it clear, however, that it was his office and not Ky making the denial.

"I am waiting for more clear clarification on that," Thieu said of Ky's remarks. "I just hear it from the press. I have no authentic word from him. I will meet you next week."

The thrust of Ky's remarks, made to a small gathering of Western reporters Friday, was that he would stage a coup if he felt he could successfully carry it out.

There was no misunderstanding of what Ky said, and de-

'It's all right, Mary. We're discussing Thieu and Ky, not you and me!'

Benson's Wife Involved In Income Tax Hassle

KINGSTON (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson laughed Friday over his wife's hassle with the income tax department.

"I understand it was a mistake," Mr. Benson chuckled.

On Aug. 21 the revenue department charged Marie Louise Benson in her capacity as trustee for the J. McDougall and Son Ltd. Pension Plan, with failing to file a T-3, 1970 information and income tax return.

The form was filed, though, and then apparently misplaced, so the charge was withdrawn in provincial court Thursday at the request of the income tax department.

While Mr. Benson took the incident with good humor, the boys in the income tax department apparently were a little more sensitive about it.

A reporter was told by a national revenue spokesman here the matter was "none of your business."

Mrs. Benson was unavailable for comment.

All But 5 Pct. To Live in Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 15 million people in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

At least eight cities with populations of a million or more.

Expansion of the areas of Montreal and Toronto by between 600 and 650 square miles; for Vancouver an additional 125, to 250 square miles.

About 95 per cent of all Canadians live in urban centres.

This picture of Canada in 2001 is set out in The Urban Future, a study commissioned by the department of Robert Andras, minister of state for urban affairs.

It was prepared by the late Albert Gorscz, housing expert in the economic division of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., L. O. Stone, an expert on migration in Canada, and Irwin Lithwick, brother of Dr. Harvey Lithwick of Carleton University.

The study warns that major headaches are in store as the country tries to keep up with the demands for transit, sewer services and housing that will accompany the jackrabbit urban growth.

Seventy three per cent of all Canadians will live in 12 major cities by 2001, the study predicts.

The study includes expected population growths in four Ontario cities:

Toronto 8.130 million, up from 2.610 now; Hamilton 1.201 million, up from 480,000 now; London 673,000, up from 253,000 now; Windsor 576,000, up from 226,000 now.

The demand for housing space in the expanded cities will be "extremely great," the report says.

Concorde Crosses Atlantic

CAYENNE, French Guiana (CP) — Concorde 001, the French prototype of the Anglo-French supersonic airliner, made aeronautical history today when it became the first commercial SST to cross the Atlantic.

The sleek, needle-nosed aircraft, after leaving Toulouse, France, flew across the South Atlantic from Dakar to the Cape Verde Islands off the western tip of Africa to Cayenne. It covered the 2,402 miles between Sal Rei and Cayenne in two hours two minutes.

It was the prototype's longest flight to date. The 001, crammed with monitoring equipment will travel about 18,000 miles during a 13-day South American visit.

Robbers Slain

MONTREAL (CP) — A combined force of provincial and Montreal police shot and killed two men attempting to rob a credit union Friday in the north shore suburb of St. Eustis Le Grand.

Gilles Labelle, 23, and Gilles Louis-Seize, 34, both of Montreal, emerged from the credit union with a flightbag full of money to face police surrounding the building.

What the two began firing at police they were cut down by automatic weapon fire.

U. S. May Curb Interest

Excess Profits Tax Ruled Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has come out against an excess profits tax but has opened the door to possible controls on interest rates after President Nixon's 90-day wage-price freeze expires.

A high White House official told reporters Friday the profits tax proposal "is a very poor form of taxation" that fails to take into account that profit margins already are low.

At the same time, the official said, "there's some ground to be plowed" in considering controls on interest rates after the freeze, using either or both the Federal Reserve Board's dormant credit controls and restraints on mortgage interest rates.

Nixon's decision to exclude both profits and interest rates in his economic program announced Aug. 15 has incurred the wrath of unions.

The White House's position against the profits tax appeared to rule out all controls on profits after the freeze ends Nov. 13, something labor is pressing for.

Dr. Paul McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, has said that the only way to control profits would be through the tax route. Economists have generally denounced the tax proposal as poor economic policy.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans telegraphed the heads of 750 corporations Friday asking they comply with Nixon's request to extend the freeze voluntarily to dividends.

Noting Nixon's request. Stans said, "this is interpreted to mean that the dividend rate shall not exceed that for the most recent dividend period prior to Aug. 15.

Stans also sought information on profits, which the administration thinks are being hurt by the freeze. But sales of new U.S. cars boomed in the final days of August, reports of four domestic auto firms showed. Industry observers said the auto boom represented the first real testing ground of car buyers' reactions to Nixon's new economic program.

But if consumers were loosening their pocketbooks, there was unhappy news for 2.1 million teachers.

The Cost of Living Council, set up to set policy on the freeze, said most teachers won't get pay raises this fall, including thousands previously thought eligible for salary increases under earlier rulings.

Jobless Rate Up In U. S.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The politically-sensitive United States unemployment rate rebounded to above six per cent last month when a rise in the number of employed failed to match an increase in the expanding labor force.

The rise came as a blow to the Nixon administration and Democrats were quick to criticize the increase, which left more than five million Americans unemployed.

The labor department reported Friday that the jobless rate rose to 6.1 per cent of the potential work force from 5.9 per cent in July, after allowances for seasonal variations.

Officials here said that the figures, based on a survey taken in the week to Aug. 14, endorsed the need for the Canadian economic policy decisions announced by President Nixon Aug. 15.

The number of unemployed stood at 5,081,000 workers in August. The number of employed was 80,818,000.

The unemployment rate has been hovering around the six per cent range since November. Administration policy-makers have attributed this trend to the failureof the economy to pick up sufficient steam in recent months to absorb the growth in the labor force.

Baby, Soldiers Die in Ulster

BELFAST (CP-AP) — A swelling wave of violence left at least four persons dead in Northern Ireland today including a baby girl and two British soldiers. Officials in both parts of Ireland condemned the killings as "sickening" and the work of "insane men."

A British soldier, killed by a mine, was the latest victim.

A civilian burned to death earlier in a Newry drapery shop that police said was hit by a terrorist bomb.

Pte. Robert Veitch, a 23-year-old reservist, was shot dead zangland style outside a police station at Kinawley.

In a Friday night incident, 18-month-old Angela Gallagher was shot through the head by a ricochet-ing bullet aimed by terrorists at a British patrol in the Roman Catholic Falls Church area of Belfast.

Strikebreakers at Brantford Warned of Firebomb Plot

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A radical left-wing group has made plans to firebomb buses carrying non-union workers to the strikebound Terpack Ltd. plant, a city police official says.

"Our intelligence indicates there is a militant group determined to stop the buses and burn them and even burn the strikebreakers alive in their seats," Staff Inspector Gerald Rice said Friday.

Despite the threat, the Brantford police department continued plans to withdraw special police protection for non-union employees travelling in three buses.

The plant's general manager, Ken Dafoe, angrily criticized the withdrawal. He said it "seems the mayor (Howard Winter) and the police are doing everything possible to encourage the company to close up in Brantford."

Insp. Rice and two colleagues, Insp. John Weir and Insp. Norman Burtis, boarded the buses Friday and warned the riders, mostly women, of the threats of violence.

"We pointed out their safety is now management's responsibility . . ." Insp. Rice said. "Some of them seemed stunned and some wanted to get off the buses right away. If the plant wants a private security force to run hire its own."

He said the patrols were "too costly" and were taking too much police protection away from the rest of the city.

However, Insp. Rice said the strikebreakers will receive normal police protection.

"We're not going to close our eyes to something that may occur, but from now on our investigations will be along normal police lines."

The inspector said in an interview that police have informed both the non-union workers and picketing members of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Workers Union of the firebomb threat, alleged to have come from the leftist Canadian Labor party.

Deputy Chief Lester Butcher said later: "We can no longer guarantee the safety of the people on the buses, but we're not denying protection against illegal acts."

On Thursday, after the Labor Day holiday, police will be stopping Terpack buses at the city limits and washing passengers that they go ahead at their own risk.

Mr. Dafoe said: "We have a legal right through an Ontario Supreme Court injunction to operate here, but the police apparently are no longer going to back up this injunction."

He said the plant, which makes bandages and hospital

From county, to province, to the nation is the story of Dianne Gunning's progress through competitions to arrive at the title of Canadian Dairy Princess. Page 2.

Dianne Gunning Wins National Dairy Title

Dianne Gunning, 19, of Tweed, was crowned Canadian Dairy Princess last night at the Canadian National Exhibition, culminating a two year struggle up the championship ladder.

Selected over contrasts from Saskatchewan, Alberta and Prince Edward Island, Miss Gunning joins another 11,000 prize money to assist her at the University of Guelph where she is enrolled in arts and home economics.

But five-foot-four, brown eyed brunette captured the Ontario Dairy Princess' copter last year after first receiving the local Hastings County title earlier in the summer.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gunning, of RR 1, Tweed, Miss Gunning opened her challenge to the top when she first won the Hastings crown two years ago and recaptured it one year ago last June at a competition held on the grounds of the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Although last year's crowning event was held in a storm, the path to last night's victory has been smooth everywhere. After winning the local title, Miss Gunning gained the provincial finals in late August at the CNE and eventually conquered all other contestants.

For the past year she was Ontario princess, Miss Gunning has been employed by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board in the public relations division.

As a result, she had to postpone her enrolment at Guelph University but felt she was compensated by the experience she received travelling throughout the province. She worked out of an office in Toronto, preparing speeches and doing promotional work.

During the year she was Ontario princess, she also took trips to Britain and the United States for further competitions and goodwill tours.

She was even modelled in butter for the Royal Winter Fair held in Toronto in mid-November by sculptor W. A. Clements for a presentation of the fair's theme, "Walk in the Country."

Other contestants last night were Darlene Schumaker, 19, of Balsac, Alta., Barbara Johnson, 18, of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Marlene Dollar, 20, of Winsloe, P.E.I.

Relic Burned

City firemen prepare to check out the hulk of an old vacant house at 160 Mary Street which was gutted by an early morning fire. Owned by local developer Maurice Rollins, the old house had been used only as storage in recent years. Firemen said it was possible the blaze may have been started by a transient who stayed overnight in the house. The alarm was turned in at about 5.30 a.m.

Controversey Stirred By Sandbanks Removal

PICTON (Staff) — Public concern for the Sandbanks has prompted the Lake Ontario Cement Co. to consider an alternate source of supply for its operations.

Sand haulage from a 16-acre site owned by the Lake Ontario Cement Co. recently was discussed in letters forwarded by tourists to the editor of a Toronto daily newspaper.

These summer visitors argued continued haulage could destroy what is a unique geological formation.

Their fears have been echoed by Allan Bailey, a geography teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute and a conservationist. He suggested the area of the Sandbanks has been used in the past as an example of dune formation in both Canadian and American geographic texts.

He said officials in the Department of Lands and Forests and spokesmen for the cement company have minimized the effects of sand hauling on the dunes when they observe the tonnage removed is only a fraction of the banks remaining.

Bruce Price, vice - president of the Lake Ontario cement plant near Picton has commented that the sand removed is not as harmful to the dunes as some persons suggest.

The 16-acre site used by the cement company is leased until the year 2041. At this time ownership of the property will revert to the Crown. It is expected a flat, white sand beach safe for public use will remain. If company operations cease for a three-year period the land will revert to the Crown before the expiry date of the lease.

Private interests, however, purchased a 18-acre site at the Sandbanks in the late 1950s and it was this land parcel which was later acquired by the Lake Ontario Cement Company.

This land was accidentally included in lands and forests reforestation efforts and a survey in 1969 revealed the error. Negotiations led to an agreement formulated in 1968 in which the cement company deeded its holdings to the province, and the department in turn granted the company a crown lease, retroactive to January, 1965. Its expiry date is the year 2041.

Within the 16-acre site the cement company has the right to remove unlimited quantities of sand provided it does not go below West Lake water level.

Mr. Price has remarked company efforts to discover an alternative source of sand will be governed by trucking costs.

The cement company legally utilizes the 16 - acre site at the Sandbanks but has expressed concerned reaction to public alarm.

Bruce Price has been quoted in a Toronto daily paper as saying, "The company is not totally irresponsible and we are not sitting back here saying to hell with vacationers and ecology. We would like to find a solution to the problem just as much as anyone else would."

Juveniles Charged With Possession

Belleville detachment, RCMP, report the arrest of a 13 - year - old and 14 - year - old juvenile and a 15 - year - old youth, all charged with possession of marijuana.

During a routine break and enter investigation, OPP Constable Brian Skinner discovered a marijuana cigarette in the back seat of his cruiser. The three boys, two from Belleville, the third from Toronto, were removed from the car and searched.

RCMP were called in when the search disclosed a small quantity of the illegal drug in their possession.

Questioned by the RCMP, the boys disclosed they found the weed growing wild near their cottage on the Trent River. Officers spent most of the afternoon hours combing the underbrush, but to no avail.

Although none of the weeds were found growing, the 13 - year - old took the federal officers to his cache.

All three have been remanded to the custody of their parents and will face charges of possession of marijuana.

Planner Resigns

Now that the Quinte Planning Board has its own staff, one ex-employee has resigned before he even took over his new desk.

The board was advised Thursday night, by letter, that Arie Hoornweg, hired as a principal planner for the new board, would not be able to assume his new position.

In his letter, Mr. Hoornweg, deputy commissioner of works for the town of Trenton, felt he was unable to accept his position due to the circumstances created by the resignation of the town's commissioner of works.

Thursday night, the board made no indication that they would fill this vacancy at this time.

supplies, will be at full production next week.

When the three buses, with wire grills in the windows as protection against stones, left the plant at 3 p.m. Friday there were no police present. Workers jeered at those in the vehicles.

A bus driver, Harvey Coulter, 26, of Woodbridge, was later charged with careless driving after George McDonald, 46, suffered a cramped neck — he fell in front of the rear wheels of a bus. He rolled out of the way. Police said Coulter was trying to stop the bus.

Later, the bus collided with a car. Robert Trudelle of Brantford was charged with careless driving.

Another bus driver, Johannes Vonhorst of Downsview, Ont., was charged with possession of an offensive weapon, a chain, after an incident at the gates to the plant.

The 150 striking union members are either complained of what they called police interference with their picketing and demonstrations. The strikers, most of them women making $1.62 per hour, have been out since July.

The company has offered a 60-cent-an-hour wage increase in a two-year contract, which the union has turned down.

Other unions have supported the strikers. On Thursday 800 persons marched peacefully on the plant while a handful of police stood by, and this weekend a demonstration organized by the Waffle group of the Ontario New Democratic Party will be held

Board Accepts Builder's Plan

Quinte Planning Board Thursday night accepted a preliminary plan for a subdivision east of Haig Road and North of Victoria Avenue in the city of Belleville.

The plan proposed by Maurice H. Rolling Construction Ltd., was recommended to the planners Aug. 30 by Belleville's advisory committee, subject to the location of a north - south arterial route being approved by city council, provision of park reservoirs, easements for utility and drainage purposes, driveway plans, a traffic island and an agreement by the subdivider to service the entire area with electrical wiring.

The subdivision consists of 21 single family dwelling lots with a minimum of 50 feet frontage and 5,000 square foot lot area.

MAPLE IN AUTUMN

On Friday, Sept. 3, the Canada Post Office released 26 million Maple In Autumn commemoratives. Third in a series of Canada's national tree in four seasons, all were designed by Miss Aimi Duncan of Galetta, Ontario.

Second Cow In Accident

In recent days, cows seem to be taking to the open road and consequently have been subject to collisions with motor vehicle traffic.

The second cow in as many weeks was jolted by a passing motorist near Shannonville yesterday as driver Donald Vanderwater bumped Bessie who was straddling the middle of the highway.

Last week, a Belleville taxi driver turned onto a north end street in mid-afternoon and scraped the hide of a cow that appeared to be dazed by the heavy traffic.

Perhaps more vehicles in the district will need to be equipped with modified cowcatchers if the present trend continues.

Volunteers Buy Truck

TWEED (Special) — The combined townships of Kaladar, Anglesea and Effingham in Lennox and Addington county have a pumper - tank fire truck — thanks to the Land O'Lakes Firefighters' Association and the generosity of area businessmen.

The truck was officially presented to Reeve Clare Benn early this week by Fire Chief John Bolton and Captain Alex Buchanan.

In accepting the truck, the municipal reeve paid tribute to the volunteer fire department members for their efforts to purchase the truck.

A special thanks was extended to Harry Davis of the Steward House Hotel Flinton; Salmond's Resort, Cloyne; W. E. Lemke Construction, Northbrook; Mac Blainey of Land O'Lakes Builders and Suppliers, Northbrook; Donald Flinton, Flinton and Charles Woods of Northbrook for special donations.

For this year the truck will be stored in rented premises, but a fire hall is expected by next year.

Weather Helps Crowd Parks

TWEED (Special) — The promise of unseasonably warm weather for the Labor Day weekend has resulted in a demand for sites at provincial lands and forests camping sites in the Quinte district.

The Tweed office this morning reported only 10 sites were available at Bon Echo; 30 at Black Lake and the same number at Lake St. Peter.

At the Outet on Lake Ontario 300 sites were empty and 40 at the Sandbanks.

Ontario Place Appearance May Be Springboard

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Teenage vocalist, Pat Hoag recently sang the hit tune Do You Know The Way to San Jose? only to receive detour instructions to Toronto.

The attractive 17 - year - old singer was an adjudicator's approving nod during auditions in Kingston to select guest performers for talent shows at Ontario Place.

Miss Hoag appeared on stage at this spectacular pavilion on August 22 to sing The Gaslight People Play and the popular San Jose. She is believed to be the first Prince Edward County resident to make a guest appearance in the cross-Canada talent shows featured at Ontario Place each Monday evening.

Fame, however cannot be bought for a song. Pat Hoag's guest slot has been earned with enthusiasm for voice lessons, practice sessions and a desire "to put everything into it" for her audience.

Her first singing engagements as a little girl were regular Sunday morning appearances with members of the Bloomfield Church choir.

Her mother, also a gifted singer, notes that Pat has "a very powerful voice" and is not studying formally this year since her teachers have suggested it would be a mistake to force it. She is singing steadily but is not exercising her voice.

A Grade 12 student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Pat finds time to combine music with her busy curriculum. She has taken piano lessons for the past year and has written her grade three history and her grade two theory.

She is also an accomplished guitarist and provides her own accompaniment for folk songs.

Pat likes folk music, Petula Clarke, Nell Diamond and The Carpenters. She has also shown talent in singing classical music and enjoys Italian and French songs. Her first love, however, seems to be pop tunes that she renders with a distinctive style, loudly applauded by her audiences.

Miss Hoag, according to her mother, is in "her own little world" the moment she picks up a microphone on stage.

"When she sings a song she doesn't just stand there, she puts her heart in it," adds Mrs. Hoag.

"She was thrilled by the opportunity to sing at Ontario Place but no one could guess it. She does all her bubbling inside," remarked her mother.

Pat, who plans a career in music, hopes to attend Queen's University, Kingston, following her graduation. She expects to enrol in a music course there. The young singer has admitted eventually it may be necessary for her to go south of the border to reach for the opportunities essential to boost her career.

As she works toward stardom, Pat is making regular appearances as a vocalist at weddings, private parties and talent shows. Each Monday she joins a Prince Edward musical group, Seams Wright for its weekly practice session. This four-piece orchestra is led by Carl Kidd, Bloomfield.

Pat was a cast member of the Quinte Island Theatre group in its first season and last winter had a screen test for a singing role in The Frog Prince, a Robert Lawrence Productions Film.

Every vocalist requires a skilled accompanist and Pat Hoag already has an eager volunteer. Her 13-year-old sister, Karen, is studying the piano and looks forward to the day when she and Pat can team for a duet. Both girls are encouraged by their mother, who has sung in guest appearances on many occasions.

Several of Pat Hoag's most enthusiastic fans insist she has "a song in her heart" that is revealed with each performance.

"She wants to give the audience enjoyment that corresponds with the pleasure she gets in singing for it," remarked one observer.

Whatever the secret of Pat's success, it seems obvious her involvement with her songs plays an important role.

Her Career on the Way

Possession, Traffic Offences on Docket

Two youths appeared in provincial court Thursday to face charges of possession of marijuana in separate incidents.

Garry George St. Louis, 18, of 369 Albert Street, Belleville, pleaded guilty to possession of 8.9 grams of junk marijuana.

The container recovered by RCMP July 23 contained the butts of marijuana cigarettes which together with shreds and stalks of the weed, was valued at approximately $10 worth.

Fined $150 and $3 court costs he was given two weeks to pay.

The second person to appear, David Michael C. Clarke, 20, of Islington, Ontario, was arrested by OPP and RCMP in a May 20 raid on a Wollaston Township farm, in the Bancroft area.

In the summary introduced by Crown Attorney John Pringle, the court was told that police discovered 7.2 grams of marijuana seeds in a plastic pencil case sitting on a bookshelf in the bedroom.

Clarke admitted ownership and was arrested.

Asked by Judge Wills if the 12 people living in the farmhouse constituted a commune, the accused replied, "Yes, your honor."

When assessed a $150 fine and $3 court costs, Clarke asked the court to commute the sentence to a probationary order.

"We haven't very much money; we're picking tomatoes," he said.

Judge Wills declined the suggestion: "You have to accept the conditions of the society," he told the youth.

Richard Allen Adams, 25, of 16 St. Charles Street, was fined a total of $170 and 90 court costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving and a charge of driving without a licence.

Police reported Adams' car swerved off Dundas St. East Aug. 26, and narrowly missed a pedestrian. Alcohol content following his arrest averaged a .18 reading.

Emerson Vasily, 46, of RR2, Ameliasburg pleaded guilty to a charge of driving, having consumed more than the legal limit of alcohol Aug. 12.

He was fined $100 and $4 court costs. His licence was suspended for three months.

A RR 2, Belleville youth, whom police pursued at speeds of up to 90 miles per hour July 29, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving, was fined $150 and $4 court costs and had his licence suspended for 18 months.

Daniel Wayne Wood, 20, was pursued from Dundas Street at Pinnacle to Marshall Road in the city's west end by city police Constable John Walker, with the high-speed chase brought to an abrupt halt when the Wood vehicle crashed into a tree.

Several youths were injured in the incident.

A driver who careened down Charles Street in the early hours of Aug. 18, ran through a hedge bending several fence posts, crushing trees in the process, and smashing into a parked car, was fined $150 and $4 court costs and had his licence suspended for six months when he pleaded guilty to having more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system.

Donald Nelson Murray, 19, of 206 Bleecker Avenue identified what Charles Street, residents referred to as "a block party". Following the accident, neighbors met and chatted until the small hours of the morning. The party did not break up until after 2.30 a.m.

Leslie John Hie, 31, of 102 Dundas Street, Trenton, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving, having consumed more than the legal limit of alcohol. He was fined $100 and $4 court costs.

A Belleville youth who is charged with resisting a police officer in the performance of his duty, was released on bail to appear in court Sept. 9.

James Richard Morgan, 24, of 462 Bleecker Avenue, was being served with a bench warrant Aug. 31 when he resisted the officer.

In provincial court, Judge Wills told the man, "there are limits to what you can get away with. I know everyone else is wrong but you can't keep control of yourself, we'll just have to place you where you can be controlled."

Student Book Buying Is Delayed This Year

Happy days are here again for thousands of mothers in Belleville now the sun and fun summer holidays are over and their children are tramping their way to local book stores to arm themselves with paper and pen for the coming ten-month battle.

Local stationery stores, variety stores, grocery stores and even a hardware store have stocked up with 1,000 sheet refills and binders to get in on the back to school action.

"The trend in shopping this year, has been a little different than in past years," said one of the staff of The James Test Ltd. "It seems that students are leaving the shopping until later this year."

The Quinte Mall, and particularly Coles Book Store, has geared most of their attention to the back to school trade.

Peter Annis, proprietor of Coles said, "we are the largest book store in North America, and it makes sense that students would come to us to purchase supplies. We have been feeling the effects of the back to school trade for the past week or so and the effects are getting stronger."

While Coles is the largest book store on the mall, they will not be selling text books this year, "nor have they sold them in recent years," said Mr. Annis. "They are a tricky item to handle. For every parent about stocking text books is, they can't be returned to the publishing house after the school rush. You are stuck with the books and the hope that the same book will be on the course next year.

"There are several outlets in the city that are handling grade thirteen texts. Collis College students will also be able to come to town and buy their school needs including textbooks.

There may be some problem this year with the number of textbooks for the local high schools due to the large number of students coming from outside the city to buy their supplies here.

"Outside students come in and pirate our supplies, leaving us short for the needs of the Belleville kids," said a spokesman for the rival firm. "We have accurate figures, describing the number of students needing books for the coming year. Realizing that there are other outlets doing the same service, we do not stock to the exact figure. With the large number of outside youths in Belleville, aside from our own students, we may well fall short of the demand for books. With Belleville students buying later than usual, this situation will become worse."

Spokeswomen for the same store adds, "delivery time on reorders may be delayed, meaning a long wait for those returning to school this Tuesday bookless."

Bookless or any other way, the masses will be streaming to the sacred halls of higher learning and mother can have her rest at least until Christmas.

Love Affair

It is amusing to observe the growing love affair, hesitant in some, certain in others, with the city of Toronto, unveiled in recent years by immigrants from many parts of the world and cosmopolitan beyond any imagining say a decade ago.

With columnist Richard Needham there are no doubts in this regard. In his view Toronto is the greatest and he confirmed this on a recent CBC Under Attack program, when asked by a student to explain his "irrational" fondness for the city.

Irrational, many might agree, for aside from its shopping facilities, the greenery of its tree-lined avenues which once drew favorable comment from conductor Sir Henry Wood, the CNE, Ontario Place, the Science Centre, museum and art gallery, well what is there to distinguish it from other cities?

Toronto presents too glum a face, too little of ordinary humanity, too few smiles, too little common courtesy among restaurant and other service personnel, to really turn the visitor on or make him feel that here is a great city.

It reminds one a lot of poet Wyndham Lewis' strictures about Canada at large . . . "a sanctimonious ice box . . . a sort of worked-out gold-mine." Lewis, we understand, was living in the city and had fallen upon bad times when he came up with this picturesque imagery; his sojourn there and impressions were colored accordingly. Things do not have to be that bad, even in Toronto, but nevertheless a rather grim atmosphere, overall, despite the fine new buildings and progress in recent years, lingers.

Bruce West, another Globe and Mail columnist, is hesitant enough on the subject when he says that "old attitudes sometimes change awkwardly and slowly. In spite of the many things we now have going for us in this great city, we still seem to be a little unsure of ourselves when it comes to letting our hair down and making a little whoopee . . ." By the time West gets to the end of his column (he was talking about such recent developments as the Yonge Street mall) he has warmed to the subject, enough to hazard this: ". . . with our increasingly polyglot population and our growing vitality, Toronto must surely be at least potentially one of the most exciting cities on the North American continent and perhaps in the Western world. Some mighty interesting chemistry has been taking place in this city during the past few years."

Perhaps when the chemistry catches fire enough to inject some more warmth into people and commercial processes in Toronto (the same goes really for all of Canada), produce the odd smile in a devastatingly unsmiling society, and a little sophistication in the bourgeois milieu then perhaps there will be real cause for celebration.

Through Children's Eyes

It might have been Zwick's Island or the parkland at Adolphustown and there were a couple of school buses standing in the background at one point, but in fact it was California and Debbie Reynolds was leading the kids around Fled Piper fashion, looking very pretty still, at 39, and singing and chatting with the youngsters and culminating with a get-together on the beach there, somewhere along that exotic coast we have seen so many times in the movies.

It was the other night on television, a happy 60 minutes of children and woodland and crashing surf and some of the kids were scouts and guides and we were reminded of reading somewhere that Debbie Reynolds runs a guide group herself. The program radiated a warmth that unhappily is lacking in North American family life and of course it was itself just a little larger than life. Just the same, for those who saw the program there was a poignancy about it all, a glimpse of life at a higher level through the unspoiled eyes of children.

Some lines from Debbie Reynolds' songs: "Make your life a work of art . . . Use the grace that is in your heart . . . Give a little love to everything you touch . . . What you give away you really hold . . . All the love you give away will soon come back to you . . . Let the colors of the rainbow shine in a world of love . . . Travel in your own backyard (or find contentment right where you are).

And there was more, reflections of the world around that we often miss, images indicative of the values we often let pass by in the rush of daily life. A tree here, a garden there, the sky and the sea, children at play, solitude.

A Far Cry from Mackenzie King

Our Top Heavy Bureaucracy May Take 50c of Every $

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It is worrying — even frightening — if you stop to think about it.

And William M. Lee, former Executive Assistant to the Defence Ministers Paul Hellyer, and currently head man in one of the National Capital's most successful consulting corporations, has started getting businessmen, industrialists and investment executives thinking about it.

And what, hopefully, they may be starting to worry about is what William Lee calls the "inexorable expansion" of Government "services" — and their costs — mushrooned in 30 years by more than 2100 percent.

Thirty years in terms of Governments is a mere four Prime Ministers ago: Lester Pearson, John Diefenbaker, Louis St. Laurent and Mackenzie King.

And 2100 percent is an enormous 21 times in terms of growth of Government. A figure so immense as to be all but incomprehensible in the field of what is supposed to be — and so packaged by the politicians and their Civil Service — as rational administration.

William M. Lee is not just any president of any executive consultant organization. He is the leader of what many in a position to know the score regard as the leading firm in the art of opening Government doors and the ears of Ottawa's Mandarins to business and industry.

Nor was he, in his executive assistant days to Paul Hellyer just any Cabinet aide.

He was, to bear the Armed Forces telt it and curse him for it, the real power that "unified" Navy, Army and Air in their current widely disunited state of "integration," as it was militarily and falsely labelled.

In a word, William Lee was an "insider's insider," a mover and shaker in the world of federal power — although he puts it more modestly himself, claiming only to have been "enough from within" the bureaucracy to know what he is talking about.

And he is good enough, and smug enough now in his private enterprise world that having missed the magic lamp of power, he can tell.

Like it is, with impunity.

He has been making speeches to businessmen.

The message:

Unless businessmen start opting out of the political-bureaucratic system as it operates now, it will result in the conversion of Canada as we know it from an "Incentive Society" to one of "Total Paternalism."

Listen to him as he warns the business community . . .

". . . Thirty years ago Prime Minister King had 16 Cabinet Ministers, a small Civil Service, had no written agenda and kept no minutes."

". . . Today Prime Minister Trudeau has 26 Cabinet Ministers, a huge Privy Council office and a personal PM's establishment with program planners, regional desks, legislative assistants, public relations and tour co-ordinators and other specialists . . . with a platoon of Cabinet, Commons, Senate, Caucus, Inner and Outer Committees, federal - provincial committees . . . an army of study groups and task forces and a sublizzard of white papers and special reports . . .

. . . Government planning touches on every move . . . the federal Civil Service exceeds a quarter million plus scores of crown corporations, agencies, boards, tribunals, councils and commissions.

. . . When you add expanding provincial Governments, servants and the bureaucracies of town, city, metro and other Governments, we approach a million people on the public payroll.

. . . The cost: up more than 2100 percent."

He recalls that former federal mandarin and co-ordinator of the Economic Council of Canada John Deutsch two years ago warned that Government services dreined off 36 cents of every dollar. Then this most respected and widely honored former senior civil servant — and John Deutsch is not given to over-statement — said that in only a few more years it will be 50 cents of every dollar.

Then the recently retired Economic Council chairman Arthur Smith took the calculation a step further, forecasting that in the next few years to come Canadians will be earning a collective $350 billion with the cost of Government services running $175 billion.

. . . and that," says William Lee, "is being some understatement. Government will cost more than $5,000 for every man of the 21 million men, women and children Statistics Canada says will be living in this country."

Quite clearly, he counsels, ongoing Government policy — with leaders of all political parties offering no objection, in less effective opposition — "is to divert more and more of what you earn in the private sector of the economy to others in the public sector.

"Good luck, you taxpayers!"

So, okay, all appalling prospect. What to do about it?

William Lee will spell out the "insider's inside" view of how to halt "spiralling socialism."

In the next column in this space.

Separate School Issue

Davis Decision Consistent With Earlier Statements

The Globe and Mail

Once again Premier William Davis had made a courageous decision.

Three months ago his decision to stop the Spadina Expressway stunned the province with its daring. Now, in the face of widespread and well-organized opposition, he has declared that Ontario's system of non-denominational public schooling will not be jeopardized. He has refused to extend aid to Roman Catholic separate schools, and, by implication, to all other sectarian institutions.

This was not a political decision. Unlike the Spadina situation, Mr. Davis had no votes to gain — but undoubtedly some to lose — by standing firm. If he had compromised his position by extending some form of increased aid to the separate schools, voters who disagreed would have had no other party to turn to — both the Liberals and New Democrats have promised to extend public aid to separate schools to Grade 13.

Ontario's educational resources should be concentrated in providing public education of the highest possible calibre equally to all. Such an aim is incompatible with full support for the complete range of sectarian education that would result from extension of aid to separate schools.

Now that the decision has been made the Roman Catholic bishops have promptly and wisely announced that they will not make it an election issue. Nor will the Association of Catholic High School Boys of Ontario or the Ontario Separate School Trustees' Association, according to their spokesmen.

Rabbi Stuart Rosenberg, however, says that regardless of what opposition groups say, Mr. Davis has made his decision an election issue by delaying the announcement for so long. NDP Leader Stephen Lewis makes the same charge. They say no time has been allowed for discussion of the decision outside of an election context.

What Mr. Rosenberg and Mr. Lewis overlook is that the issue has been thoroughly discussed ever since Mr. Davis indicated during his campaign for leadership seven months ago that he had little sympathy for extension of aid.

At that time he said, "The policy of the Government is that we won't support private schools . . . I support that policy. I realize there are people here today who would like me to say I hope that if I win, things will change, but I support the Government's policy. I don't believe in encouraging the possible fragmentation of the education system."

Mr. Davis has been true to his principles.

Socialist State Aim Of Anarchists in Ireland

Vancouver Sun

An influential West German newspaper, the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, remarks that "almost all conflicts in Northern Ireland can be traced to the original religious confrontation." This observation, it continues, "helps little until all parties concerned realize that the 17th century has passed quite some time ago, that late sociological and emotional consequences of any past can be mortally dangerous."

The basic truth of this statement is not altered by the fact that the extremists who lead the Irish are profound atheists — whose aim apparently is to unite Ireland in a socialist unity - style state. They would not only drive the British out of the North., they would overthrow the constituted government in Dublin as well.

Under the circumstances the announcement of the Republic's Prime Minister Lynch that he would support a civil disobedience campaign by the Catholic minority in Northern Ireland is more than silly bluff it has been called in sections of the British press. It is a bad joke. But it does illustrate the anxieties and uncertainties of the situation.

The British government cannot permit terrorism and civil disobedience to go unchallenged but the anger of Prime Minister Heath over Mr. Lynch's words is regrettable. Deterioration of relations between London and Dublin will not help; it will strengthen the hand of the terrorist element. Yet Mr. Lynch is treading a dangerous path for Ireland. In an economic and diplomatic war Britain would hardly suffer at all. Ireland very much.

The senseless bombing of an electricity board office in Belfast in which many innocent people were seriously hurt and one man killed must give Mr. Lynch something else to think about. Mr. Heath has something when he calls the act part of an attempt to destroy society in Northern Ireland.

He might have added all Irefland, because whether it is the "official" or the "provisional" wing of the IRA that is responsible (and the former denies any part in it), it was obviously the work of the nihilistic elements operating in many countries whose sole aim is to destroy what they see before them if old and cherished values.

The other Irish who continue to nourish the hatreds and resentments of earlier generations have only themselves to blame that they have encouraged this minority fringe to fix itself on their society. The Irish problem only seems incapable of solution if we forget the human element in the street.

Waning Season

An ever earlier setting sun these days tells of another summer in decline. There will still be warm, sunny days to come at the bench, but soon the holiday crowds will taper off and the lifeguards, like this one at The Outlet, will return to their studies. (Picture by Ian Roberston)

P.M. Will Maintain Busy Tour Schedule This Fall

OTTAWA (CP) — Touring of the government's economic sensitivity plan has not changed, so far at least, Prime Minister Trudeau's plans for another political foray in Ontario next week.

The government will announce Tuesday its financial plan to combat the American 10-per-cent surtax on imports, a move which has already caused work layoffs in Canada.

Mr. Trudeau has proposed a Commons debate on the issue. The Commons reconvenes Tuesday.

The prime minister also has plans to visit seven Ontario communities Friday and Saturday next week.

Friday he will tour Pickering, Oshawa, Peterborough and Port Hope and Saturday take in Belleville, Picton and Cornwall.

Mr. Trudeau had to cut short his Yugoslavian vacation late last month when President Nixon announced the U.S. economic moves.

Mrs. Trudeau, who is pregnant, is not expected to accompany her husband on the Ontario trip.

The prime minister has said he also intends to make several Quebec tours this fall. Plans to visit other provinces, if any, have not been announced.

Among the federal ridings Mr. Trudeau will be touring next week is Ontario, held by Liberal Norm Cafik, who has been trying for a long time to line up a Trudeau visit to his constituency, which lies north and west of Oshawa.

But Mr. Cafik won't be at home for the visit. He's in Paris until Sept. 13 for an interparliamentary conference.

The NDP is considering a summit conference of its own, to be held after the Ontario election expected this fall.

The object would be to discuss all kinds of policy on the federal-provincial level.

Those attending would be federal leader David Lewis, premiers Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, and Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and NDP party leaders in the other provinces.

One of the subjects the party would like to sort out is a policy on Quebec and the constitution. Mr. Lewis has said frankly the party has no Quebec policy now.

But the main point of the meeting would be to try to show the public that the NDP is strong enough nationally to form the opposition — or even the government — in Ottawa.

Today In History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sept. 4, 1971 . . .

The Third French Republic was proclaimed 101 years ago today — in 1870 — following the capture of Napoleon III during the Franco-Prussian War. With the fall of the empire in France a government of national defence tried to continue the war with Germany but the following year France capitulated. The Third Republic was definitely inaugurated by decree in January, 1875, which organized the republican government that was called the Constitution of 1875. In Paris, Empress Eugenie fled from the mob to the house of U.S. dentist Thomas Evans and then fled to England in Mrs. Evans' clothes.

1938 — A typhoon ripped through the industrial area of Kobe and Osaka, Japan, killing 700 persons and injuring an estimated 1,000.

1943 — The Italian fleet surrendered to the Allies.

1837 — A League of Nations commission tacitly approved the creation of Jewish and Arab states.

1935 — The Mexican government confiscated all churches, including buildings that had been used for public worship since 1917.

Tourists Flock to Mexican Resort

Mexico's net income from the tourist trade last year was $612.1 million, up $125 million from 1969. The country is served by 30 international and two domestic airlines and Mexico is busy increasing the number of routes these carriers may fly. Aerial photo shows Acapulco which has 21 hotels and condominiums for tourists under construction with a price tag of more than $40 million. (CP Photo)

Battle Lines Have Formed Over Catholic Church Law

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A question has arisen whether Pope Paul will go through with plans to promulgate a "fundamental law" or constitution for the Roman Catholic Church. Battle lines have been forming over a proposed text, with some elements in the church calling it a big step backward.

In effect, the document symbolizes what may be a push by old-line cardinals and bishops, and the Pope himself, to restore the church to the unity and stability it knew before the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council.

A secret preparation since 1966, the constitution stresses the authority of the Pope as sole head of the church. It appears to subordinate the synods of bishops to the Roman Curia. It reminds all Roman Catholics to obey their religious superiors.

Although the draft uses such popular expressions as "the Pilgrim Church" and "the people of God," its tone is one of command and finality akin to papal decrees before the ecumenical council. The draft says: "There is no appeal against a sentence of the Roman pontiff."

Another caveat insists that priests and nuns must adhere to doctrines enunciated by the Pope and bishops when they exercise an authentic teaching authority, even though they do not want to proclaim the doctrine with a definite act. This could cover the ban on artificial means of birth control.

Bishops have Latin copies of the draft. They are to submit comments to the Pontifical Commission for the Revision of Canon Law, headed by Peruvian Cardinal Felici. He is to present the documents to the third World Synod of Bishops in October. The synod will have no vote to accept or reject it, however.

Well-informed sources say Cardinal Felici had hoped to have the draft ready for Pope Paul's signature by December. The hassle over the document has been so strong that the Vatican has put off a final decision until at least 1973. Some critics are banking on opposition to grow so much that the document will be scuttled.

A hint of this came last week from L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper. It spoke of promulgation of the constitution as "a possibility."

Criticism has come from the Canon Law Society of the United States, a congress of Superior-generals of Roman Catholic religious orders and such progressive-wing figures as Leo Joseph Cardinal Suenens of Belgium.

Summarized, the chief criticisms are that the draft:

—Over-emphasizes the authority of Pope and bishops and the need for rigid obedience to these figures by other Roman Catholics.

—Freezes the development of the theological and structural concepts evolving from ecumenical council.

—Harms the ecumenical movement by statements too unyielding for many non-Roman Catholics to accept.

—Is couched in patronizing and "triumphalistic" language.

Some critics say a "constitution" already exists: the ecumenical council's decree "Lumen Gentium," also called "A Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World."

That document, widely hailed by Protestant ecumenists, presents the Roman Catholic Church as a body dedicated mainly to serving its members instead of issuing arbitrary orders.

Panama Priest Vanishes

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Almost three months ago, Rev. Hector Gallego, tired after working all day in the fields with the peasants near Santa Fe in northern Panama, went to sleep in the small house of a friend.

The Colombian-born priest has not been seen since.

"It was almost midnight June 17," recalled Jacinto Pena, "when a jeep pulled up in front of my house with two men in it."

Father Gallego, 34, asleep in the front room, awakened and opened the door to the two men who said they had orders "from superiors to bring him in," recalled Pena. The slight bespectacled priest left with the two men.

There is conjecture as to why Father Gallego disappeared.

There is no question that he was loved by the poor people he worked with in Veraguas province.

"The people adored him," said a Panama City resident. "He gave them hope and was their spokesman."

It is this influence over the poor people that could be the cause of his disappearance.

"Father Gallego helped the people to help themselves," said Gallego's superior, Bishop Martin Legarra of Santiago, Veraguas.

"He organized a consumer co-operative which hurt the sisers in the area."

He acknowledged that the missing parish priest was not in complete agreement with government policies and disapproved of the poor life of the people in the area. Most earn less than $1 a day, explained the bishop.

Adversely affected by the priest's activities in recent years, explained one church official, were the almost 50 families who control much of the wealth and enterprise around Santa Fe. Because of Father Gallego's counsel, workers now are reported asking higher wages. They also help each other by raising vegetables and coffee which are marketed in other cities for a higher price.

Attorney-General Olmedo Miranda said investigation of the priest's disappearance by authorities in the province is continuing.

"It's the man about the wiring, ma'am."

It's true, living in any older home without up-to-date wiring just doesn't hold a candle to truly modern electrical living.

The changes that electrical modernization brings will brighten your life throughout every room in your home – for years to come. You'll have more outlets and switches where you want them, better performance from your appliances – and you can even add the year-round comfort of electric climate control.

And rewiring an older home doesn't be complicated or expensive. The cost will probably be less than you imagine, and the Hydro Finance Plan makes it easy for you to budget.

For greater comfort and convenience – and an extra margin of safety, too – call your qualified Electrical Modernization contractor. Or ask your Hydro.

ELECTRICAL MODERNIZATION

Ann Landers

Dad Has Always Ignored His Son

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about the lady whose husband ignored their son because he had a physical deformity. I am a 15-year-old boy who has been ignored me for as long as I can remember. I don't know why. I was a normal, healthy baby and I was never any trouble to him.

I was always close to my mother. She took me nearly every place she went. I'm sure she did this to make up for my father who didn't pay any attention to me. I spent so much time with my mother that I never learned to do things boys usually do, like play ball or wrestle or swim. I guess you might say I was a sissy.

Shortly after my ninth birthday, my mother died. Since then I've felt like an orphan. I have a hard time in school. I guess I need someone to be strict with me and tell me how far to go. My dad never sets any limits. He just ignores me and I'd do as I please.

The kid next door has a father who is very strict. I envy him although he complains all the time that he can't do anything on account of his old man. He doesn't know how lucky he is.

I don't know why I am writing to you except maybe to say you are sort of a substitute mother for me. I learn a lot from your column. Would you think I was crazy if I told you that sometimes I dream you are my mother. I think I'll sign off before you decide I'm a complete nut. Thank you for everything. — JOHNNY.

DEAR JOHNNY: Yours is one of the nicest letters I've ever received. Thank you for writing. I'll see you in your dreams.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like an honest answer from you. My wife and I celebrated our wedding anniversary last week. We have four married children. They all live in this city.

On that very special day we received a card in the mail — signed by all four children and their spouses. Is it petty of me to feel that they could have done a little more — such as sending a plant, taking us out to dinner or having us over to one of their homes to celebrate the occasion? My wife didn't say much but she was unusually quiet and downcast the whole day. I took her to the finest restaurant and tried to make it a festive dinner but we both shared the unspoken thought that our children had let us down.

What do you say? — A DAD.

DEAR DAD: I say it's too bad when four children can't stir themselves to do something a little more imaginative than mail a card to their parents in honor of their 35th anniversary. Who raised those vegetables?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a woman wrote to you about her emotionally sick husband who was fired a month but refused to accept more than $200 a month to live. Maybe my story will make her feel better.

I, too have an emotionally sick husband. When I was young he was intellectually poor. Today we are well fixed but he is so money conscious that he runs himself bowlegged buying secondhand junk and super "bargains". Our garage is filled with old medical instruments, old clothes, broken toys, trash from auctions and rummage sales, cracked pottery, rusty lawn furniture — you name it and we've got it. Many of his "bargains" are the cause of family disagreement.

The only way I could get away from the junk was by taking a job as a day-maid for an artist steward who has a vast apartment. I need the salary. The only thing that keeps me going is the thought that I'll outlive this miser and be free of him and the junk. — SAN ANTONIO.

DEAR S.A.: What a way to live! Sorry, I don't recommend it. But to each his own.

Successful Living

Nobody Is Too Busy to Take Time Off for Social Visit

By BORIS CLARK

Ten years later, Molly describes an incident which happened when she was a bride of your or so.

In her small apartment she was ironing, with board set up in the living room. She welcomed two mid-morning callers, cut them down, and continued ironing as she talked. Explains that the pile was high and the baby, for a brief period, quiet.

And she thought this was the most informal, friendly thing to do. But as she talked with her visitors they proceeded to remark on her ironing and upbraid that she really wouldn't work that hard as her husband's pyjamas! Which made her self-conscious.

She would do differently now, she says. She would move the ironing board out of the living room, serve coffee and little cakes. She would make the social call the important thing and forget how pushed she was.

Dear Doris: Please forward information on Introduction Centres. I am unattached and would like to meet somebody, but where I live there is no one.

What do you think of all the "Dial-a-Date" and "Dial-a-Chat" services they publish? — Mrs. W. L.

Dear Mrs .W .S.: Not very. Most of them, that is, most are run by untrained supervisors who see a chance to make a fast buck. Little thought is given to eligibility of applicants or partners. When someone starts investigating such services they run far cover and may never be heard from again.

Yet there is the need for guidance in making friends and finding marriage partners, and there are some rare and happy exceptions to the unscrupulous type of marriage resource.

One of these is the Scientific Introduction Centre in Toronto, Canada, where individual attention is given to applicants, their personalities and their desires. Consultants are persons trained in psychology, psychiatry and social work.

And the pay off? The SIC can boast of well over 300 successful marriages as a result of their introductions and guidance.

Dear Doris: I have a son 15 who seems disturbed and I am wondering if I did anything wrong.

He has to have the drapes completely shut in the evening and just about as bad daytimes. He won't have the door open in summertime; he is afraid someone will see our ugly home. He does not want anyone to visit.

He is also afraid to go away for two weeks' holiday because I will leave the drapes open. He is home evenings or does not go too far to make absolutely sure the drapes are not open an inch. There is no use arguing with him because he will just stay there until I leave and then pull them shut again.

He seems to pick fights with the other three children, younger than him, and then he says it is their fault. He says he hopes the house will burn down — even talking like he could start it. Some days he talks very nice again, but they are few; and then I think what it is just that teenagers are impossible.

What do I do now? I know he will, not go to a doctor because I asked him. He says he would run away first. — Problem.

Dear Problem: My psychiatric consultant considers these symptoms more sinister than mere adolescence. You have not done anything wrong; but your lad is showing early signs of paranoid schizophrenia.

Your boy is sick and will probably get much worse if he is not tended to. The family doctor is your first contact. Go to him and describe what you have described to me.

At this point the treatment needed may be simply the right medication.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Pickled Eggs and Wieners Good Appetizers

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have been looking for, without success, a recipe for pickled eggs and pickled wieners, the type served in hotels which you can buy in supermarkets at a very high price. I have found a recipe for pickled eggs but they have chewy skin in them and the ones you buy do not have it. If you could help me then I would be most happy. — Mrs. Roby M.

ANSWER:

PICKLED EGGS
2 cups white (spirit) vinegar
½ cup water
1¼ tsps. salt
1 tsp. whole cloves
1 tsp. peppercorns
2 tbsps. sliced ginger root (or ½ tsp. ground)
The spices in bag and put into vinegar with salt and water and boil 10 min. Remove spice bag and let solution cool. Hard-cook a dozen eggs; drain into cold water to cool rapidly and remove shells. Pack eggs in quart jars. Pour cold vinegar solution over to cover, then seal. Let stand at least 2 days before using. These keep well at room temperature for a few days but should be refrigerated if kept more than 1 week.

PICKLED WIENERS

1 lb. 5" wieners (12 to a pound) or equivalent in smoked or Polish sausage or pepperoni or knockwurst
1¼ cups white (spirit) vinegar
½ cup water
2 tbsps. sugar
12 tsps. pickling spices
1 garlic clove chopped

Cut the wieners in thirds crosswise. If using smoked type sausages are used cut them into large bite-sized pieces. Measure all remaining ingredients into shallow saucepan, bring to boil, add cut wieners, reduce heat, cover, and simmer gently 30 min. Remove from heat and pack into preheated, broad-mouthed jar with lid. Cool then refrigerate for 3 or 4 days before using. During the marinating period shake jar to make sure all wiener pieces are covered with marinade. Serve as appetizers on toothpicks or as a snack with sliced rye bread. These will keep in the refrigerator for a week.

The Experts Say

Take These Precautions To Protect Infants

TORONTO (CP) — Babies and young children have no sense of danger. There is no use telling an infant not to do something potentially hazardous and expecting him to obey. You must practice safety precautions when young children are around.

The drug industry's Council of Family Health in Canada reminds mothers that as soon as a child can manage it he will start putting things in his mouth. As he learns to move around and pull himself up, he can reach more things.

To protect him from himself, you should store all household cleaning agents, polishes, poisons and medicines on high shelves in locked cabinets. Do not allow your child to play with empty containers that have held pesticides, detergents, furniture polish or similar products.

Keep matches, lighters, coins, nuts, bolts and tools out of reach. Install safety plugs in unused wall sockets. Remove breakable objects and ornaments, cords, sharp edged furniture wherever you can.

Keep containers of hot food and liquids out of your child's reach. Always turn pot handles so they do not stick temptingly out over the edge of the stove.

Do not take medicines in front of your child. He will probably want to imitate you. Do keep all medicines out of reach in a locked medicine cabinet. Dispose of outdated medicines by flushing them down the toilet.

When your child can walk and climb you should have out of reach safety locks on stairway doors and gates and on exits to the street.

Be sure all window screens are sturdy and make a practice of opening windows from the top when it is possible.

By the time a child is two, he should be learning obedience, but he still cannot be expected to have judgment. You will have to remove him again and again from the many dangers with a firm no.

This is a venturesome age. Have a good look again at your house, garage and storage areas from the point of view of a curious, quick-moving, fearless pre-schooler. Then you should still know where he is and what he is doing at all times.

As he gets older you can begin an intensive safety training, always remembering that a young child does not really understand dangers and forgets warnings.

He should learn to handle scissors and knives safely and be warned not to handle broken glass. He should be taught not to run when he is carrying any pointed object.

Parents should keep knives, scissors, sewing kits and tools in good repair and stored in a safe place, out of reach.

Teach your child water safety as soon as possible, when he is about three. If you can. Never allow him to play around water without adult supervision.

HEADING BACK

"The words of the good are like a staff in a slippery place." — Hindu saying.

* * *

Now that September is here, public, secondary schools and universities again open their doors to students. Many are returning from summer jobs that have proven unusual and interesting. A case in point is that of Donald, a first year student of Carleton University, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Chaplin, 126 Childs Street, who was a tourist guide at The Parliament Buildings in Ottawa. He is the first from Belleville to do so. Being a student of French in which he is much interested, he was able to put this study to use for he conducted the tours in either French or English.

"It is good, interesting work which I enjoyed, and regret it is for one summer only, for the job is delegated to new students each year," says Donald. The guides, we are told, wear navy blue blazers and grey flannels during working hours which are from nine-to-five or one-to-nine shifts.

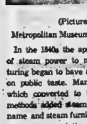
For students who decide to drop out, September may be a month of decision. Reasons vary, with decisions to perhaps return in another year or so. A recent paper written by a young man who decided to drop out and did so several years ago. This September he has decided to return, due to his boss, who urged him to finish his university courses that he might make better use of a brilliant talent with which he is endowed in advance him in his career.

"It should be everyone's right to use the university for learning an entirely new career," declares Professor Phillip Deane of Lethbridge University, saying, "society is full of people who need to change their trade."

"Our son," remarked visiting former Belleville parents, recently, "decided on law for school, went to work, married, then found a new incentive which sent him back to earn his degree, enabling him to find greater fulfilment achieving goals of his choice. What's more, he found, in returning as an older student, that no generation gap exists, for after a while the joint endeavor bridges generational meeting in class."

The following is an address given by the English poet, John Masefield, when an honorary degree by the University of Oxford was bestowed upon him in 1946:

"There are few earthly things more beautiful than a university . . . It is a place where those who perceive loftiness may strive to know, where those who perceive truth may strive to make it clear; where seekers and learners alike, banded together in search for knowledge, will honor thought in all its ways, will welcome thinkers in distress or in exile . . . will uphold ever the dignity of thought and learning and will resist standards in these things.



"They will give to the young in their impressionable years, the bond of a lofty purpose shared, of a great corporate life whose links will not be loosed until they die.

"They give young people that close companionship for which youth longs, and that chance of the endless discussion of the themes which are endless, without which youth would seem a waste of time."

Advent of Steam Power Made Marble Popular

(Picture Credit: Metropolitan Museum of Art)

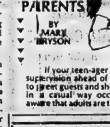
In the 1840s the application of steam power to manufacturing began to have an effect on public taste. Many firms which converted to the new methods added steam to their name and steam furniture factories, steam printing presses, and steam bakeries proliferated in North America.

Besides the ability to mass produce, was the ability to use materials that had hitherto been prohibitive in cost. Marble cut by steam power was one of the first materials to become readily available.

The table illustrated was made in the style of John Henry Belter of New York in the 1850s. Belter did not invent the marble topped table but his use of marble speeded public acceptance and created a market that lasted till the end of the century.

Marble was readily available in New York, Maine, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Georgia, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ohio as well as the settled parts of Canada. The same steam tombstone cutters who supplied cemeteries were also capable of making marble tops for furniture.

The best early marbles were decorative and either the quality white or the more expensive colored. Run-of-the-mill mass produced pieces were almost always finished with a standard grey-white marble of little character.



Even the cheapest marble was more expensive than wood and marble-topped pieces were considered prestige items. Marble was favored for parlor tables, washstands, what-nots, dressers and nighttables. It even appeared in unlikely places on beds. In the 1860s it was used with brass legs, at peril to life and limb, to form spindly and tippy lamp tables and equally insecure floor lamps.

Marble topped pieces still sell at a premium. Marble is much more fragile than it appears and is subject to pitting, chipping and cracking that can be repaired easily and inexpensively by any marble or tombstone company.

Stained marble will clean with bleach and oil can be removed. If drugstore hydrogen peroxide will not remove stains it is best to check with a marble company before experimenting further. After cleaning, the fields on marble should be sealed. This is a professional job but it can be accomplished on a temporary basis by polishing with paste floor wax.

Garrett Has Had Critics, But He Isn't Singing the 'Blues'

Eric Emerson
Staff
Sports Writer

"Hey Garrett, ya bum, the red light's been on so much this game the back of your neck is sunburned", — like how Pat Trenton fans had found themselves a pigeon in bone, town goalie John Garrett, and they weren't missing any chances. Loud and clear they let him know that he was primarily present in a 15-7 Junior B pot-pie being cooked by the Peterborough Don Ryes.

"Peterborough were on their way to sweeping the series, and they were really bombing us that last game. I know that you're not supposed to listen to the fans, but these two guys were on me all night and you just couldn't miss what they were saying. I think that if it had been save that, I was good enough to ever go someplace in hockey, I'd have climbed over the boards and broke my stick over their heads." That was how the former Golden Hawk remembered his last game in a Trenton uniform, three years ago.

Topped Junior 'A' Goalies Two Years

Since then, doubts and doubters aside, Peterborough's pigeon has done quite well, thank you. Donning the colors of the Junior A Petes, the 20-year-old pocksiopper managed to make good ducks out of the OHA's top marksmen posting league-leading averages of 2.86 and 2.86 in his two years of play.

This June, however, John was subject to a more subtle, but still obvious, criticism that no one handed out by his former Trenton detractors as the NHL general managers made their amateur selections. No, the Glen Miller resident doesn't feel like applying a Neapaller to the cranium of such knowledgable hockey men as Milt Schmidt. Still he does wonder a little at his position of being the 24th player chosen in the NHL draft.

After drawing rave notices for his play with Peterborough, many people thought that he would go much higher than that in the draft. "I thought I might, too", he grinned good-naturedly, just then added: "I didn't feel badly about Montreal picking Michel Dagbais as the first goalie, he's a tremendous player and he's French-Canadian, but Boston took Gerry Cheevy in the second round and he only played five games, all behind Ke-Portage in Prince. He wasn't even the first-string-er."

One factor that might have influenced the St. Louis Blues to wait until the third round before drafting Garrett is his lack of size (5'9", 165 lbs.). He notes that the biggest handicap that you face as a small player is that, "you have to stand up most of the time, where people like Dryden and Esposito can be on their knees and still reach the big corners."

No Tears About Going to St. Louis

John isn't shedding any tears about being drafted by the Blues, though, no matter in which round the selection occurred. "Vancouver would have been nice, but I also thought that I might get picked up by St. Louis after Glen Hall retired." "It's a pretty classy organization compared to a lot of them," he added.

Taking care of his financial worries will be attorney Alan Eagleson, who handles Bobby Orr's ore, along with that of a number of other professional athletes. "Right now, he (Eagleson) says that we're pretty close to the figure St. Louis is offering," Garrett reveals, "I think it's better if you can come to terms before you go to camp, because it takes a little of the pressure off you."

Two gentlemen interested in keeping the pressure on the rookie netminder when he does reach camp will be the incumbent first-stringer Ernie Wakely and Peter MacDuffe, who was purchased out of the New York organization after leading the Central Professional League in goaltending the past two seasons.

The former Trenton High School football and track star will learn for the pre-training session next Friday. He admits that he'll probably feel the strain of competing in professional hockey, but also acknowledges that "there was pressure in Junior A, too. We were battling for first place both seasons, and sometimes I'd be sick in the dressing room before a big game, and all of them, but the big ones. It's a feeling that you lose after handling a couple shots."

He believes that the big difference between NHL and amateur hockey is in, "no there pretty well everyone has a good shot, but in Junior A there were only Steve Shutt and Richard Martin who could really boom them." Garrett had a chance to size up NHL marksmanship at the Haliburton hockey camp this summer, working out with major leaguers Daryl Sittler and Jack Egers. His two-week stint as an instructor at Haliburton and a similar position with a hockey school in Pembroke, along with regular session of running and cycling have helped serve to get him in shape for the upcoming season.

Feels Junior 'B' Experience Valuable

He compares the jump from Junior A to the NHL as similar to a leap from midget hockey into the "A" league and feels that the year of Junior B competition stood him in good stead. "We played sort of a 'hang-back and wait for the breaks' type of game in Trenton, so I generally had a lot of work and I think this helped me when I went to the Petes. I'd say that any boy who's good enough to play junior should move up regardless of his age. The "A" scouts take first look at midget players competing in Junior B hockey because they know that they're up against stiff competition there."

The Trenton minor hockey ranks graduate had some bequests for the Belleville Quinte's new coach Gene Peticler, who handled him as a midget. "He's the only coach I've had who's ever taken the time to work individually with even the goalies. If he can get the older guys to listen to him then he'll do a great job in Senior A. The guy knows a lot about hockey," says John.

Strangely enough for a goalie, the thing that Garrett himself plans to work most on is shooting. "I've always shot right-handed, but since I catch the puck with my left I can get it away faster by shooting from that side. I'll have to work on switching over."

For someone who made the switch from a peewee pigeon to a Peterborough Pete, any changes that he has to make this season should be well within his grasp.

Squeeze Play

Union Carbide second baseman Jack Lucas (17) is caught in the middle as Tim O'Connell steams into first and Mead Johnson teammate Ron Redner attempts to return to the base on O'Connell's pop fly sacrifice attempt. Lucas took the relay from pitcher Junior Day to turn in a double play which helped the Bakelite to a 6-4 win, giving them the Industrial Softball championship. It was the second title in a row for Union Carbide.

Union Carbide Manager Packs Industrial Championship Punch

Up until last night Billy Martin was known as the best hitting manager in baseball. The Detroit Tigers pilot gained that reputation with Minnesota a couple of years ago when he kayoed one of his pitchers in a bar room brawl.

Union Carbide's Jack Hughes made a bid for Martin's crown last night however, firing a different sort of knockout punch at Sonny Holoway. The Bakelite's playing-manager unleashed a baseball double, and then scored himself, to spur his team to a 6-4 win over Mead Johnson last night.

The victory gave Carbide its second consecutive Industrial Softball championship as they won the best of seven final series four games to one.

Holoway had scattered only six hits to the defending league champions and held a 4-1 lead until Hughes unloaded in the fifth inning. Frank "Junior" Day then managed to fire no-hit ball over the final three innings to give his team the win and the championship.

Holoway had staked himself to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when he hammered a triple to right - centre with two men on base. Day contributed some fireworks of his own in the third frame with a double that chased across two baserunners.

The Mead Johnson hurler lost a seven-hit effort in which he fanned three batters and walked four. Day limited the losers to six safeties whiffing one batter and walking a pair.

Cliff Elsaman paced Union Carbide with a triple and single, while Day added a double and a base hit. Other batsmen included Gary Little, Hughes and Garnet Bird.

Vaders Edge Expos 3-2 In Hot Pitching Duel

Bantam baseball hurlers must know that autumn's just around the corner as they cooled the offensive efforts of both teams battling for a Belleville Minor Baseball Association's age group championship.

Bruce MacDonald and Craig Empey spun a nifty two-hitter to lead Vaders Datsun to a 3-1 win over CJBQ Expos in the first game of the final series. The Thrillow hurlers walked seven and fanned an equal number.

Rick Cuskin also pitched two - hit ball, whiffing nine and walking only two for the losers.

Jim Aikens and Bruce McDonald had the only hits for Vaders, while Jeff Merrill and peewee call-up Andy Lupenko connected for CJBQ.

Meanwhile the SACO squirts could rap up a Zone Four triple at their own when they travel to Rakeman today holding a 1-0 lead in the best - of - three championship round.

If SACO win today they will meet North Sendale, the Zone Three champions, in a 4 p.m. Sunday opener at the Alemite.

Scarborough Fair At Alemite Sunday

Doug Rollins peewees hope that Scarborough Fair doesn't refer to softball, at least for this weekend.

The Belleville OASA entry will meet Scarborough Sunday in the third and deciding game for the Zone Four championship. The game will get under way at 3 p.m. at the Alemite.

Quinte's Assured of Hustle With Plane McConnell Up Front

Belleville Quinte's owner Ken Murphy took a big step towards bolstering his OHA Senior A team's defence last night, and he didn't even sign a defenceman.

Murphy did, however, manage to get wingers Ralph Plane and Wayne McConnell on the dotted line and this in itself could go a long way towards a good defensive record Both players are hard-working, two-way forwards, which makes the job of the defencemen and goalies significantly easier.

In addition to their hustle and defensive play both Belleville-area players proved last season they could put the puck in the net as they finished fourth and fifth respectively in the Mo-Hawks team scoring statistics.

Plane, who was previously noted more for his fighting ability than scoring touch, managed to put 18 goals and add 20 assists for the year. McConnell, a smooth skating right winger banged in 23 goals to lead the team in that department.

Plane and McConnell are the first Belleville players to sign for the 1971-72 season.

Robin Rips Falcons In Cup Opener

Robin Findlay and Gaitie Transport may be vying for the Charity Cup but they certainly didn't show much compassion for the Belleville Falcons as they whipped the local rivals 3-1.

Quinte's experience and the three-goal scoring of Findlay proved to much for the younger, less polished Falcons as the persent winning Transportmen eliminated them from any further cup play.

In another Charity Cup match Belleville United kept pace with Quinte scoring an identical 3-0 victory over the C.F.E. Flyers.

Joe Lazenia picked up a pass from Mario Collavigh and drove it home after 20 minutes of the first half to give United the lead which they never relinquished. Lazenia netted another one minute later from a set - up by Dave Hadley, who tallied his own marker before the half closed to round out the United scoring.

Als Recant But Others Stick to Guns

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As aura of suspension hung over the Eastern Football Conference this weekend as four teams prepared for Labor Day outings at Hamilton and Ottawa.

Conference-leading Toronto Argonauts visit the Tiger-Cats at Hamilton with defensive stalwart Ed Harrington still on the suspended list.

And in Ottawa, Montreal Alouettes, who reversed their role by removing fullback Moses Denson from the suspended list and placing him on the 30-day or four-game injury reserve list, meet the Rough-Riders who stuck Friday their earlier decision to suspend fullback Dennis Duncan.

Jack Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, approached Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto this week after several CFL members questioned the validity of suspending the players.

CFL bylaws enable a suspended player to return to the lineup at any time the club recalls his name from the suspended list, while a player on the injury-reserve list must remain out of the lineup the required 30 days or four games.

The Argos started the suspension flight with Ed Harrington when the big lineman refused to accompany the team on a two-game Western Canada swing last weekend on the grounds he wanted to allow a recurring thigh injury to heal properly.

Denson, suspended because he is reported to have refused proper treatment of an ankle injury, went on the injury reserve list after a visit early this week by Gaudaur to Montreal.

Denson won't be able to return in the Montreal lineup until Sept. 18, by which time the Als will have played four games including the Aug. 29 game against Hamilton which he did not play.

Toronto and Ottawa, meanwhile, signed affidavits confirming the suspensions against their two players would stand and Gaudaur said Friday the incidents closed; that he believes in the integrity of the club officials involved.

"I'm not willing to entertain any other thought."

The once-beaten Argos go against Hamilton in an afternoon encounter while the Montreal-Ottawa game will be carried on the CTV's eastern network starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

The Ticats, hoping to improve on their 2-3 won-loss mark, will have newcomer Jim Kates in at middle linebacker, replacing Pete Wysocki, and Claude Brumfield moving into Bob Stuart's import spot.

Brumfield is a defensive end. Steiner, an offensive tackle, has been benched.

With Duncan still on Ottawa's suspended list, it appears newcomer Al Pitcaithley will be the Rough Riders' chief ground threat against Montreal.

The Als, meanwhile, confirmed flanker Garry Lefebvre will miss Monday's game because of a slipped disc high on his back. He will probably by replaced by Canadian rookie Brad Upshaw since former Olympic sprinter John Carlos' status remains cloudy.

Carlos, attempting to make the Montreal lineup as a non-import, is having trouble obtaining the necessary affidavits proving he has never played an organized game of football in the United States.

Gerard Pierre Desjardins is expected back in the Als lineup after recovering from knee-surgery but is unlikely to see action Monday.

Offer Still Stands

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite all the hassles between Canadian amateur hockey officials and their counterparts in world amateur hockey circles, Canada still has an invitation to send a team to the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan.

The invitation, acknowledged by some and disclaimed by others, will be the subject of meetings between Canadian amateur hockey and Olympic officials within the next week.

An official of the Canadian Olympic Association said Friday that COA president Harold Wright of Vancouver and Joe Krycska of Calgary, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, were scheduled to meet to discuss the invitation but both men later denied the report.

Krycska said however that he would be happy to have a meeting with COA officials if they have anything to discuss.

Frank Shaughnessy of Montreal, vice-president of the COA said the meeting was to have been held within a few days so the two parties could try to iron out the internal strife and confusion that currently surrounds the possibility of a Canadian team participating at Sapporo.

Ever since the CAHA decided to withdraw from world competition over a year ago, there have been threats and counter-threats between the international body and the Canadian group concerning Canadian participation at the international level in hockey.

The latest threat came recently from John F. (Bunny) Ahearne of London, president of the Internation Ice Hockey Federation who threatened the CAHA with expulsion from the world hockey body.

The CAHA, as Canada's governing hockey group, withdrew from all international hockey after Ahearne refused the Canadian teams the right to use professionals in world competition.

Canada withdrew before the world championships which were to be held in Montreal and Winnipeg in March, 1970.

The issue, flaring anew with the Japanese invitation, could lead to a possible confrontation between the two Canadian groups, the COA and the CAHA.

The COA favored sending an all-amateur team to the Olympics and said that it has received an invitation from the Olympic committee. The CAHA chose to stick by its original decision to withdraw from international competition at all levels and claimed no knowledge of the invitation.

Sport Briefs

DETROIT (AP) — Former Detroit Tiger pitcher Joe Sparma has filed a bankruptcy petition in federal district court, listing his total liabilities at $254,600, compared with assets of $17,000. The ex-Tiger righthander, traded to Montreal Expos in 1969, listed six lawsuits pending against him in Wayne and Oakland circuit courts and one pending in state district court among judgements sought against him totalling nearly $180,000. The Tigers purchased Sparma from Montreal and sent him to their Toledo Farm Club last winter. The Mud Hens released him recently.

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Muhammad Ali, the former world heavyweight boxing champion, suffered slight abrasions and cuts in a motorcycle accident, his trainer Angelo Dundee, said Friday. Ali was treated at hospital Thursday and released. Dundee said the accident caused cancellation in plans for Ali to fly from Philadelphia to Miami Friday and then to Jamaica on business.

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Keon, centre and captain of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, signed for his 12th season Friday. Terms of Keon's contract were not announced but he is reported to be the highest-paid player in the club's history. It is reported that if he clicks on all bonuses, he will hit the $100,000 mark.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Bradley ended speculation about his basketball future Friday when he signed a one-year contract with New York Knickerbockers. The amount of the contract was not disclosed. Bradley, former Princeton All-American, played out a four-year contract with the National Basketball Association club last season and said he might retire from the game.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo Bills football club and Erie County officials announced Friday night they have reached agreement on a lease for a proposed 80,000-seat stadium in nearby Orchard Park. The lease will extend for 25 years. Bills owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. and Deputy County Executive H. Dale Bossert said in a joint announcement.

No Sasky Welcome Mat Awaiting the Eagle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan homecoming 71 is a year when former residents can expect the red carpet treatment.

The one exception, though, is Eagle Keys, the former coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders who now directs British Columbia Lions.

Keys engages his squad against his former team Monday in one of two Western Football Conference games, returning to Taylor Field where he evidently left under a cloud.

Roughriders will still be trying for a win, naturally, but it will be for new head coach Dave Skrien.

If Keys can fashion a victory it will be the first for a B.C. team at Taylor Field since 1965. The game will be televised on the CTV's western network beginning at 2 p.m. CST.

In the other Labor Day encounter, Edmonton Eskimos visit Calgary Stampeders.

Eskimos find themselves in the WFC cellar with one win in six games while Calgary is riding high atop the league with five victories.

With Winnipeg Blue Bombers idle on the weekend, the B.C.-Saskatchewan match will break a three-way tie for second place. All three clubs have three wins so far.

Roughriders, last year's WFC champions, got off to a bad start this season as injuries took their toll. The latest casualty was centre Ron Capham who is out for the season with an ankle injury.

His place will be taken by Canadian Larry Bird but former Saskatchewan linebacker, Bruce Gainer, has rejoined George Reed in Regina as the 10-year veteran tries for a career-touchdown record. He currently shares the honor with Dick Shatto, formerly of Toronto Argonauts, both with 91 touchdowns.

Lions will play Ray Lychak, an offensive guard who suffered a knee injury Sunday, after all. It was thought he would be out of action, making it necessary to put Jim Duke in his spot.

But the latest word is the Lychak will play and allow Duke to take up his defensive end spot.

Equestrians Get Royal Treatment

BURGHLEY, England (AP) — Princess Anne led the cream of Europe's riders Friday night after the completion of the dressage stage of the European three-day horse trials.

The 21-year-old princess, who is bidding for a place in Britain's Olympic team next year, took her eight-year-old gelding Doublet round the course Thursday and collected 41.5 penalty points.

She was 7.5 penalty points ahead of her nearest challenger, Sergei Mubin of Russia, on Reefeer.

Michel Cocheret of France on Quaker was third, three points behind the Russian.

Irv Wants Muhammed

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo could be back in the ring this fall against either world champion Joe Frazier or former champ Muhammad Ali Chuvalo's manager said Friday.

Irv Ungerman said he has been negotiating with both camps but has reached no agreement although he favors Ali.

The Ali bout would be staged in Tokyo, Japan, in November. The Frazier bout would go in Montreal, also in November.

Ungerman said he would hope to get $60,000 for Chuvalo in the Ali match or $50,000 from the Frazier meeting. Ungerman said he met Thursday in Montreal with Yank Durham, Frazier's manager, and plans to meet with him there again next week.

New Belleville Quinte's owner Ken Murphy has reason to smile as he inks wingers Wayne McCon nell and Ralph Plaxe to contracts for the 1971-72 OHA Senior "A" campaign. The two local products ranked fourth and fifth in scoring for the Belleville Mo-Hawks last season to help the team to a fourth place finish.

Wrigley Backs the Lip

Cards Didn't Listen to Confidence Vote

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Owner Phil Wrigley says the Chicago Cubs "have the manager as well give up" but the champ the Cubs cliqui continues to flourish.

Jos Torre, Matty Alou and Ted Simmons each homered and drove in two runs Friday night as St. Louis Cardinals handed the second-last Cubs their 10th setback in the last 14 games.

Earlier in the day, Wrigley used a large paid advertisement in Chicago newspapers to tell the anti-Durocher fodder that "he is running the team, and if some players do not like it and his down on the job, during the all-season we will see what we can do to find them happier homes."

Durocher's only comment on Wrigley's advertisement was that "the statement speaks for itself."

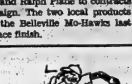
Combined with Pittsburgh Pirates' 8-4 loss to Montreal Expos, the loss left the third-place Cubs nine games behind the Pirates in the National League East. The Cardinals, meanwhile, clinched to within five games of the Buzs.

Elsewhere, New York Mets whipped Philadelphia Phillies 7-1, San Francisco Giants mauled Houston Astros 16-6, Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Cincinnati Reds 3-2 with a four-run rally in the ninth inning and San Diego Padres shaded Atlanta Braves 3-2.

Although some Cub players allegedly have been critical of Durocher, the manager pointed out that "I had good relationships with any club I had that was winning."

Simmons started Chicago's downfall with a run-scoring single in the first inning and Alou and Torre hit consecutive homers in the third. Simmons homered in the eighth and Reggie Cleveland, the Canadian from Swift Current, Sask., checked the Cubs on five hits, including Joe Pepitone's home run.

A huge roar went up from the St. Louis crowd when the Pittsburgh score was flashed, but manager Red Schoendienst predicted that the Pirates "are not going to lose many more ballgames. We've got to win. We can't afford to lose."



And even though his Expos beat the Pirates, Montreal skipper Gene Mauch said he "can't see anybody in this division who can catch them. Here's a team 30 games over .500 (actually 35) and nobody's near them (Cards are five games back, four in the loss column). In fact, nobody in the division has had a sustained winning streak except for the Pirates (11 in a row) and us (8)."

Singles by Bob Bailey and Gary Sutherland started Montreal's ninth-inning rally against Dave Giusti. The 'tying' run scored on an error by rookie second baseman Ronnie Stennett, who had four hits. A walk filled the bases and the winning run scored on a force play. Boots Day singled the final run across.

Glenn Jones doubled home two runs and Duffy Dyer and Tommie Agee homered as the Mets handed the Phillies their sixth consecutive defeat. Ray Sadecki went the route and struck out nine.

Houston tore into Juan Marichal for a 4-0 lead as Bob Watson homered twice. But the Giants battled back on homers by Tito Fuentes and Bobby Bonds and light-hitting Frank Duffy put them ahead to stay in the fifth with a two-run single.

McNally Remains Hot But Vida Feels Blue

Would you believe Dave McNally is the hottest pitcher in the major leagues?

The Baltimore left-hander, the winningest pitcher in the American League over the last four seasons, gained his 15th consecutive victory Friday night as the Orioles rallied for a 4-2 triumph over Washington Senators.

While McNally was increasing his record to 17-7, Vida Blue, the winningest pitcher in the major leagues this season with 22 victories, suffered his seventh loss as Minnesota Twins edged the Oakland Athletics left-hander 2-1 in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader. The Twins also won the opener 8-2.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City Royals also swept a twi-night twinbill, beating Chicago White Sox 3-1 and 8-6; Boston Red Sox trounced Cleveland Indians 9-2; Detroit Tigers defeated New York Yankees 3-1, and California Angels downed Milwaukee Brewers 6-2.

McNally, the winningest pitcher in Baltimore history with 131 victories, including 83 over the past four seasons—one behind major-league leader Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago Cubs—moved closer toward his fourth consecutive 20-game season with his victory over the Senators.

McNally left for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning when the Orioles scored all their runs.

Meanwhile, the Twins, who conducted a special Blue night in honor of the Oakland pitcher in an attempt to increase business at the gate, then went out and gave Blue the business.

They beat him with two home runs—rookie Steve Brye's first major league blast in the second inning and George Mitterwald's tie-breaking shot with two on in the sixth.

In the opener, Harmon Killebrew, making a rare pinch-hitting appearance for the Twins, smashed a grand slam homer in the sixth inning, breaking a 4-4 deadlock. Killebrew's blast was his 19th of the season and the 500th of his career.

Kansas City's Dick Drago also won his 16th game, pitching a six-hitter against Milwaukee in their opening game. Bob Oliver singled in one Royals' run, and doubled and scored another.

In the nightcap, Sandy Valdespino drove in four Kansas City runs with two singles, including a five-run fifth that broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning.

George Scott drove in three Boston runs with his 31st and 32nd homers—his first since Aug. 15—and Carl Yastrzemski broke out of a long batting slump with a homer—his first since Aug. 3—a single and three RBI in the Rex ans' victory over Cleveland.

Detroit's Norm Cash took over the American League home run lead, belting his 29th his second complete game of the season as the Tigers defeated the Yankees.

Sports on All Fronts

MONTREAL (CP) — Fans in 25 cities across North America will see 69 games of pre-season action as the National Hockey League prepares for its 55th season, beginning Oct. 8, the league announced Friday.

Although the exhibition tour total is two games fewer than last year's schedule, there is an increase of three games involving NHL teams only—to 53 from 50.

Buffalo Sabres, Detroit Red Wings, New York Rangers and St. Louis Blues will open training camps earliest, all on Sept. 10. NHL bylaws rule that a team can not open camp prior to one month before the start of the regular schedule.

Chicago Black Hawks and Pittsburgh Penguins, opening Sept. 13, will be the latest to start training.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Canadian Gary Cowan says he's fighting himself and a bunch of college kids who don't know what it means to be afraid of missing the fairway-or a putt.

The 31-year-old Cowan led the college kids by a stroke today as the field of 64 began the final round of the 71st annual U.S. amateur golf championship.

Cowan, an insurance broker from Kitchener, Ont., who won the U.S. Amateur in 1966 shot a two-under par 65 Friday for a three-round total of 210. He leads Martin West III by one, and Eddie Pearce and Jim McLean by two.

Veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., the only other Canadian in the field, shot a 73 Friday for a 221 total, 11 strokes off the pace.

OAKLAND (AP) — Warren Wells, wide receiver of Oakland Raiders of the National Football League, was committed for 90 days of observation Friday by a judge who told the football player: "You have run out of chances."

Judge Leonard Dieden of Alameda County Superior Court ordered Wells to serve a 90-day sentence for "diagnostic study" at the state medical facility.

Wells's probation on a 1969 conviction for attempted rape was revoked pending the psychiatric studies.

The hearing on Wells's probation was scheduled as the result of an off-season stabbing incident in Beaumont, Tex.

One of the witnesses Friday was a scantily-dressed young woman who testified she pulled a switchblade knife from her purse and stabbed Wells this spring because she was afraid of him.

MONTREAL (CP) — A young jockey from Peterborough, Ont., and Blue Bonnets' only girl jockey are in hospital today following a spectacular two-horse pileup during the seventh race at the Montreal track Friday night.

Marty Gibson, 22, leading jockey in the summer thoroughbred meet at the oval, suffered a broken jaw, broken left wrist and internal injuries in the accident while Mrs. Joan O'Shea suffered a broken right leg.

Gibson remained unconscious in St. Mary's Hospital early today and may be transferred to the Montreal Neurological Institute.

Mrs. O'Shea was riding Rapid Charger, trained by Bert Hall, back to the finish when Gibson's mount, Rapid Charger, tripped another horse while trying to move out of the pack to an outside position. Mrs. O'Shea was right behind Rapid Charger on Amber Page and tried unsuccessfully to move her mount around the prostrate jockey and also spilled.

WITHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "I imagine there are guys who play like that all the time," Joel Goldstrand said. "I just wish I was one of them."

Goldstrand, a non-winner in his six years on the pro tour who hasn't finished higher than 19th this season, had just fired a remarkable, eight-under-par 63 for the first-round lead in the $110,000 Greater Hartford Open golf tournament Friday.

Four players, headed by former PGA champ Dave Stockton, were tied at 65, two strokes back, with nine others at 66, five under par.

Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver topped Canada's three-man contingent with nines of 34-35 for 69. Another stroke back was Ben Kern of Toronto while Ken Fulton of Montreal finished with 75.

More than half the field was at par or better going into today's second round of this Friday-through-Monday event, with defending champion Bob Murphy, 71, and Lee Trevino, 70, well back in the field.

Western Conservatives Work Hard for Image of United Party

SASKATOON (CP) — If western Conservatives are unhappy about Robert Stanfield's national leadership, they are hiding their feelings well.

Organizers and delegates to the western policy conference here are doing their best to put the image of a party united and ready to work together in the tough federal general election campaign.

The atmosphere is almost wholly different from that surrounding last year's Saskatoon meeting of western Conservative MPs. Although that meeting was held behind closed doors, reports filtered out that several MPs had blasted Mr. Stanfield, some even suggesting that western Conservative MPs sit as independents in the Commons.

Not this year. Mr. Stanfield and top party officials are highly visible at the discussions and almost all meetings are open to the press.

Mr. Stanfield won a standing ovation from a dinner audience of about 125 persons Friday night after a speech in which he accused the federal Liberal government of inconsistency, incompetence and lack of co-ordination of policies.

He was confident and bold enough to joke about last year's meeting:

"I'm quite grateful at being invited to this Progressive Conservative conference in Saskatoon because it's not every year I get invited."

Mr. Stanfield took the opportunity of an apparently innocent remark by conference chairman Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) to describe how he became national leader.

Mr. Horner, in introducing the head table, had said he didn't know how the people at it got there.

"How do you think you get to the head of a party?" Mr. Stanfield asked. "You see an empty seat high up and you go and sit down."

At a news conference earlier in the day, Mr. Horner, who was chairman of last year's meeting, declined to point to any specific points in policy papers released by national headquarters with which he disagreed.

The Saskatoon conference, organized by Mr. Horner and functioned independently of national headquarters, was called to help form western viewpoints on the policy papers before they were considered at an October national convention.

It is understood that Mr. Horner has objected in private conversations to a policy paper recommendation for a national marketing board to expand markets for Canadian agricultural products and to conduct research.

At the same news conference, Mr. Stanfield said it is normal for a vigorous party to have vigorous differences of opinion.

The applause ending at sessions discontent may be partly due to increased emphasis by the party on regional concerns.

Mr. Stanfield told conference delegates Friday night that discussion of policy papers by groups across the country "is our method of inserting every possible consideration of specific regional interests into the flow of policy development."

The question of party unity, however, occupied the thoughts of at least some persons attending the conference.

One former MP remarked privately that Peter Lougheed, head of Alberta's new Conservative government, should have run for the federal leadership in 1967—the year that Mr. Stanfield edged John Diefenbaker out of the position.

Mr. Diefenbaker was on a trip to Europe when the current conference began. He attended last year's meeting of MPs.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Sleeping Person Gets Heart Pains

"Oh, for a good night's sleep! Or even the ability to take a long nap during the day. I'm sure I'd feel better with sleep."

For most people this is true. Shakespeare and many others have skillfully expressed the advantages of sleep. Nevertheless, for some people it is not always a healer. Consider this note:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I used to be an exceptionally lucky fellow: I could drop right off to sleep and not know a thing until I got up about eight hours later. But since I had a heart attack six months ago, I've been having attacks of chest pain which wake me. Mostly, it seems, when I have been dreaming. The doctor says these are anginal attacks. Is it possible that a patient can get anginal attacks while he's quietly resting in bed? — Mr. G.

• • •

COMMENT: Yes, it is possible. During the past few years, continuing study has revealed that such pains can come on during the REM stage of sleep (the Rapid Eye Movement or dream stage of sleep). Pulse rate may increase and changes may be observed in the electrocardiogram during such episodes.

Some patients experience such disturbances during a long nap, too, during the REM period of sleep. This is shown by connected instruments in the sleep laboratory.

I suppose, Mr. G., you are more interested in what to do than in any further scientific explanation of the why's and wherefores. Special sleep medicines will cut down on the percentage of REM sleep. In doing so, they will eliminate or lessen the attacks of chest pain at night and during long naps.

They may also help ulcer patients who have been found to secrete anywhere from five to 20 times as much gastric acid during REM sleep as normal persons.

Supressing their REM sleep will often prevent the nightly attacks of stomach pain which send many ulcer patients to the refrigerator for a glass of milk to alleviate distress so they can return to sleep.

If you suffer from ulcer or anginal pains, I suggest you take it up with your doctor. If he has overlooked recent experiments which indicate the drugs most likely to affect REM sleep, he might look up an article on the subject in the September 23, 1970 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is there any truth in the saying, "An apple a day will keep the doctor away"? In these days when doctors and hospitals are so expensive it might be a cheap premium for health insurance to fill the refrigerator with apples. — Mrs. V.

COMMENT: Once I wrote this tongue - in - cheek advisement: "An apple a day will keep the doctor away — if your diet is good!" But seriously, the apple is a fruit that can contribute to good health indirectly.

Not only is it tasty, it contains a high amount of potassium. Also iron, sodium, phosphorus, vitamins A, B-complex and C. In some people it acts as a mild laxative. In others, it helps control diarrhea. It also helps add bulk to the diet and thus overcomes some cases of chronic constipation.

Whether you take it as apple sauce, apple juice, apple cider — or, I suppose, as good old-fashioned apple pie — I recommend the apple as an edible, satisfying fruit.

However, I make no specific guarantee that it will keep the doctor away. If that were true, premium cost for apples would become prohibitive — and it might be cheaper to send the doctor instead of keeping him away!

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 5

Your birthday today: This will be remembered as a "pay off" year in which your own and others' chickens all come home to roost, in dramatic episodes. These events won't always be pleasant but will usually have constructive final results. Today's natives are imaginative and romantic, with talents for music, poetry, rhythmic skills.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Sunday gives you a chance to get together with neighbors and iron out differences, perhaps put together a community project. Do your share in a group expression of faith.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): It seems you must begin a long series of actions hindered by resistance, delays, for which you may expect little or no reward.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Discretion is the sensitive spot. Your tendency is to talk, to divulge all be secret, including some that really aren't. Try concentrating on listening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your reactions determine whether a small question builds into major issue. None of the trifling quirks of circumstance merits sustained attention.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Social contacts carry added meaning this Sunday. Even a long-established relationship encounters a vivid streak of discovery and surprise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Give yourself a special break today, but no excess creature comforts or needless excitement. Later hours are especially open for meditation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Patience, rather than hesitation — know what you want and that you must wait to achieve it. Take your regular part in community weekend customs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Fretting and objection are not the tack to take. Get down to essentials and do what you should to settle matters in your own domain. Then you can face the world with a broad smile.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Going along with the group seems more to your advantage this Sunday. Romance promises to break the surface, so don't be surprised if emotional interests attract your attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Short - range plans and schemes tend to fall through. Unexpected people and circumstances are a hindrance. Keep in mind longer-range objectives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Developments exceed, in some ways, even your most modern theories. Moving with the spirit of the times gives you something extra to do.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Reorganize personal affairs, make changes in home situations. Domestic concerns benefit from general good will, exceptional co - operation.

STEPS TOWARD TOP MANAGEMENT

"Where in the world would you get a name like Certified General for an accounting association?" people sometimes ask, "and how can it be used as a step toward top management?"

We get certified from the fact that when a students graduates with a C.G.A. designation he is certified to be professionally competent and bound to a uniform standard of conduct.

We get general from the fact that our course gives a general accountancy education broad enough to prepare people for top management positions. Today's president, general manager or vice-president finance requires a broad general background, with strong financial knowledge. For over 60 years C.G.A. has meant financial management.

If you would like to know more about our career plan, write to the Certified General Accountants Association, 25 Adelaide Street East, Toronto 210, Ontario, or call (416) 366-6501.

Police Leader Flays Curbs

CALGARY (CP) — Police are being restricted, and "it's time Canadian citizens took more interest in the changing laws," says Mole MacBrayne, new president of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

The police department just can't be shackled in this time of Canadian history", the 58-year-old chief of the West Vancouver police said in an interview Friday. "But, too many of our laws appear to be slanted in the direction of restricting police."

Proposed federal wire-tapping legislation, which received first reading last June, is "restrictive in too many ways," said Chief MacBrayne, a law enforcement officer for 39 years and head of the West Vancouver department since 1966.

"Our citizens have got to become aware of these restrictions and take action to see that the police get full support."

Part of the wiretapping act, the chief said, is not flexible enough, "especially the manner in which you have to obtain authority to use the equipment."

Under terms of the Protection of Privacy Act, introduced by Justice Minister John Turner, wiretapping will be made an offence punishable by five years in prison.

There are two exceptions. Wiretappings may be used to prevent espionage, sabotage, or any other subversive activity, and by police in criminal investigation following approval by a superior court judge.

At their annual conference that ended here Friday, the chiefs approved a resolution saying that provincial court judges or magistrates should be authorized to approve use of such equipment.

Chief MacBrayne said most association members would like to see the ban on the death penalty for non-capital murder eliminated.

"We have always maintained the death penalty is a deterrent . . . We would like to see it extended to cover any citizen as it was in the past."

The current trial period on the abolition ends in December, 1972. At present, the death penalty applies only in cases of capital murder, the killing of a policeman or prison guard while on duty.

The West Vancouver chief says police have to change their methods in handling people.

"Why should we keep people who are caught in the act of shoplifting and other minor offences in detention when we can be pretty-well assured that they will show up when called upon?

"We want the right to continue fingerprinting and photographing persons for proper identification before they are released on the street."

Injunction In Egg Case Refused

MONTREAL (CP) — An Ontario wholesaler's motion for an injunction to halt the operations of Fedco, Quebec's egg marketing board, was rejected Friday by Mr. Justice Amedee Monet of Quebec Superior Court.

Rody Krail and Sons Ltd. of Petrolia, Ont., who had 30,000 dozen eggs seized by Fedco last June 22, challenged the constitutionality of the statute which permitted the Quebec Agricultural Marketing Board to set up Fedco's regulations.

Mr. Justice Monet said in his judgment that "at this stage of the matter" it could not be presumed "that the national assembly, in passing the law, has exceeded its powers."

Earlier in the case, Graham Nesbitt, counsel for the Ontario firm, cited a Supreme Court of Canada ruling in the case of Manitoba egg and poultry legislation.

Mr. Justice Monet said he failed to find "an identity or even a similarity between the Manitoba law or that of Quebec."

$80 Million Federal Help For Industry Under Fire

Plan Fails To Win Cheers

TORONTO (CP) — Allan Grossman, Ontario trade and development minister, is not impressed with the federal government's proposal to aid industries hurt by United States economic restrictions.

He said Finance Minister Benson had held a meeting earlier last week with provincial trade ministers to discuss means to meet the situation. Since the U.S. had already put its 10-per-cent supplementary duty on exports into effect, he said, there was little point in calling that meeting.

However, he added: "I would say anything that is done to assist in relieving the situation is, of course, welcome."

The government said Saturday it will introduce a bill in the Commons this week providing $80 million in special grants to industries hurt by the U.S. restrictions.

Premier William Davis was not available for comment on the new program.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said "it is excellent that the federal government is taking this initiative.

"But we regret that the Ontario government has taken no such steps."

Mr. Nixon said Ontario is going to suffer more than any other province by the U.S. restrictions and the two governments should work together for a Canadian exemption from the restrictions.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said such a federal move is necessary and added that it should be applied on a selective basis and that the grants to recipients be made public.

He also said the federal government should apply a 10-per-cent tax on its natural resources leaving the country, which would be a "clear message to the U.S. that we have our own economic insurance."

Fred Sarsis, general manager of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association, said the federal measure "is almost totally inadequate."

"What the government is saying to industry is go ahead and get hurt and if you can prove it's a result of this import tax we may compensate you.

"This is ducking the issue and will be almost completely ineffective. There are 9,800 jobs in jeopardy in the electrical manufacturing industry alone—in all of Canada I estimate that more than 100,000 jobs are in jeopardy."

The association represents 169 Canadian businesses employing 130,000 workers.

Worst in U.S. History

Air Crash Recorded

JUNEAU, Alaska (CP) — Investigators have found the two flight recorders carried by an Alaska Airlines Boeing 727 that crashed Saturday into a mountain killing all 111 persons aboard including a Calgary couple.

Ed Slattery of the National Transportation Safety Board said Monday night that the voice recorder had been recovered from the cockpit of the wrecked plane but it was badly bent and broken and it was questionable whether any information could be obtained from it.

It was being sent to Seattle for analysis.

The recorder should yield the final conversation between the crew members of the jet, which crashed just before scheduled landing at Juneau on a flight from Fairbanks to Seattle. The crash was the worst single-plane disaster in U.S. history.

The flight recorder, located in the tail section, records every movement of the plane. It will be forwarded to a laboratory in Washington, D.C.

Plane Hits Bridge On German Road

HAMBURG (Reuter) — The death toll from the crash of a chartered West German airliner carrying 121 persons remained uncertain today, with varying sources giving the toll as between 18 and 25.

The plane was bound for Malaga, Spain, with 115 West German vacationers and a crew of six when it sent a distress message one minute after takeoff saying one of two engines on the British-built BAC-111 had stopped. The plane crashed into a bridge while trying to land on the highway at Hasloh, six miles north of Hamburg airport.

Hundred Uruguay Guerrillas Tunnel Their Way Out of Jail

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (Reuter) — More than 100 left-wing Tupamaros guerrillas who tunnelled their way out of jail appear to have vanished into thin air.

Police announced late Monday night they had arrested 27 suspected Tupamaros but gave no indication that any of them were members of the group that crawled to freedom through a tunnel from Punta Carretas prison Monday.

Troops and police searching for the escaped men said they had disappeared without trace.

Uruguay's conservative president, Jorge Pacheco Areco, called his defence and interior ministers and army, navy and air force chiefs to an emergency meeting during the night to discuss the escape which observers described as a hammer blow to the authorities.

Only last Saturday, officials pledged tough new action against the Tupamaros, who have brought Uruguay to the brink of chaos in the last two years with political assassinations, bank robberies and kidnappings including that of British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson Jan. 8.

Prison officials said 105 Tupamaros and five other prisoners escaped through the 45-yard tunnel, dug from a cell under a prison wash-house, and a garden into a room of a house facing the jail.

One of the Tupamaros who got away was the 36-year-old founder of the guerrilla movement, former law student Raul Sendic.

It was the second mass escape by Tupamaros in five weeks. Thirty-eight women members of the movement escaped July 30 from another jail in Montevideo, also through a tunnel, and only one has been recaptured.

Following Monday's escape, police and troops combed a 15-block area of Montevideo around the jail, but drew a blank.

"They've vanished into thin air," a policeman said.

The escapees apparently emerged through the tunnel in groups of 10 or 15 after colleagues had taken over the house, holding the residents at gunpoint for about nine hours.

They then fled in cars and trucks which had been parked nearby.

Officials had no explanation of how the prisoners were able to make their way from their separate cells to the one from which the tunnel was dug—lending credence to speculation that Tupamaros supporters include prison officials.

The authorities announced there would be a detailed inquiry into the circumstances of the escape.

In an official statement after the meeting of ministerial and military chiefs, the government appealed for public support in measures it was taking to "prevent the spread of violence and chaos."

It warned of the existence of "a conspiracy to destroy the security of the state", and said vigorous measures would be taken to preserve order and security.

In Tucuman, Argentina, left-wing guerrillas Monday night killed five guards while attacking a jail and freeing at least eight prisoners.

Among the prisoners freed were five members of the Trotskyist People's Liberation Army, two urbanists and a member of a Peronist group, a journalist in Tucuman reported.

The source said four men drove up in the prison gates in a truck normally used to deliver gas, then opened fire with submachine-guns when they were let into the prison.

Three guards were wounded in the attack.

Russia Says China Preparing for War

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said today the Chinese army is militarizing all aspects of life in China in preparation for war with the Soviet Union.

The newspaper of the Soviet defence ministry, Red Star, said "Mao Tse-tung and his entourage are establishing in China their own system of power, with the army ruling the roost."

The article gave figures on the military influence in Chinese life.

It said that of the 25 members and candidate members of the ruling politburo, 15 are military officers, and of the 270-member central committee of the Chinese Communist party, 145 are military men.

Twenty-four of the 30 provincial revolutionary committees are headed by military men and more than one-third of the 200 deputy chairmen of the revolutionary committees army men.

'The way I see it Yuri, the Chinese are invincible and we're impregnable.'

Pledge Of Aid Given Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has come up with an $80 million grant package for Canadian industries that are hurt by the United States 10-per-cent surtax on imports.

A special act creating the aid fund is to be introduced in the Commons today, the first sitting day after a two-month summer recess.

Prime Minister Trudeau said earlier the government was preparing a "contingency plan" in case Canada could not win exemption from the surtax on imports announced by President Nixon last month.

The Commons session ended until the last possible moment before revealing anything about its plans. A special issue of the Commons order paper was released Saturday, just in time to meet the prior notice required for introduction of bills in the Commons.

The capsule description of the act on the order paper provides only scant information.

It said the $80 million would be authorized for the 1971-72 fiscal year, which ends next March 31, to help overcome the "disruptive effect" on Canadian industry of any foreign import surtaxes.

A body called the employment support board would be created to determine which industries were disrupted and how much aid they could obtain. A sum of $200,000 is set aside for running the board.

There is no indication in the brief notice of just how much harm or disruption an industry could have to empower it to receive being able to tap the fund.

The order paper describes the measure as "an act to support employment in Canada by mitigating the disruptive effect on Canadian industry of the imposition of foreign import surtaxes or other actions of a like effect."

Devalued Dollar Not Asked

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario does not favor devaluation of the Canadian dollar to counter effects of the United States 10-per-cent import duty, Trade and Development Minister Allan Grossman said Monday.

Such drastic measures should be considered until all diplomatic avenues have been exhausted in trying to overcome the U.S. move, he said in an interview.

Greene to Discuss with Japan Plan for Enriching Uranium

TOKYO (Reuter) — Canada said Japan shortly will begin discussions on an international project to build a uranium enrichment plant. Japanese government sources said Monday Canada, including uranium.

They said a proposal to construct a plant to enrich uranium in Canada, using locally-supplied uranium resources and

Canada and Australia already have proposed to Japan the formation of a multi-national project for construction of a uranium enrichment plant in their countries.

Japan's nuclear power generation is expected to reach 8.8 million kilowatts by 1975 and 69 million kilowatts by 1985.

The United States has re-uranium needs, is considering all the proposals and studying moves overseas concerning enriched uranium, with the aim of obtaining a stable supply of uranium fuel for its power industry.

Twenty Two Charged

Motorcycle Gang Arrested

HAVELOCK (Staff) — Twenty-two members, 18 of them male, of the local Satan's Choice motorcyclist group and of the Toronto-based Paradise Riders contingent were arrested by the Ontario Provincial Police in a raid conducted on a house in nearby Ormemee early Monday morning. All were charged under sections of the liquor control act and the criminal code.

The raid was held prior to scheduled motorcycle races slated to be staged yesterday afternoon in Peterborough because there were fears of trouble resulting from clashes between the two gangs and an authorized motorcycle club in Peterborough.

Fifty members of the OPP district eight headquarters participated in the raid.

One male and six females were released on bail, while the remainder are still in Victoria County Jail. All arrested will appear in court Wednesday.

Earlier in the weekend, members of the same Paradise Group were involved in an incident at the Havelock Hotel's beverage lounge late Saturday night.

One motorcyclist was hit on the back of the head with a bottle.

An extensive brawl then broke out and reports indicate considerable damage to the interior of the beverage room.

After the local chief of police and several members of the nearby Campbellford OPP detachment arrived and escorted the motorcyclists to Peterborough, some 20 to 25 local residents walked at the hotel with baseball bats and other assorted weapons to await the gang's return.

However, after waiting five hours, the group was dispersed.

The motorcyclist that was hurt as a result of the bottle ing from the Sun Valley Motel in Belleville by three guests staying there. The three escaped, but Belleville police later found their getaway vehicle burning on Slash road near Deseronto.

According to police reports, the three called the night attendant at 2:30 a.m. requesting service on a plugged toilet. When the clerk entered the room, he was confronted by three men wearing hoods over their heads.

The clerk was bound with electrical wire and a pillow was placed over his head.

While one guarded the clerk, the others pilfered the cash registers and safe, making off with an unconfirmed sum, reported by police to amount to several thousand dollars.

Two hours later, the robbery was reported to the Belleville OPP and city police after the clerk managed to free himself from his bonds and escape out the window of the room.

Someone later city police investigated a burning car on Slash Road and noted that the car had been stolen several hours before in Trenton. It was the vehicle used by the trio in their escape.

Kate Walters, Way Boys Dominate Horse Show

Blaine and Laverne seem to have a way with horses.

On Sunday afternoon, the two brothers, Blaine and Laverne Way, of Milford, captured six first-place finishes between them, four of them to Blaine, at the opening show staged by the Quinte Western Horse Association held on a site two miles east of Belleville on Highway 2.

Miss Kate Walters, of Belleville, copped the most individual awards, however, with five as she completely dominated the equestrian section of the show. She took first place in the Open Hunter, Child's Hunter, Open Hunter, Handy Working Hunter and Jumping Table A classes with her horse named Just Kim.

Blaine Way took top honors in the pony pick-up, small and medium charrot and pony-to-ride races while Laverne Way was first in the pick-up and large charrot events.

Other winners were Doreen McMillan, of Stirling, riding Little Britches, in the barrel race; Jack Harry, of Belleville, riding Tony a Go Go in the flag race; Chris Garrison, of Napanee, riding Cat Baloo in the poles bending category; Jerry Markland, of Milford, riding Champ in the Musical Chairs event; John Burns, of Belleville, riding Amber in the Boot race; and Paul Garrison, of Napanee, riding Ringo in the Keyhole race.

Some 100 spectators witnessed the day's events and organizers stressed that future shows will be held next summer on the same site which is scheduled to become a permanent one.

REAL ESTATE

THE DIFFERENCE IN HOME PRICES MAY BE IN THE LOT

ED McCOOEY
A. E. McKinney
& SON LTD.

An obvious point since a large part of the value of any home is in the land it is built on. Yet home owners often ignore it while comparing the price of their homes with similar ones in other neighborhoods.

Different areas — often adjacent to one another — may have sharply different scales of land values for a number of reasons.

The public services available may vary; some neighborhoods are more desirable due to closeness to shopping or a view etc.; the quality of the homes may be superior or inferior.

Any or all of these factors can raise or lower the price of bustling lot in a neighborhood. Since the land makes up 30 to 35 percent of the value of completed houses, the reason for price difference is otherwise similar issues is obvious.

If an experienced Realtor is appraising your home, one of his first considerations will be the value of your lot in relation to other lots in your neighborhood.

His advice, backed by a continuing study of the changing real estate market, could prove invaluable to you.

PE-Lennox

PC Nomination Contest At Sept. 14 Meeting

A contest for the Prince Edward - Lennox Conservative nomination scheduled for Sept. 14 at Nanonne Collegiate Institute has been assured with the announcement that

James A. Taylor, Q.C. of Northport will be a candidate.

Earlier Cecil Kidd, warden of Lennox and Addington, said he would be a candidate for the riding post being left vacant by the retirement of Norris Whitney, long time member of the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Taylor, a 43-yearpold lawyer who farms 300 acres in South Marysburg farm for the past eight years, said "if an election is called you will confirm Premier William Davis' Government in Ontario, and I would like to be the Prince Edward-Lennox man in the Legislature."

With more than 30 years active involvement in the Conservative party and in government work both at the provincial and municipal levels, Mr. Taylor feels he has the balanced background to represent urban and rural residents.

Born at Trenton, he worked at the mining industry to earn money for his university and law school training.

His experience includes acting as solicitor to a number of municipalities in the metropolitan area and as legal counsel to the Ontario Government select committees on municipal affairs and conservation.

This, he feels, has given him a broad knowledge of province - wide problems "particularly those of the smaller urban communities and rural regions," he says.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have two daughters attending Prince Edward Collegiate at Picton and two sons attending Sidneyburg Central Public School.

Museum Renovation Tender Comes In Double Estimated Cost

Planned interior renovations and repairs at Glanmore House, the former Phillips Faulkner residence on West Bridge Street purchased by the city and county for a museum, will cost considerably more than was anticipated.

Museum management committee chairman city Alderman Robin Jeffrey said today that tenders for the work were double what we expected" and that some of the items would have to be eliminated if the work was to go ahead.

"We were reaching for the ultimate but this we cannot have now," said Mrs. Jeffrey.

Mrs. Jeffrey said she had contacted R. T. Flanigan, assistant director of the National and Historic Parks branch of the Department of Indian Affairs who has agreed to come to the city shortly to confer with the local museum management committee on what items can be cut out of the tender.

Included in the tender call were plumbing and heating with humidity control, electric wiring, painting, carpentry work and a new concrete floor for the basement.

Tenders for the work were considered by the museum management committee at a meeting on Friday.

Purchase price of Glanmore House was $45,000 for which a grant of 50 per cent was received from the Federal government.

Since the old West Bridge Street residence was purchased $32,000 has been spent on exterior repairs. Total government grant so far approved is $32,000.

Ald. Jeffrey said today she was hopeful that the federal government would provide additional assistance by way of grant toward the completion of interior renovations.

"The city and county share of the purchase price of Glanmore House and for its renovations was to be taken from the Cookery estate which was willed to the city by a former Belleville resident living in England.

Mayor J. Russell Scott as member of the museum management committee said the $45,000 remaining in the estate would be insufficient to complete the interior renovations if all planned work was completed.

If all the work was completed Mayor Scott said it would mean that the city and the county might have to pick up the balance...

But Ald. Jeffrey is confident that some of the items can be cut from the tender and thus allow the work to go ahead.

Prior to the purchase of the Faulkner house, the cost of renovations was estimated at $18,000.

While at the station, the boys said they wanted to take a walk and disappeared. Suspicious officers checked the ownership of the automobile and found that it was stolen.

The boys are reportedly from New York State and are aged 13 and 16.

Claimant Assistance To Be Given by UIC

The new program does not, like the existing Manpower department, direct the unemployed to specific employers.

Instead, it teaches them the techniques of conducting their own job search.

The new scheme is administered by the Unemployment Insurance Commission and calls for 200 being with the new Unemployment Insurance Act, effective June 27. The act instituted a claimant assistance program, directed toward helping unemployment insurance claimants look for work.

Sources reported that the fire started in one of the rented rooms and quickly spread to the other units. Only quick action by the local fire department prevented complete demolition of the motel's premises.

No estimate of costs of repairs was made by either the motel or the fire department.

Dianne Gunning's Success

Congratulations to Dianne Gumming. The young Tweed woman is making a big name for herself in the competitive spheres of the dairy industry.

The dairy princess titles have long been a testing feature, focusing attention on the industry itself, on its role as a vital food supplier, and on the smart young people play in the industry. The 19-year-old Miss Gumming has filled this role with distinction first as Hastings County Dairy Princess, then Ontario Dairy Princess—and now, almost as if by divine right, despite competition from across the country, she holds the title of Canadian Dairy Princess.

For Miss Gumming this will surely mean another busy spell of personal appearances and promotional work, here and abroad, similar to her work with the Ontario Milk Marketing Board. And all this in addition to her studies at the University of Guelph.

The people of Tweed are justly proud of Diane Gumming. She is known in dairy industry circles and beyond and will now become known to an ever wider audience, a circumstance which surely will be greeted with satisfaction in the Quinte area generally.

Maintaining the Line

There are some who agree with what she is doing and because she is not afraid of political dirty work she is taking on the task herself. Indian activist Kahn-tineta Horn that is, and what she is doing is attempting to have Ottawa exercise its legal rights and evict non-Indians from the Mohawk reserve at Caughnawaga in Quebec.

And just to emphasize what she believes must be done Miss Horn is beginning with her own sister, married to a non-Indian. And there is nothing personal about it. "He's a nice guy," she told The Globe and Mail's Rudy Platiel recently. "I was really very glad when my sister married him. But when she did, she lost her Indian status and she should move off."

According to Miss Horn there are some 1,500 non-Indians on the reserve; she says they have been attracted by cheap rents and are threatening the Indian way of life there.

It is interesting to observe Miss Horn's progress, evolving from the moderate civil rights personality she was in her fashion model days back in 1964, writing in The Montreal Gazette for instance and seeking the support of the public in general to upgrade Indian life, especially for the academic and recreational progress of young Indians, to the radical and activist she is today. Or as reporter Platiel speaks of her, "... the 29-year-old Mohawk activist who describes herself as a racist, advocates apartheid, opposes milk for Indian children because she says Indians have not the enzymes to assimilate it as do persons of European ancestry) and seems to provoke in other Indians either admiration or enmity."

If there are those who disagree with her course of action, as indicated in The Globe article, not so the band council who recently petitioned the media, accusing them of "using revolutionary odd-balls and forever expecting Indians to dissociate some of their non-representative point of view which strains relations between Indians and with non-Indian counterparts." Chief Ronald Kirby thinks eviction could cause hardship for Indians dependent on the rents — a magnanimous attitude indeed.

So be it. Miss Horn is within her legal rights, but whether the Justice department acts is another thing. Meanwhile she sparks the kind of abrasive reaction from the band authority typified above.

The opposing views aside, it is Miss Horn's support for a pure-blooded Indian existence and certain traditions, that is significant. It is apartheid as in South Africa, although not with the rigorous laws which that country has passed to maintain this "separate development" as it is in some of which—contrary to what may be believed—has the sanction of at least some of the black African leaders in South Africa. With Miss Horn though it seems to be simply a desire to maintain the race and who can argue with that?

Possession Charge

It was bad enough to read about those football players being charged with possession of marijuana, but all the more disturbing to learn that the young lady whose beauty and character won her the right to represent the team's district side, so to speak, has also been charged with possession of what are said to be hashish. For the people concerned, for the team in question, for Canadian football and sport at large, the whole situation

Challenge to Business Community

Bureaucracy Taking Over Warns Former Hellyer Aide

— By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Big Brother Bureaucrat is going to get you, if you do not watch out.

He has already got you for 35 cents of your every dollar, but unless you stop him, he's going to get you for half of it.

Half for Big Brother, the state — unless we wake more later and BB is difficult to satisfy — for you.

This you have on the unimpeachable authority of former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, Dr. John Deutsch and Arthur Smith, both ex-inhabitants of Bureaucracy's High Places, and William M. Lee, presidential wheeler-dealer of an executive consulting firm that opens Government doors and ears to businessmen and industrialists.

William Lee, former executive assistant extraordinaire to ex-Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, and condemned by Mr. Lee, Progressive-Conservative Party of Navy-Army-Air unification, is more than merely bigger it all on the bench of lawyers and academics in the Cabinet and Civil Service who have never had to worry about a balance sheet or meet a payroll."

(If "The Same Old Ottawa Bunch" can in the end, the remedy is Simple Simon easy; just jump James.)

Well, consider Lee, it is true that federal politics is a "lawyers' league" with emphasis more and more in the action, and business, industry and investment nowhere in either Government or Opposition ranks.

In the Commons 71 lawyers; in the Cabinet, 14, a shade short of half the membership.

"At last count," calculates Lee, "there were only eight federal MPs in the House who possibly could be rated as from the business community . . . and Government has become the biggest game in the land.

"People who do not want to play can sit on the sidelines, root for their favorites or jeer their opponents, but in the end they have no one but themselves to blame if the game does not come out the way they would have liked."

Too many businessmen, reminds Lee, think they are doing their thing politically by simply shindying over cheques to party "bagmen, if you like."

Bigger and costlier bureaucracies are inevitable and Big Brother's domination inescapable, he counsels, unless the business and industrial community "get actively involved."

No good crying in the confines of the corporate boardrooms and the clubs.

Instead now, at once, immediately, get into the political arena by:

1. Nominals qualified candidates of the first whisper of the Government setting up a task force, commission, study group or think-tank.

2. Corporates "Big - Domes" must stop pleading they can not spare even a token few of their best executives for Civil Service — loaned, for the time, even for short-term Government duty tours to compete with the lawyers, academicians and more recently, the economists and the Latins.

3. Get down to the political grass roots, for a party riding Association, and not just as "ministers' confessors," and do not leave the field to the "professional politicians" [A the same old professional dedicated, infatuating Liberal, Conservative and even Socialist political hack brain-storming.

4. Stop copping out of the "real power trend," the social leanings of running for public office, and get more private enterprisers on parliamentary backbenches and in Cabinet offices.

Do these things, this former mover and shaker of business and other federal policy moves, at Big Brother's takeover will become an actual fact of Canadian life.

"We cannot let it happen," William Lee has told the business, industrial and investment bankers in Toronto, Montreal and other centres. "the ball is in your court, gentlemen!"

Sherwood Forest Oaks Hit by Water Lack and Pollution

By Arthur Osman in The Times of London

It is doubtful if even Robin Hood and his men, who as legend has it were a resourceful band, could have found an answer to the question that is affecting what remains of Sherwood Forest.

In the oldest part of the forest between 300 and 400 ancient oaks, which are anything between 400 and 1,000 years old, are dying. The cause is probably a combination of old age and the accumulative effect of a shortage of water this century, as Nottingham has increased its demands on the county's huge natural underground reservoir. More recently, however, atmospheric pollution has begun to play its part.

Robin might have tried a few well-directed flights of arrows at those responsible, but it looks as if scientists will have to find the solution in this less robust age if there is one to be found.

As ever, the cost comes into the reckoning and one fears that the ancient oaks, whatever their romantic association with England's folklore, will come low down on a list of priorities.

Ironically, a fine find from three plants manufacturing antipollutant smokeless fuel in north Nottinghamshire seems to be accelerating the decline of the ancient trees. This is one aspect of concern likely to be foreshadowed when a preliminary consultative document on the findings of a 15-month study of the area is published in the autumn.

The study, initiated by the county council planning department, has been examining an area of 50 square miles.

The idea of collecting together all the bodies interested in countryside appearance and use originated six years ago with an experimental study of 150 square miles of Hampshire.

The results disclosed several matters requiring farming, recreation and the Sherwood area seems likely to give a more definitive picture of rural needs as it has a complex pattern of land uses and almost all the demands made on the countryside can be found in it.

Almost certainly one recommendation will be that more areas of the forest should be open for recreation. There have been fears of a proposal that there should be no general access to the whole forest for the public, but it is clear that there will be no such proposal.

The ghost of Robin Hood would approve. The dark and shadies and groves and the smell of roasting venison have long gone in Sherwood. Of the original 200 square miles of dense woodland just over 1,000 acres remain. There are other areas which have been rehabilitated by the Forestry Commission with conifer plantations and infilling with the same trees.

But to those who like to think of Sherwood as a place of myths, mighty oaks, a roguish Errol Flynn in fetching Lincoln green and Olivia de Havilland dimpling prettily on a palfrey, about 200 acres of the genuine original forest remains. Parts of this area, which fortunately in this case are in the hands of the Ministry of Defence, can exist only have changed in 600 years.

The area is close to Edwinstowe, where, according to legend Robin married Maid Marian at St. Mary's Church. About 80 acres are countryside park, including the Major oak, which, with a girth of 31 feet, is said to be the largest in England.

Probably 1,100 years old, and naturally alleged to have been a hiding place for the outlaw band, the tree is about to undergo more geriatric surgery. The county council has recently agreed to spend over £1,000 on the removal of dead wood, treatment of cavities and cabling, in addition, the tree is to get a protective fence.

The Sherwood survey will have a wide significance for the Milk: Another Price Increase

Kingston Whig-Standard

The Ontario National Farmers' Union recently decided to boycott the products of Kraft Foods. The issue was the price Kraft was paying for milk. A scathing letter to The Globe and Mail from David L. MacFarlane of the Department of Economics at McGill University charged that the NFU lacks "the courage or good sense to boycott people actually responsible for making milk prices . . ." and named some Milk Marketing Board members and the Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. William Stewart.

This correspondent then went on to charge that the price paid for milk to farmers in Canada is the highest in the world "except for Upper Volta."

Canadians, who will shortly be affected by the recent rise in the price of milk in Toronto, may be excused for wondering how the dairy industry in this country ever managed to get to such a mess. In 1958 Professor A. M. Pearson, Chairman of the Dairy Science Department of the University of Guelph, stated that the Canadian manufacturers of milk producers (those who produce milk to be used for butter and other dairy products) receive more for their milk than any other comparable producer group in Canada — and still claim that their net is too low.

The dairies which turn out the milk which is consumed by the public apparently would also never-ending increases in the price of their product. But they have a very pat answer: they claim the reason they have the Ontario Milk Marketing Board increases its milk payments to farmers. Those increases were announced last Friday and Gilverwood Dairies Ltd. in Toronto was the first dairy to raise the price — by one cent, to 40 cents a quart.

For years there has been a concerted campaign to make the dairy industry in Canada "self supporting." That program has been costing the Canadian taxpayers as much as $121 million a year (1967) and comes from subsidies by the Canadian Dairy Commission to 146,348 producers of manufacturing cream and milk (again, in 1967) to notorious butter and cheese which has got to the point of that commodity as high that consumers buy so little of it that a huge stock of unsold butter is put away in Government storage each year.

The problem is no nearer a solution today. Instead it is getting worse. The public pays through the nose both at the retail level and by way of subsidies, but nobody on the producing side ever seems happy. It has something to do with efficiency — a word which has not been applicable to the Canadian dairy industry for many a long decade.

Consumer Protection

Ottawa Le Droit: The proposed bill on competition, currently under study in the Commons, will result in a big forward step toward a system of laws conceived to protect the Canadian consumer.

Based on the idea that we must, first of all, evaluate the measures that affect industry and commerce in the light of their final contribution to the good functioning of the economy, and in the light also of the advantages they give to consumers, the new bill is based on principles that should have been applied long ago in our society.

And what is more important consumers considerable protection because it forbids pyramid sales . . . We will have lifted the veil from the fraudulent system of false declarations by which so many are taken greater account of those who are by fraudulent ability.

We are thinking in particular of authors of deceptive advertisements, of those who exaggerate the qualities of their products, of the exaggerations in dealing with the speed of the product's effects.

All these are the bill on competition, when passed, will do more for the Canadian consumer than all other legislation before, which, in the Meeting Wednesday

Ballet Coming Here on Oct. 19

Centennial School auditorium will be the setting for another cultural event in Belleville on Oct. 19 when a 22-member concert troupe of the National Ballet of Canada will perform two new ballets.

A meeting of the Belleville branch of the National Ballet Guild is scheduled for Wednesday Sept. 8 at the Kiwanis Centre at 8.15 p.m. to plan the details of organizing the event.

The ballets on the program will be Fandango with music by Padre Antonio Soler and choreography by Anthony Tudor and Autumn Song, choreographed by Jean Paul Comelin to the music of Claude Debussey.

The National Ballet will also perform the Peasant pas de deux from Giselle, the Black Swan pas de deux from Swan Lake, excerpts from The Sleeping Beauty and a ballet by the National Ballet's artistic director Celia Franca entitled Eh!

Fandango is a lively Spanish dance done in triple time. It was first performed by New York City's Metropolitan Opera Ballet Company in the spring of 1953.

Autumn Song is based on a poem by Paul Verlaine and is danced to six different works by Claude Debussy. It is an abstract work based on love, more communication and understanding," said Jean-Paul Comelin, choreographer of this original work.

The Black Swan, pas de deux is a well known excerpt from the National Ballet's full length production of Swan Lake originally choreographed by Erik Bruhn.

The Peasant pas-de-deux is from the National Ballet's recent full length production of Giselle choreographed last year by Peter Wright of England's Royal Ballet.

Eh! first created for Centennial year is danced to the music of Francis Poulenc and has been performed this past summer at Ontario Place.

The excerpts from the Sleeping Beauty are based on the original choreography by Petipa with music by Tchaikowsky.

The Belleville, performance will be part of the National Ballet's tour of Ontario which will take the company to Sudbury, North Bay, Orillia, Lake, Elliot Lake, Cobia, Brockville, Kingston, Hamilton, London and Windsor.

In May and June next year, to celebrate its 20th anniversary season, the National Ballet will embark on its first European tour. It will perform throughout Britain and Continental Europe and present the final performance of the year in the famed Opera House in Monte Carlo, Monaco.

Moss Animal Rare in Area

It wouldn't have made the Ripley's Believe It or Not, but Jim Gannon's green, slimy blob had a lot of people thinking over the weekend.

Found in the semi-stagnant water between Huff's Island and the mainland, the green, soggy "thing" was proved to the size of a big basketball and one, retrieved by Mr. Gannon, was large enough to fill a wash tub.

"There is so little known about these things that we cannot definitely say what it is, how it got there or how it remains living," said a scientist at the research institute.

"About the only thing we can say for sure is that it is a moss animal, technically called a bryoan, it is not a plant but an animal and is alive," said Dr. H. G. Wylie of the institute.

When Mr. Gannon first called about the specimen he described it as a "weird green blob of gloop, kind of lumpy, cold and clammy and big."

Since the organisms were first found, Mr. Gannon has made several trips to the breeding ground with other members of his family and close friends.

"One little girl who was interested in coming along came equipped with a basketball but that thing" it one of those things come to grab you. I'm going to be prepared."

After being reassured by the research officers at the institute of the harmlessness of the animal, Mr. Gannon proceeded to show the young lady in question that there was no reason for the ball.

The scientists claim, "it is quite rare for these things to grow to the size reported, and even stranger than they would be in this area."

"Moss animals are more commonly found in sea water," said Dr. Wylie, "the danger is connected with the animal and they will go away when the cooler weather sets in. They are ugly to look at but that's as far as it goes."

First Woman C of C President Presented with Scented Gavel

VICTORIA (CP) — When she was installed recently as the first woman president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Helen Belrose-Walling was presented with a gavel decorated with a large scented powder puff.

"The first thing I did was sneeze," said Miss Belrose who, in accepting the executive assignment, also became the first woman president of a Canadian chamber for a metropolitan area.

"Then I suggested that I hoped it would always be my insignia but no way was it going to be the chamber's insignia for this year."

Such a distinction between her role as a woman and her role in the business community seems clear in the mind of this auburn-haired, attractive mother of four.

"When you're in business you do the things that have to be done and you do them in a forthright manner. But when you're home and you're with your husband or your concert or whatever, a little hesitation at the door allows him to open it for you.

"This makes him feel more like a man and you more like a woman."

Raised on a fruit farm in the Okanagan area of British Columbia, Miss Belrose said she "was always interested in what made the business world go round."

After working for a while as a model, she opened a charm school or "self-development school" as she prefers to call it.

Following her marriage to Conrad Walling and arrival in Victoria, she began the National Charm School which she has operated for the last 11 years.

She joined the chamber five years ago because, she said, she had her own business and also because "if you are going to be part of a community then you have to be willing to get in and do some work in it."

Other than keeping up her spacious, modern home and her work with the chamber, Miss Belrose models for the odd charity fashion show, writes a column for a weekly Victoria paper and three months of the year is host for an hour-long interview program on a television station.

How does her husband feel about her involvement in so many out-of-home activities?

"He thinks it's great. He is a firm believer that a woman should live her own life, that she should be herself.

"He feels women are more interesting if they are active in many things."

She said she and her husband, who has an investigation agency, runs an import-export business and is president of the Oak Bay Ratepayers Association, have a lot more to talk about, "because we take an active interest in what is going on outside the four walls of our home."

Miss Belrose said that when her children, who now are 21 to 28, were growing up she planned her business involvement around their needs. But she is not one to be an overly dominant parent.

"I don't think it is healthy for a mother to be around 24 hours a day. Children learn to stand on their feet much better if they don't always have mother to turn to."

The ladies of the female liberation movement get little support from Miss Belrose.

"The idea that women are being downtrodden is just a bunch of disaffected lot as I'm concerned. Being a woman has never held me back from anything I've ever wanted to do yet.

"I think the yelling, the shouting, the placard-carrying and all the rest of this is strictly defeating because it makes women generally look like the very thing they are claiming they are not."

For Miss Belrose, who says she retained her maiden name in business because she was well established in the business world before she was married, the basic function of the Chamber of Commerce is "to work for the betterment of the community as a whole, not just the business community."

Seated at home behind a desk cluttered with clues to her active life—notes with phone numbers, books, memorabilia—Miss Belrose said high on her list of goals to be achieved during her one year in office is a study made of the feasibility of providing a course at the University of Victoria on the problems and possibilities of creating pollution-free cities.

When she isn't speaking, modelling, cooking, writing or teaching, Miss Belrose may be found riding a bicycle around the city or sitting quietly in her garden for an early morning think.

These are her "quiet times."

"When else do you put your head together? You have to change your batteries sometime and I don't believe in nerve pills, tranquilizers and that sort of junk."

CLUB ACTIVITIES

TWEED SENIOR CITIZENS

TWEED — According to the President, Albert McTaggart, the Tweed Senior Citizens, first "really big" project was a decided financial success, when they held a bake sale in Ron Way's showroom on Saturday, Aug. 28. Even food, including pastries, home-made bread, rolls, pies etc. were plentiful. The sale was so well patronized that even the last crumbs were sold in only 30 minutes.

The response was so encouraging the club already has tentative plans for a bazaar and tea in the near future.

The Tweed Club have the largest membership in the entire area with the exception of Belleville Senior Citizens Club. Tweed Club has joined the United Senior Citizens of Ontario and the number of Tweed Club is No. 388.

Tweed Senior Citizens Club now at full strength boasts 121 members, and is expecting new members in the early fall. Their first fall meeting will be held in St. James' Anglican Church Hall on September 8. They meet the second and fourth Wednesday afternoon each month.

Mr. McTaggart states that another bus trip is being planned for the members, and this will undoubtedly be to Oolario Place. The club has little expenditures, up until the present the bill for advertising has been the only outlay.

The members, according to the present, the bill for advertising, eager to help, and the committees do their work and assignments so conscientiously that his problems are few in number.

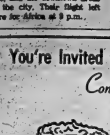
Tour of Africa, Brazil Enjoyed

FRANKFORD — Mrs. Marion Grant has returned to her home after a month long tour of Africa and Brazil. This tour was sponsored by the General Missionary Board of the Free Methodist Church.

The trip began at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York on July 8. They arrived in Brussels, Belgium at 10 a.m. where they visited with missionaries studying language, and the downtown areas of the city. Their flight left here for Africa at 8 p.m.

They arrived in Bukavu, Congo, on Saturday, July 10. From here they traveled overland by bus and by air visiting missionary hospitals, schools, shopping and making stops along the way at points of interest.

On July 15, they arrived in Johannesburg, South Africa, then traveled through Mozambique some 600 miles, and did spent several days touring the country from this point. They encountered very cold weather here, this being their winter season. An all day visit was made to Kruger National Park, the world famous African Game Reserve.



Several days were spent in this area, sight-seeing and visiting many interesting places. They stopped in Durban, South Africa and Greenville mission station, Salisbury, Rhodesia, and spent a day sightseeing at Victoria Falls.

On July 31 they left Johannesburg and flew to Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and spent a couple of days sightseeing in these areas and returning to Kennedy International Airport on August 3.

The next item was the discussion regarding catering at the Quinte Exhibition also the Institute display which was to be set up by Mrs. E. Phillips and Mrs. A. Spencer.

The report of the WI Officers conference in Guelph by Mrs. W. L. Johnston was followed by some interesting historical facts on the Foster family and the Gilmour Company.

The serving of lunch by the hostess and lunch committee brought a busy evening to a close.

Ann Landers

Does Ann Glamorize Sex for the Elderly?

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are a sworn enemy of every person in this country over 55 years of age. Why? Because you keep telling people they can maintain active sex lives into the sixties and seventies and even the eighties.

Well, maybe a few oddballs and bedroom acrobats can, but most normal people are glad to be through with sex when they reach the late 50's. Especially the women.

You also fail to take into account that some people just don't happen to consider carnal knowledge an important part of their lives, even when they are young. They enjoy members of the opposite sex — there is respect, companionship and intellectual stimulation, but no burning desire to get physical.

People like you who promote and glamorize sex for elderly folks do a great deal of harm. As a mother of seven children, 21 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren I feel I have earned my rest and I don't need you to tell me I am over the hill. — DONE MY DUTY.

DEAR DONE: I was not aware that I've been "touting and glamorizing" sex for members of the Social Security set. I have, however, said repeatedly, that it is possible for couples to remain sexually active in their 70's and even 80's and that such activity is neither unhealthy, immoral nor obscene.

A woman, no matter what her age, who says she has earned her "rest" suggests that sex was "work." And herein lies your problem. Ma'am.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I did something this summer we've been wanting to do for 15 years. We took a cross-country car trip from Maine to California. We saw and learned a lot. The most disturbing part of our trip was the realization that a large number of people don't care about their pets.

We counted five dead dogs who had been struck by cars and 11 lost dogs, some of them with bleeding paws, trotting along the road. One little mutt was so exhausted we stopped and took him to the next service station, gave him some cold water and called the local humane society. If we hadn't come along he surely would have died. It was 104 degrees in Oklahoma City that day.

The first thing people can do is not to let their pets run loose. The second thing is to put identification tags around the dog's necks. It would improve the chances of the rightful owners getting them back. My secret hunch is that these folks don't really care about their pets or they would not be running loose on the highways. — WITNESS TO SAD SCENE.

DEAR WIT: Thank you for letting us see a bit of the country through your eyes. I agree, the scene is a sad one and I thank you for describing it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice stank again. I refer to the 39-year-old mistress of the married man. She said she had given him the only love he had ever known and now that he had suffered two coronaries she was wondering about her rightful place at the funeral if he should die. The woman wrote a very poignant letter. She said that after 20 years of devotion she was entitled to some status. You told her (in your usual cold-blooded way) that in our cultural setup, a married man's mistress has no status — his wife gets it all.

Don't you see how rotten and unfair this is? Open your eyes and start to give some decent advice. Or quit. — HAL'S TRUE LOVE.

DEAR LOVE: It may be unfair, but I believe in telling it like it is. And this is the way it is.

Early Detection of Hearing Problem Important

By DORIS CLARK

"Doctor, is my baby deaf?" Danger signals:

1. If a newborn babe does not exhibit a startle reflex in response to a loud clap within three to six feet.

2. If at three months he has not developed auditory orienting reflexes.

3. If at eight to 12 months he does not turn toward the source of a whispered voice or such sounds as a rattle, spoon in a cup, or tissue paper — all originating within three feet behind him.

4. If at 24 months the child cannot identify an object by its name, cannot repeat a phrase and does not use some short phrases in talking.

5. If he is not disturbed by loud sounds, does not respond when called, uses gestures almost exclusively to establish needs and desires instead of speaking.

6. If he has a history of upper respiratory infections and chronic middle ear troubles.

If your little one seems to be exhibiting any of these signs, you may want to check for hearing loss. There is a packet of materials under the title, "Hearing Alert", which can help you do this, and which will tell you what to do next.

The Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf stresses the importance of early detection of hearing impairment. If you want your name and address listed to receive the kit, write to me, enclosing a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Doris: This concerns a dear friend of mine. Her son, an only child 21 years old, has gotten this girl 17 years old pregnant. He wants to do the right thing by her and marry her, but his mother said she would rather see him dead than have this happen.

It seems she had a brother that this happened to, and his wife never let a day go by but what she would throw this up in his face and actually tortured him with words until he died an old broken-hearted man at an early age. — A Sad Onlooker.

Dear Onlooker: A new twist. It more often happens that the shotgun husband throws up some situation to wife.

And it only goes to show that doing the right thing by one's partner, in this crime, is not necessarily marrying that person. If it means linking up for life with a person who is so maladjusted and so un-loving as to nag one to death, what could be worse?

Urge your dear friend to go with this young couple to the child care agency which helps unmarried parents, or, you might have to be an even sadder onlooker.

* * *

Dear Doris: Never miss your column! Thank you for your interest in humanity.

Please send "For The Woman Who's Going Places". I do all my travelling by brochure, in my kitchen, but keep hoping. — Kay.

Dear Kay: Good for you! With books and pictures and television bringing far places near, a gal with your imagination can go a long way! But why not hide a piggy bank in a kitchen drawer and make a travel dream come true? You might hold a magic carpet out of dimes and quarters!

Goulash Ideal Dish for Campers

By MARY MOORE

Margaret and Peter have six children aged 9 years down to seven months.

When I arrived at their summer cottage in Haliburton Highlands for dinner we had a goulash which Pete Loves.' We all ate it hungrily.

I thought it was ideal for top - of - stove cooking and would be great for campers. In winter you can layer it and bake it in a very large casserole. It is economical and variable.

COTTAGERS' OR CAMPERS' GOULASH (serves 10)

2 tbsps. margarine or bacon fat

2 lbs. ground chuck beef

2 medium onions chopped

1 qts. fresh yellow or green beans (OR 4 cans fresh corn cut from cobs)

1 green pepper chopped (optional)

2 tsps. salt

1 tbsp. chili powder

2 cans condensed tomato soup

¼ cup water

1 8-oz. package " noodles

1 cup grated Cheddar cheese

In a very large pot melt the margarine or bacon fat and add ground chuck and onion and chop and stir until lightly browned. Add the beans (OR corn), green pepper, salt, chili powder, tomato soup and water. (Use the water to rinse out the soup cans.) Mix well and SIMMER 2 hours. One-half hour before goulash cook noodles in large amount of water 10 minutes. Drain and add to goulash. Add cheese. Simmer 30 minutes longer.

NOTES: 1) If you have a family of five make the whole business and save half for a future meal. It reheats well. 2) If you want to bake it in one very big casserole or two medium, 4 to 6 noodles would be cooked in advance and used as one of the layers after the meal mixture has browned. The vegetables do not require precooking. The cheese would be sprinkled on about 20 minutes before baking period is finished. If in oven bake at 325 deg. Fahr. two hours.

Politics Do Affect Styles

NEW YORK (AP) — President Nixon's planned trip to China has spurred American fashion-conven to "think Chinese." The first efforts are in stores here.

Designers now are excited over coolie coats, quilted coats, mandarin robes, braided hair, coolie-style jewelry and "Mao now" jackets, patterned after Chairman Mao's long, single-breasted coat with a sports-shirt collar.

"Politics do affect fashion," says Bill Blass.

WEDDINGS

BOUGH — LeSAGE

A summer wedding was solemnized recently in St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed, when Mary Yvonne (Bonnie) daughter of Mrs. Felix J. LeSage and the late Mr. LeSage, exchanged marriage vows with David John Bough, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bough, of Prescott, Ontario. Rev. Father Leonard Hudswell, New Bight, Cat Island, Bahamas, cousin of the bride was the officiating clergyman. Mr. Fred Porter was organist and Mrs. Gwen Kingston, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Wilfred LeSage, her uncle and godfather. The bridal gown was of white Ligada crepe with an A-line skirt and bolero yoke, all outlined in imported Alencon lace. The full long sleeves with wide cuffs were trimmed with bands of imported Alencon lace. The gown had a long detachable cathedral train flowing from the middle of the back. Her headpiece was of imported "flower" with a four-tier silk illusion full length veil. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses interlaced with stephanotis.

Miss Sandra Hough, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of pale green crepe, empire line, with sleeves puffed to the wrist. The stand-up collar was trimmed with green and yellow embroidered lace which also outlined the yoke of the gown. She carried a basket of green and white daisies.

The bridesmaids, Miss Julie Cauley, Ottawa, Miss Cathie Speagle, Long Sault, and Miss Judy Cournoyea, Tweed, were outfits similar to the maid of honor, but in canary yellow.

Miss Nancy Moss, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a matching dress.

The groomsmen was Gary B. Hough, of Kitchener, brother of the bridegroom, and the guests were ushered by Larry Sangster, Elzevir; Christopher Pounder, Toronto and William Ross, Prescott, Ontario.

For the reception at the Land O'Lakes Curling Club, Tweed, the bride's mother chose a full - length gown to teal blue silk worsted in princess style, with three-quarter sleeves, and a stand-up collar trimmed with jets in a matching teal blue on the front of the yoke to form a "V". The flowers in her hair matched her corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The mother of the bridegroom chose a full-length champagne gown of flowing chiffon and lace, with long sleeves and wide cuffs. The flowers in her hair matched her corsage of orange heliman roses.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Ontario and Lake George, N.Y. the bride chose a hot pants suit in burgundy and beige, with burgundy suede boots and purse to match. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

COULSON — O'LEARY

St. Edmund's Roman Catholic Church, Stco, was the setting for the pretty summer wedding recently of Helen Elaine O'Leary, daughter of Mrs. James Kielin and the late John D. O'Leary and Keith Richard Coulson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coulson of Tweed. Rev. Father Grosscurmon was the officiating clergyman. Appropriate wedding selections were played by Mrs. John Desjardin, who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Ronald LeValley.

Given in marriage by her step-father, James Kielin, the bride chose a full-length gown of lace, with empire waistline, and long puffy sleeves of see-through lace, with pointed cuffs. The bodice of the gown was enhanced by a 'jewelled' scalloped neckline, and her long train was in lace. Her shoulder length veil was secured to three white roses centred with clusters of pearls. Her bouquet was of red sweetheart roses and white carnations.

The matron - of - honor, Mrs. Patsy Crookwright, wore a lilac colored full-length gown in organza material with miniature daisy print, and short puffed sleeves. She wore daisies in her hair. The bridesmaids, Miss Lillian O'Leary, and Miss Elizabeth Vander Wey, wore pink full length gowns of organza, with small white daisies imprinted, and puffy sleeves. Each wore daisies in her hair.

The flowergirl, Miss Sheila Kielin, wore a gown similar to the matron of honor. All the attendants carried baskets of daisies and carnations tied to match the gowns.

Burton Crookwright was best man, and the guests were ushered by Peter O'Leary, brother of the bride, and Gary Malcos.

At the reception in the basement of Thomasburg United Church, and later at the home of the bride, the bride's mother wore a turquoise printed dress of nylon chiffon, with long see-through sleeves, and white accessories. Her corsage was a white gardenia surrounded by white carnations.

The bridegroom's mother chose a mauve sleeveless crimplene dress with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations with a white gardenia in the centre.

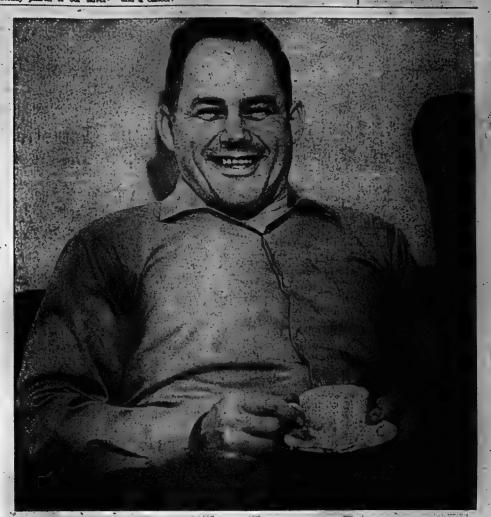
Facts Were Important!

Apparently reporters of earlier days were more informative and practical than they are today. As witness this wedding report which actually appeared in a newspaper of an early era:

"Miss Jennie Jones and Bob Henry were married at the Jones mansion last night. The bride is a daughter of Constable Jones who made a good officer and will undoubtedly be re-elected this spring. He offers a fine horse for sale in another column of this issue.

The groom runs a grocery store on Main street and is a steady patron of our advertising columns. He has a good line of bargains in his ad this week. All summer he has paid two cents more for butter than any other store in town.



"They were married by Rev. Josiah Butterworth, who last week called at this office and gave us a nice order for hand bills. He is also going to give some time to the real estate business and will write fire insurance. So say the business cards we recently printed for him. Jennie and Bob left on the 10 o'clock train to visit the bride's uncle, who we understand has lots of money and a cancer."

JOAN KATHRYN, daughter of Mrs. Muriel Lowry and the late Andrew Lowry, graduated from St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston on August 27. She is a graduate of Nicholson Catholic College and Quinte Secondary School, Belleville.

Our new Corolla. Luxurious accommodation for four. Separate entrances.

We finally did it. We made a 4 door Corolla. We did it for people who might prefer not to fight their way around the front seat. And especially for people with children.

Besides the 4 doors you get a 102 hp engine, over 30 miles per gallon, power-assisted front disc brakes and a 4-speed synchromesh transmission. (The automatic is optional).

Inside the doors you get fully reclining bucket seats, carpeting, tinted glass, an electric rear window defroster and plenty of quiet (providing you aren't one of the people with children).

But the most beautiful door is the one with the sticker in the window. Because on that sticker, following a long list of standard equipment, is one of the most beautiful things about a Toyota— the price. Corollas start at under $2,000. The 4-Door is $2,280* but it's a luxury car. With luxurious accommodation for four. Separate entrances.

Parliament Resumes Work Today with Tax Reform Top Item

OTTAWA (CP) — After a 68-day summer vacation, Parliament resumes today with plans to complete a tax reform program that began in 1963—with the appointment of a royal commission on the subject.

This is the one major item on the fall agenda, and the government is determined to see the new tax legislation before the current session of Parliament ends. Its passage may not be smooth.

While there have been many changes since the government issued its controversial white paper on the subject, opposition parties say they are by no means satisfied. A long series of amendments will be proposed.

Government spokesmen say they are prepared to devote two months to tax reform; opposition spokesmen say it might take three.

Many observers believe the current session will end shortly before Christmas and a new session, complete with a pre-election Throne Speech, will begin in January.

For the first few days of this resumed session, and before MPs get down to the tax legislation, the House will deal with special government proposals to offset the effects of the U.S. export surcharges. The measures are designed to help Canadian firms hit hard by the 10-per-cent surcharges on their exports to the U.S.

Prime Minister Trudeau has termed the surcharges a "very serious setback" for the Canadian economy.

Economic questions, and particularly the U.S. surcharges, likely will be discussed frequently throughout the fall. Under House rules, MPs will have little difficulty in relating tax changes to the current economic situation.

Since the current session began last October, 69 bills have been passed. There are 19 others before the House in various stages, but it is unlikely that many of them will be passed before the House prorogues.

The one which has eaten up the greatest amount of time so far would permit the establishment of national farm marketing boards. It has been debated in the Commons, and in committee, for more than 39 days.

While Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson says he is anxious to see the measure approved, there is no indication whether the government will continue to press on with it in the face of heavy opposition fire.

Breathalyzer Explained

Because the breathalyzer samples a person's breath rather than his blood, some people wonder how it can indicate the blood alcohol level. But in fact, if properly used, the breathalyzer is both accurate and foolproof.

There are many common calendar related to the breathalyzer. For instance, you may have heard someone say:

"My reading wouldn't have been as high but I blew too hard."

Actually, the breathalyzer registers the same volume of breath (52.5 mL) and gets the same result, regardless of how hard the subject blows.

"I had raw onions on my hamburger. That must have pushed my reading up."

The breathalyzer records only alcohol. Onions, garlic, etc., will affect nothing except the people around you.

"That machine is crazy. How can it tell how much I drank?"

It can't. It tells only how much alcohol is in your blood stream. Whether the alcohol got there from two drinks or from a dozen is immaterial.

"My reading was only .05, so how can they charge me with impaired driving?"

If you are visibly impaired, you can be charged with impaired driving under Section 222 of The Criminal Code of Canada regardless of your blood alcohol level.

"Sure my reading was over .08 but my driving was perfect and the liquor had no effect on me, so how can they convict me?"

A reading of over .08 is an offence in itself under Section 224 of the Code regardless of how little you may have been (or think you may have been) affected.

Alcoholic impairment is directly related to the volume of alcohol in the blood stream. The higher the volume, the higher the degree of impairment. The blood in the walls of the lungs imparts 1-2100 of its alcohol content into the breath in the lungs. The breathalyzer takes 52 L. of a subject's breath and bubbles it through a chemical solution.

The solution reacts according to the volume of alcohol in the breath sample. A gauge shows the reading in terms of blood alcohol volume. A volume of over .08 (80 milligrams of alcohol in 100 millilitres of blood) has been set as the legal level at which a person is considered impaired.

A conviction under Section 224 carries a minimum fine of $50 and a maximum fine of $1,000 or imprisonment up to six months, or both. In addition, you usually lose your driver's licence.

The breathalyzer test is compulsory. Anyone refusing it is subject to the same penalties as if he took the test and registered over .08.

That's the law!

Official Flees Taiwan

HONG KONG (Reuter) — A Nationalist Chinese official flew into Peking Sunday after deciding to defect while on study-leave in the United States, Peking radio said today.

The radio named the defector as Chang Shuang-chao and described him as "a top confidential secretary" in the Taiwan department of finance.

The radio said Chang was warmly greeted by Chinese government officials and members of his family, including his 78-year-old father.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Burglars Are Not Stupid

Some suburban friends dropped by not long ago, and were surprised to find our front door open. Since we live in the heart — or at least, spleen — of the wicked city, they imagined we'd be bolted and barricaded after dark.

I happen to have more confidence in the intelligence of thieves than most people do. They know where to steal and who to steal from. Our house is definitely off limits — because anyone can see how indecently eager we are to have someone break in.

That's the only way we'll ever get rid of all the junk we have. Old amputated bikes, radio sets from the days before Stromberg met Carlson, coats and sweaters that moths diddlefully nosh, and assorted detritus that the Salvation Army would condemn to limbo.

When we go out, we do everything but put a sign in the window saying "Nobody Home — Come In and Browse." All a burglar would have to do is take a look at 4,000 books and a grand piano that was decrepit when Hector Berlioz was a pup, and he'd throw up his hands in disgust.

(My best hope is that someone will make off with the kids' translator radios; for months I've been searching for a felonious confederate who would split the proceeds with me.)

About a dozen years ago, we lived in an apartment in a six-flat walkup on a terribly chic street. All the other five occupants of the building were social, or rich, or both; we were the building's token "poor family" to demonstrate how essentially democratic they were.

Well, virtually every apartment in the building was broken into one time or another while we lived there — except ours. The Burglars Union knew precisely where the jewels and furs and cash were stashed away, and avoided our flat as though the hubonic plague flag were flying outside our door.

Finally, we moved out and bought a house out of sheer embarrassment. When the other neighbors would gather over Bloody Marys on a Sunday noon to discuss their insurance policies and the vagaries of the international gem market, we were cut dead. If we weren't solvent enough to be burglarized, certainly we weren't worth fraternizing with.

There's something wrong with our whole criminal system, when people who want to be robbed — as the only way of clearing out the debris — can't find a decent burglar to undertake the job; and the people who buy the most elaborate security systems get broken into with depressing regularity.

This was the scene at Lakehurst, N.J., on Nov. 9, 1967, when a large parachute lowered a four-seat airplane safely to earth when the plane's wings were blown off. Incident was a test of a device invented by Darko Maudredi and Angelo Baldi. The men say they are still trying to market their "ultimate safety system" and have received no action on their 1967 request that the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration approve mass production of the device and fund a study to apply it to use in heavier craft.

Two Power Failures Occur in Metro

TORONTO (CP) — Two major power failures in a little more than an hour caused blackouts in most of central and eastern Metropolitan Toronto Monday night.

The failures affected communities as far as Stouffville and Clarement, 25 miles northeast of Metro. Other communities affected included northern suburbs such as King City, Buttonville, Richmond Hill, Oak Ridges, Thornhill and Markham.

The initial failure at 8:35 p.m. caused major traffic jams, interruptions of subway and television service and forced many Metro hospitals to switch to emergency power.

Service was slowly being restored when a power surge caused the second failure at 10:03, affecting the same areas. Most power was restored by 11:18, an Ontario Hydro spokesman said.

Dennis Dack, speaking for Hydro, said a fault in a 27,000-volt distribution line "probably in North York," tripped the main 230,000-volt transmission line between Cherrywood, 30 miles east of Toronto, and the city.

The cause of the fault has not been determined.

"About 500,000 kilowatts was lost," said Mr. Dack, speaking of the first failure. This is equivalent to the power needed to serve 300,000 homes.

At one stage Metro police were faced by confusion at Rochdale College on Bloor Street, when genuine attempts to assist traffic degenerated into pranks by a few, cheered on by about 300 milling on the sidewalk. However, the crowd later dispersed.

The failure knocked television station CESLT, the CBC's Toronto outlet, off the air for more than 50 minutes, forcing the corporation to broadcast the 11 p.m. national news from Montreal.

Police answered scores of calls as the power shutoff tripped automatic fire-alarm systems but said there were no unusual reports of breakins or vandalism.

Firemen were called when elevators halted between floors, trapping passengers.

Subway trains stopped immediately when the failure occurred. Lights in subway stations went out and the central switchboard stopped functioning.

At Metropolitan Toronto police headquarters every light went out. With no emergency power, officers used battery lamps. Taxi service was disrupted when taxi companies lost the use of their radio transmitters.

In Markham, where the power was off for 50 minutes, a brick was thrown through the window of a house.

The Rochdale incident occurred when young people who helped direct traffic during the blackout refused to stop when power was restored. One youth climbed atop a stationary bus and did a head stand on the roof before jumping to the ground.

Farmhouse Commune Terrorized

UXBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Police arrested one man Monday and were searching for two others after an incident Sunday in which five young persons were terrorized and robbed at a farmhouse commune.

Det.-Sgt. Robert Fulton of the provincial police said Monday $675 was taken after the five were threatened by three intruders and held at gunpoint for an hour.

He said two of the residents were struck with a chain after three men kicked in the door of the farmhouse, about 25 miles northeast of Toronto, and shots were fired from a revolver which narrowly missed at least one of the residents. No one was seriously injured.

The commune residents were: Steven Caneen, 22; Robert Russell Quatelbaum, 22; Jesse Lee Wallace, 20; Juliette Pirquette, 19; and Charles Stephen DePaula, 19, a visitor from Ozoneph, N.Y.

Police said the intruders fired at the house from the outside and into the tires of two cars.

Roger Neal of Maple, just north of Toronto was arrested at his home and charged with robbery. He was to appear in court at Whitby today.

Police were told the intruders carried a .22-calibre pistol, a .22-calibre rifle and a 12 gauge shotgun. One of the intruders played a version of Russian roulette with Caneen, placing a pistol with one shell in it against Caneen's head and squeezing the trigger. The hammer came down on an empty chamber.

Government Urged To Take Key Role About Computers

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada says the federal government should play a key role in the evolution of facilities to move information across the nation from computer to user.

Failure, warns a council report to the government, will rob Canadians of great social and economic benefits from an industry which already shows worldwide signs of matching automobile manufacturing in importance.

The first need is for an electronic spine, a trans-Canada computer communications network which will relay data across the country.

Nation-wide banking through computers with coast-to-coast connections is being developed by the Bank of Montreal. A national medical records system for doctors is being evolved as is a distribution system for scientific and technical information.

The day will come when the consumer will plug into a computer to do his shopping from home or conduct financial transactions without cheques and virtually without cash.

These are some predictions of the report's authors, a five-man committee headed by Dr. Leon Katz, director of the University of Saskatchewan nuclear accelerator laboratory.

They say computers, electronically-linked instantly over great distances, will enable greatly increased accuracy in weather forecasting, in predicting changes in the economy or in measuring the dynamics of cities.

The report says the Canadian computer industry is sick because of the small and scattered market, powerful competition from protected foreign firms, high costs and industrial fragmentation.

The Katz committee recommended the government must subsidize the network as it did Air Canada's predecessor, Trans-Canada Air Lines, and must give first priority to provision of a public service, placing profits second.

The network should use figures instead of letters, words or voice signals as its language and should be based on an expansion of the existing microwave systems that carry television across the country on the CN-CP Telecommunications and Trans-Canada Telephone System.

A semi-judicial body, holding public hearings, should regulate the network to ensure privacy and security of transmitted data.

Air Show Cut Down

TORONTO (CP) — Bad weather forced cancellation of four-fifths of the international air show at the Canadian National Exhibition Sunday.

It was the third straight day that weather wiped out the high-performance jets' program.

Although the show had to be cut to 30 minutes, winds provided added thrills for rain-soaked onlookers.

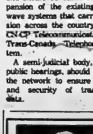
Twelve of 14 Canadian Armed Forces parachutists were blown off target. One landed in the lake, another on a concrete seawall.

The 10 others ended up in the midst of the drenched crowd.

Government Medicine Is Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario doctors were warned Monday that "government-controlled medicine" is one step away and it would result in "substandard medicine" for the province's population.

The warning came in pamphlets mailed to Ontario's 10,000 doctors by a group of physicians at Metropolitan Toronto's York Finch General Hospital.



The group, headed by Dr. John L. Tweyman, announced last June it planned a public-relations campaign to arm the public of "the dangers of medicare."

Soviet Sailor Swims Ashore

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — A Soviet seaman who jumped ship, swam for almost eight hours in rough seas and staggered into a tiny settlement in the Queen Charlotte Islands of British Columbia is being held in custody today.

Sergei Kourdakov, 20, was arrested under the Immigration Act because he entered Canada through a port other than a recognized port of entry.

Kourdakov told a Russian-speaking resident of the Moresby Island mining community of Tasu, where he came ashore Sunday, that he doesn't like the Soviet political system and wants to stay in Canada.

But immigration officer Bert Hidber said he isn't sure what Kourdakov intends because department interpreters were unavailable and substitutes could not be precise in both Russian and English.

Kourdakov, a radio operator, said his ship was anchored about a half-mile offshore with 19 other Soviet vessels in Tasu Sound, an area where the Soviet fishing fleet is permitted inside Canada's territorial waters to transfer fish and supplies between vessels.

He jumped overboard at midnight during a storm, and swam for two or three hours in four-foot waves before realizing he had circled back to his ship.

"He knew the ship was anchored pointing towards shore, so he used that as an indicator and swam for the land," Mr. Hidber said.

Kourdakov said when he reached shore he climbed a 600-foot hill and saw the lights of the Tasu townsite, about three miles away.

He had removed his shoes and some clothing to swim, and decided to swim to the town after cutting his hands and feet on rocks.

He remembered crawling along a beach near Tasu and then waking up in hospital.

Peter Munro, a mine manager, said a woman saw the seaman struggle out of the water near her home at 8:45 a.m. and called for help.

Dr. Robert Kochendorfer, who treated Kourdakov for exposure and lacerations, said the seaman was "very happy after he rested, about the happiest man I've ever seen."

"He told us he was making about $500 for six months work on the ship. He said he had planned to jump ship for some time, and this was the best opportunity he's had.

"He told us he didn't see a future for himself in the Soviet Union, that he didn't like the political system and wanted to come to Canada. He remarked that many young guys would like to leave."

Mr. Hidber said he will question Kourdakov formally as soon as a proper interpreter is available, and then make a report on the incident.

Copies of the report will be sent to immigration authorities in Ottawa, who have been informed of the case, and to regional director Lyall Hawkins in Vancouver.

Mr. Hawkins said in Vancouver that the incident is different from most ship-jumpings and "the possibility of the political asylum question is something that would have to be handled between immigration and external affairs departments in Ottawa."

Nixon Promises Not to Keep Out Honest Imports

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon pledged Monday that the United States would not build protective walls against honest competition from imports.

In a Labor Day radio speech, Nixon appeared to be trying to ease concern that his new international economic policy might be a prelude to a fresh round of protectionism against foreign goods.

"This nation is not going to turn inward," he said in the speech delivered from the presidential mountain retreat at nearby Camp David.

"We are not going to build protective walls to shelter us from honest competition. . . .

"On the contrary, the nation that built its reputation over two centuries of keen competition will compete even more vigorously in the years ahead.

"By exporting more goods and services, we will create more jobs for our expanding work force."

Nixon's speech was devoted mainly to an appeal for more productivity and new ways to make work more attractive to the American citizen.

"In our quest for a better environment, we must always remember that the most important part of the quality of life is the quality of work," he said.

"And the new need for job satisfaction is the key to the quality of work.

Mackasey Advocates Three-way Approach

OTTAWA (CP) — Unions, management and governments should co-operate in a fresh approach toward the de-cycle union-management confrontations that no longer meets the public need, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey says.

An improved industrial relations structure, requires that labor, business and government "strive to improve our relationships in full recognition of our interdependence and common interest," Mr. Mackasey said in a Labor Day message.

A fast and growing labor force is forcing changes in the social structure, he said.

Under the federal jurisdiction "the minimum wage has been increased.

"Provisions have been made for maternity leave; equal pay for equal work provisions have been strengthened and new protection has been offered to those whose jobs are terminated."

Mr. Mackasey said new legislation put before Parliament sets out new rules for collective bargaining and settlement of disputes.

The legislation, which still has not undergone debate in the Commons, would make it easier for trade unions to win certification for new bargaining units and collective bargaining rights would be extended to many not now unionized.

Mr. Mackasey said a "piecening provision" of the legislation is a section enabling workers to participate in decisions arising from technological change which affects their livelihood.

The interest of labor, business and government are common in many areas, he minister said, and ways to foster the development of these interests should be taken as a challenge for the year ahead.

No Full Employment This Decade?

Economic Outlook Serious--CLC Head

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian workers are facing one of the most serious economic situations ever, Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Monday.

In a Labor Day message, Mr. MacDonald referred to continuing high unemployment, compounded by the world monetary crisis and the United States import surcharge on Canadian exports.

"The fact is that a majority of recognized authorities now acknowledge that a return to anything approaching full employment is not going to be achieved this decade," he said.

"The price that Canadians have had to pay for the government's mismanagement of the economy has been recounted time and again.

"Hundreds of thousands of Canadians have been thrown out of work; families have been exposed to immeasurable suffering, municipalities have been pushed to the verge of bankruptcy by mounting welfare costs.

"Perhaps the most disturbing aspect of this extraordinary situation has been the lack of any real concern—really the indifference—of those in authority who have been responsible."

'Pot' Raises Creativity

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study suggests that for some college students at least, use of marijuana is associated with "personality characteristics which many would tend to value—for example, creativity," a team of Eastern United States college psychologists reported Monday.

Thus, they said, "explanations of marijuana use based on character defects of psychopathology seem to be inadequate."

But, in describing results of "personality profile" studies among "large groups" of marijuana users and non-users in two large Pennsylvania universities, they also said they found new evidence that:

"The more a person uses marijuana, the more likely he is to try one or more other drugs" —such as heroin, LSD, barbiturates and amphetamines."

Researchers Jan G. Grossman of Temple University and Ronald Goldstein issued their report at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

They said:

"The most important finding of this study is that all" marijuana use increases, creativity and adventuresomeness, increases and authoritarianism decreases."

Income Is Key

Crippled Folk Not Unhappy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of psychologists reported Monday new findings challenge the traditional assumption that handicapped, crippled or malformed people are less happy or enjoy life less than normal folks.

Dr. Paul Cameron of the University of Louisville and Dr. D. Van Hoorn and two associates of Wayne State University, Detroit, reported findings to the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

Their major conclusions from a study involving 144 malformed individuals and 151 normal persons were that:

There was not only no difference between the two groups as regards various degrees of life satisfaction; outlook on what has accomplished, and vulnerability to frustrations, but also:

—"A higher proportion of normal claimed to have contemplated suicide . . . and . . . there is also a suggestion that normals who contemplated and/or attempted suicide may have done so more frequently than the malformed subjects;"

—The malformed judged their lives more difficult than those of normals—but this did not make them less happy.

The malformed group, they said, included 64 with paralysis; 27 with a muscular difficulty; 16 with a deformed limb; 13 with a lost limb or congenitally missing extremity; 11 who were blind; and four with a hearing difficulty.

They were selected from among in-patients or out-patients of two Detroit hospitals; and from the student body of Wayne State University.

Malformeds were matched with normals as the sex, age, and life situation, including income levels.

The researchers said that "while life satisfaction was positively associated with income, no difference between the two groups was evident once they were divided into varying income groups . . ."

Duped Girls Place Bombs on Planes

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab guerrillas talked two young women into carrying suitcases—rigged with explosives—aboard Israeli airliners last week, Israeli police said today.

Yigal Marcus, superintendent for Tel Aviv security, told a news conference that the charges were primed to blow up the aircraft in flight.

Marcus said the two girls from Holland and Peru, were asked to take the suitcases as a favor to addressees in Israel.

Police refused to disclose names or details of the discovery of the explosives.

Marcus said he two girls "are working with Israeli investigators on the case." He added that they are not under detention.

Marcus said the Dutch girl, during a visit to Belgrade, met a young man who asked her to take a suitcase full of clothing and presents to his family in Bethlehem upon delivery of which she was to receive $2,500 to return to him, the Israeli said.

Displaying the cheap, brown leather suitcase, Marcus revealed a false bottom below gifts and clothing.

In it were two bricks of plastic explosive, about the size of cigarette packets, along with fuses, electrical detonators and batteries.

The second girl was said to have met a young man who described himself as an Israeli-Arab and after a tour together through several countries he promised to take her to Israel and marry her.

In London, Marcus said, the Arab told her he would go first and make he plans. He asked her to take a later flight and carry two suitcases of his.

In the bags, Marcus said investigators found three blocks of explosives, wrapped in shoe boxes and paper, along with detonators and batteries in a cookie box.

In both cases, he added, the young women were requested to book aboard the only 747 Jumbo jet in the Israeli airline fleet.

Benko Wins

TORONTO (CP) — Grandmaster Pal Benko of New York won the Canadian National Exhibition open chess tournament Monday night with a perfect six victories.

Benko tied Robert Byrne, also from New York, but was awarded the trophy because his opponents were ranked slightly higher. The two men split $1,500.

World champion Boris Spilsky of the Soviet Union finished with five wins and one draw against Lawrence Day of Ottawa. Mr. Spassky was guaranteed $1,800 to split.

Survival School Fatal

BEND, Ore. (AP) — A young married woman participating in the graduation exercise of an outdoor survival school apparently lay down in wet snow and froze to death high on a central Oregon mountain.

A second girl missing and feared dead was the object of a search by mounted sheriff's deputies and instructors of the school.

Chris Williams, a Deschutes County deputy, identified the dead woman as Joyce Bowden, 21, Fall Creek, Ore. He said the missing girl is believed to be Doreen LaRetta, 19, Duxbury, Mass.

A third girl, Pamela Sullivan, 19, Seattle, was found late by an instructor Saturday afternoon near the body of the dead girl. She was taken to a Bend hospital for observation and rested.

The young women were taking a course offered by the Eugene, Ore., branch of Outward Bound, an actual, which trains people in survival techniques. The three were a unit of a class of 42 girls, ages 16 to 23, who had split up for an exercise.

Sonny Joins Club

Sonny Jurgensen of the Washington Redskins, top ranking passer in the history of the National Football League, has joined the long list of star quarterbacks sidelined by injuries.

He suffered a broken left arm in a 37-30 loss to the Miami Dolphins in an exhibition game Saturday night.

Jurgensen, 37, suffered the injury with 60 seconds remaining in the third quarter when he and receiver Otto Stowkins tackled Miami safety Dick Anderson, who had just intercepted a Jurgensen aerial.

Jurgensen said Sunday night his doctors felt he would be out of action "at least four or five weeks."

Jurgensen joins an illustrious list of injured quarterbacks. Others sidelined at present include Joe Namath, Bart Starr and Johnny Unitas.

Als Also Upset

Argos Burnt by Turnovers

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes will have to mend their ruined ways if they hope to recover from Labor Day setbacks in the Eastern Football Conference.

The Argos, far and away the class of the East on paper, turned the ball over eight times en route to a 30-17 loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats while the Als were equally out of touch in their 40-17 drubbing by Ottawa Rough Riders.

As a result, Toronto with 10 points, maintains its four-point league lead and Ottawa and Hamilton move into a second-place tie with the Als.

Both the Als and Argos hope to gain a measure of revenge when the teams play return engagements next weekend. Ottawa going to Montreal Saturday and Hamilton to Toronto Sunday.

Toronto went into Hamilton solid favorites on the strength of rookie quarterback Joe Theismann's performance to date and an anemic Tiger offence.

Hamilton's attack lived up to pre-game notices, but sputtered and sparked to put two touchdowns on the scoreboard. Theismann didn't, and the former Notre Dame ace contributed to the Argo loss by tossing four passes into enemy hands.

It wasn't all the young quarterback's doing, however, as the vaunted Argonaut offence forced three Toronto fumbles, two by usually-reliable Bill Symons.

The third, by Dave Cranmer running back the kickoff that followed Frank Cargile's go-ahead score for Hamilton, was snapped up by Tiger lineman Ed Chadwick on the 36 and he ran unmolested to score.

Dave Fleming, on a 108-yard pass play from Joe Zuger early in the game, was the only other sign of fire in Hamilton's offence. Tommy Joe Coffey contributed 10 points on two field goals, a single and three converts while Zuger, who averaged 22.1 yards a kick, added two single points.

Mel Profit and Dave Rakosky, the latter on a four-yard return of an interception that led to Hamilton's first touchdown, came to relieve Zuger, were the Toronto scorers. Ivan MacMillan added a convert and field goal with Zenon Andruzzyzyn kicking two singles.

In addition to interceptions and fumbles, the Toronto offence lost a third-down gamble with inches to go.

Hamilton tried everything in the books to muster a sustained drive, even reverting to the old Single Wing play that almost paid dividends—except for the absence of Argo head coach Leo Cahill.

Cahill spotted ex-Argo Bobby Taylor on his knees near the Hamilton bench when he suddenly remembered Taylor had tried the same trick in 1968.

Cahill called for a substitution and alerted the Canadian Football League rulebook says a sleeper play is illegal if either team sends in substitutes, Argos got caught with the enemy men on the field. But Cahill's ruse succeeded since the illegal substitution ruled out the completed pass to Taylor deep in Argo territory.

At Ottawa, Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry was so disheartened with the ineptness of his defending national champions that he promised something new for the Montreal engagement.

"The time I'm going to put glue on the ball," said the usually soft-spoken coach after watching his players fumble away the ball six times, Three Ottawa interceptions, returned for a total of 101 yards, also led to the Alouette downfall.

While the Ottawa defence was sharp, it's offence was lacking behind quarterback Gerry Wood for the first time this year and the former New York Giant was booed by Lansdowne Stadium fans as he left the field in favor of Rick Cassatta.

The Riders were bubbling a slim lead at the time, led with Cassatta calling the plays they put the game out of reach mainly on the strength of Gerry Organ's kicking.

The 6-foot-2 Hamtramck-kicker enjoyed his biggest night as a Rider, scoring 21 points off a touchdown, three field goals, four converts and two singles to move into the EFC scoring lead with 43 points.

The defence accounted for two Ottawa touchdowns, by Wayne Trull and John Krumpe, on pass interceptions covering 60 and 32 yards respectively, while running back Al Pleszkewicz went over from the two. Punter Marcel de Lesseo added two singles.

Touchdowns by Jerry Evanshen and Brad Upshaw and Jesse Canale's field goal, convert and single accounted for Montreal points.

Etcheverry suggested Cassatta's erratic kicking was the turning point when the big Hamtramck-man missed on two field goal efforts when the score was still close and "changed the whole complexion of the game."

Stamps Get 10 Gift Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Generous opponents and quick-hand defences provided Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders with easy victories in the Western Football Conference Monday.

The Stampeders, presented with 10 points from five safety touches in first quarter, took a 23-7 triumph over Edmonton Eskimos before a capacity crowd of 23,616 in Calgary.

The opposition wasn't on generous in Regina, but the Roughriders intercepted seven passes en route way to a 35-14 win over British Columbia Lions.

The Stamps left Calgary in first place with a 6-1 won-lost record for 13 points, four more than Saskatchewan. Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the Lions share third place, each with six points, four ahead of last-place Edmonton.

The Eskimos surrendered the 10 points while playing against strong winds gusting to 35 miles an hour.

They were behind 1-0 when kicker Fred Dunn went back into his own end zone five successive times within a six-minute span. Four times he was tackled after running around trying to use up time. He conceded a fifth time at 12:37 of the opening quarter, giving Calgary an 11-0 lead.

He lost a total of 131 yards on safeties, accounting for Edmonton's net offence of minus yards in the first half.

Despite the safeties, Calgary had only a 14-7 lead until Bill Van Burkleo faked a punt deep in his own end zone, ran around left end, and scooted 89 yards for a touchdown.

Larry Robinson got the other Calgary points, booting a 32-yard field goal, a convert and three singles, one from 75 yards with the wind at his back.

Larry Lawrence got the only Edmonton touchdown, on a 12-yard run in the second quarter. Dunn added an 87-yard single.

In Regina, before 21,425 fans, it was a case of too much Ron Lancaster and erratic passing by three B.C. quarterbacks—Rusty Clark, Don Moorhead and Paul Brothers.

Lancaster threw three touchdown passes, including a 13-yard strike to Nolan Bailey at 10:09 of he first quarter to erase a 3-6 deficit.. The Lions, who have not won a game at Taylor Field since September, 1965, were never in contention after Bailey's touchdown. They trailed 14-4 after the first quarter, 28-7 at the half and 35-7 after three quarters.

Lancaster also hit Bobby Thompson with a 14-yard touchdown pass and Alan Ford on a 12-yard toss.

Thompson added another touchdown on a 22-yard run and Silas McKinnie scored six points on a 74-yard scoop. John Skeels kicked all five converts.

Jim Evenson got the only B.C. touchdown, on a five-yard run. Ken Phillips kicked two field goals, one from 18 yards, a 49-yard single and a convert.

Lancaster, who completed 11 of 19 passes for 205 yards, moved closer to two Canadian Football League records now held by Sam Etcheverry, coach of Montreal Alouettes.

The Roughrider star has gained 25,319 yards passing, 263 yards short of Etcheverry's career total. Lancaster has completed 1,586 passes and is 94 behind the record of 1,680.

Pirates Riding Higher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates are better off than they were a year ago, and Los Angeles Dodgers are better off than they were a day ago.

As a result of Labor Day activity in the National League, the Pirates hold a seven-game lead in the East Division while the Dodgers trail San Francisco Giants by the same amount in the West.

Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from Chicago Cubs, 4-1 and 10-3, while Los Angeles trimmed San Francisco 5-2.

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals split with Philadelphia Phillies—winning 6-3 and losing 2-1, New York Mets trounced Montreal Expos 7-0, Houston Astros beat Atlanta Braves 6-4 and Cincinnati Reds nipped San Diego Padres 1-0.

Nelson Briles checked the Cubs on three hits in Pittsburgh's opener, the first complete game by a Pirate hurler in 16 starts, and hot-hitting Rennie Stennett set up two runs with a double and triple.

Gene Alley, Al Oliver and Briles singled in the third inning of the nightcap, tying the score 2-2, and Willie Stargell was purposely passed so southpaw Ken Holtzman could face left-swinging Willie Stargell.

Stargell ruined that strategy with his 44th home run of the season and second grand slam.

"I'll admit we're in a much better position than we were last year at this time," said manager Danny Murtaugh. A year ago, the Bucs had a two-game lead and went on to win the division.

Ron Stone's sixth-inning sacrifice fly gave the Phillies their Cards after the Redbirds took the opener behind Bob Gibson on the strength of a six-run outburst in the third inning.

But the big news was a fourth-inning fight in the first game between Philadelphia catcher Tim McCarver and St. Louis outfielder Lou Brock, former team-mates on the Cards.

Tom Seaver fired a two-hitter, struck out 12 and singled home the first two runs of the game as the Mets trimmed Montreal and nudged past the Cubs into third place.

Roy Hunt (33) of Montreal is forced at second base on Boots Day's hit in first inning of game with Chicago Cubs Tuesday. Second baseman Glenn Beckert of Cubs does a one-arm stand in executing the play. (AP Wirephoto)

How Upsetting!

Carty Fire Coincidence

ATLANTA (AP) — Rico Carty's barbecue restaurant was damaged heavily by fire Sunday night.

Firemen say they are investigating to determine if there is a possibility that it was set deliberately.

Carty and his brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez, were injured about 10 days ago in an altercation with three Atlanta policemen. The policemen later were fired after a hearing before a committee of aldermen.

Carty, Braves outfielder, won the National League batting title in 1970 but has not played this year due to injuries.

Manitoba Wins

KENOSEE LAKE, Sask. (CP) — Manitoba won the Canadian senior baseball championships Monday and will represent Canada at the world championships in Cuba in February.

Brandon Cloverleafs defeated Ontario's Orillia Majors 4 for the final game of the five-team round-robin competition.

Lolich Bets on Blue To Take Top Honors

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mickey Lolich and Vida Blue have little in common besides their pitching records.

Lolich, the 33-year-old Detroit Tiger veteran enjoying his finest season in the American League, won No. 22 Monday with a six-hit 2-0 decision over Washington Senators.

He joined Blue, the brilliant Oakland Athletic fireballer, as the winningest pitcher in the majors. They also share the most complete games—24.

"Because of his popularity," Lolich said of Blue, "he's bound to win all the awards.

"You can't give the Most Valuable Player Award to one pitcher and give the Cy Young Award for the best pitcher to another. You just can't do it."

"I know what's going to happen. He's going to win everything—so I'm not going to worry about it," Lolich said. "He's playing with a first-place club and I'm not."

Lolich's second-place Tigers picked up half a game to move within 8½ of pennant-bound Baltimore in the American League East as the Orioles split a Labor Day doubleheader with Cleveland, winning 10-5 before the Indians won the nightcap 1-0.

In other Monday action, California Angels beat Oakland 4-2 and, in three more holiday twin-bills, New York Yankees swept Boston Red Sox 3-3 and 3-0, Chicago White Sox defeated Minnesota Twins 6-3 then lost 10-3 and Kansas City Royals swept a pair from Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 and 6-4.

Washington cracked Baltimore 5-3 and Boston doubled Cleveland 8-1 in Sunday action which also saw New York slip Detroit 5-1, Milwaukee trim California 6-4, Chicago blast Kansas City 8-0 and Minnesota down Oakland 7-2.

MICKEY LOLICH

In Saturday action, it was Detroit over New York 9-1, Oakland over Minnesota 5-4, Cleveland over Boston 11-9, Baltimore over Washington 6-2, Kansas 3-1 against Chicago and Milwaukee 4-1 over California.

Lolich breezed past the Senators while the Tigers gave him the only run he needed in the first inning on Aurelio Rodriguez' triple and Gates Brown's grounder.

Murcer Stricken

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer, leading hitter for New York Yankees, was stricken with a kidney ailment Monday morning and taken to hospital.

The immediate diagnosis of Dr. Sidney Gaynor, club physician, was that the 25-year-old outfielder had either a stone or gravel.

The latter is less serious and he could pass it. A stone would mean surgery and end his season.

Murcer is leading the club in .332 average, 84 runs batted in and 23 home runs.

Boog Powell's fourth career grand slam home run highlighted Baltimore's five-run eighth inning in the opener.

But Fred Stanley's run-scoring single in the fourth inning of the nightcap was all the Tribe needed as Vince Colbert and Steve Dunning teamed to silence the Orioles on seven hits.

Tony Gonzalez and Roger Repoz stunned Oakland's 15-game winner, Chuck Dobson, with successive two-out homers in the top of the ninth for the Angels.

Ron Swoboda won the Yankees' opener with a two-run pinch single in the eighth inning, then saved it with a spectacular catch in the ninth as he crashed into the right field stands to rob Reggie Smith of a game-tying homer.

Chief Kasko Critic Silent

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston manager Eddie Kasko and his arch-critic, third baseman Rico Petrocelli, met Monday for a long talk in which each made his points.

Petrocelli had blasted the manager as the cause of the Red Sox decline, which has seen them lose 12 of their last 21 games, and said he favored some players but was sympathetic toward others, including himself. Rico apologized Monday.

Petrocelli made the charge Saturday after owner Tom Yawkey had said that every player on the team was going to be made available in a deal this winter. Yawkey then rehired Kasko Sunday for next season.

Kasko made it a point to get together with Petrocelli, a $82,000—a-year performer.

"After Rico made his remarks about me to the press, I decided to seek him out," Kasko said, "maybe it was my fault that I didn't do so before. I explained to him that I have 25 individuals to handle and I have reasons of my own for doing things, even if he doesn't understand them. I told him I deal with each man in a way which I feel will benefit him and he club."

Kasko's job seemed to be in jeopardy when the Red Sox slide began.

LIMITED TIME OFFER

"Right now, $34.95 can make a fantastic difference to your car. And save you money, too."

1 Front wheel ALIGNMENT

"This can be a big money-saver. The wheel alignment could actually save you the price of a new set of tires. Because if your front wheels are out of true, the tread will soon be scuffed off your tires. "And, of course, a wheel alignment will also improve the handling and ride of your car. "What percentage of cars need a wheel alignment? 100% of all cars on the road need a periodic alignment!"

2 Install new Monro-Matic front SHOCK ABSORBERS

"Everybody knows that new shock absorbers will do a far better job than showoroom ride. But new shocks will do a lot more than that. They help to hold your car safely on the road. Improve handling. And protect tires and other Riding System components from damage caused by pounding vibration. "How can you tell if you need new shock absorbers? Bring your car in and we'll tell you for sure."

3 Front Wheel BALANCE

"Here's another money saver. Because if your wheels are out of balance, your tires are out of luck. Wobbling, bouncing wheels butcher tires to cost you big money. We dynamically and statically balance your wheels to protect you from wobble and bounce."

4 Front wheel BEARING RE-PACK

"When was the last time you had the front wheel bearings checked? Out of sight can be out of mind. And that can lead to problems. We remove the bearings, clean off the caked grease and inspect for signs of wear. Then we re-pack the bearings with top quality grease. This could save you from replacing the bearings to save you more money."

Repeats U.S. Amateur Win

Cowan's Eagle Proves Point

WILMINGTON, Del. (CP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener has won the U.S. amateur golf title for the second time. He won it first in 1968.

A great 135-yard shot from the rough on the 18th hole Saturday went into the cup to give him a three-stroke win over 19-year-old U.S. college shotmaker, Eddie Pearce of Temple Terrace, Fla.

Cowan was a probable winner even if that shot hadn't gone in. Once his shot hit the green, he would have had to putt three times even to fall into a playoff with Pearce.

And Cowan, understandably, was a little edgy about who won and who lost because of his first U.S. amateur win in 1968.

As international magazine story after his first victory in 1968 hinted that his win was a little tainted. The magazine carried a story about Dennie Beauman of the U.S. explaining how he "lost" to Cowan.

Cowan didn't feel that way and made it clear to the magazine's representative Saturday. And of his 1971 win he said to reporters:

"This was much more satisfying because I won it once and have won it again," said the 32-year-old Inco-Price broker from Kitchener, Ont.

The magazine article after his 1968 playoff victory over Beauman at Merion (Pa.) Golf Club, said that Cowan hadn't really won, but Beauman beat himself. Beauman blew big leads in the final round and again in the playoff.

Nobody could say that someone else lost the 1971 amateur. Cowan silenced that possibility when he stroked a nine iron 135-yards into the cup for an eagle-two on the final hole of the 72-hole tournament. It gave him a three-stroke victory over 19-year-old Eddie Pearce, the Wake Forest college golfer.

Cowan shot a final round one-, of San Mateo, Calif., at 288. Callignan finished with a 74.

The tournament narrowed to the final hole with Cowan two under and Pearce finished at one under. Cowan needed a par on the 18th to win.

Cowan said he wasn't sure how much he was ahead when he walked to the 18th tee and wanted to take a look at the scoreboard. A USGA official said no, so he decided to play for what he felt would be a tournament-winning par on the final hole.

The six-foot, 180 pounder said later he has no desire to become a touring professional, or for that matter a touring amateur, preferring to spend more time with his family and business.

Non-U.S. players now have won 11 of the 71 U.S. national titles. The last Canadian to win was Sandy Somerville of London, Ont., in 1935.

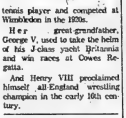
Royal Rider Best

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, fresh from an outstanding victory in the three-day European horse trials, now is highly rated to win a place on Britain's equestrian team at the Olympic Games next year in Munich.

The 21-year-old princess outperformed the cream of Europe's horsemen Sunday in winning the event at Burghley, England, which consisted of dressage, cross-country and show jumping. She led from start to finish, beating all the members of Britain's official team.

The princess had not been chosen for the official team because of inexperience in that type of competition, although she has been riding since she was a small child.

Her mount was a chestnut gelding, Doublet, from the royal stables.



Britain will choose its Olympic team next spring.

It's a long time since the Royal Family has won a medal in an international sports event.

Princess Anne's grandfather, King George VI, was a keen tennis player and competed at Wimbledon in the 1920s.

And Henry VIII proclaimed himself all-England wrestling champion in the early 16th century.

Rainy Days Get Kinsmen Down and Out

Rainy days and Sundays always get the Belleville Kinsmen down. However when the two occur simultaneously, the Kinsmen are down and out.

The Belleville Juniors dropped a rain-sprinkled 4-0 decision to Brantford Sunday to bow out of the O'Leary Baseball Association semi - final series in two straight games after losing the opener 6-1 in Brantford Saturday.

Ted Shaw took Sunday's loss despite coming through with a fine four - hit pitching effort. A three - run rally in the top of the first gave Brantford all the runs they needed as they took advantage of a walk, two infield errors and a lone single by Bill Cornie.

Lefthander John Alford made that lead stand up throughout the remainder of the crooked scattering six hits throughout the Belleville line-up and proving especially tough in the clutch.

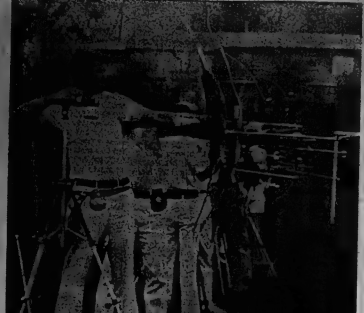
The Kinsmen's only serious scoring threat occurred with two out in the fourth inning. Singles by Paul Hall and Rick Meagher sandwiched around a walk gave Belleville the bases loaded before Alford was able to dispose of pinch - hitter Randy Burke on a fly ball.

The Brantford southpaw whiffed ten batters and issued a lone walk, while Shaw managed third strikes on nine batsmen, giving up a pair of free passes.

Paul Hall was the only Kinsmen to consistently solve Alford's deliveries rapping three singles. The other Belleville hits went to Meagher, Steve Moore and Brian Cousins.

The western - Ontario team started the best - of - three series by trumping the Kinsmen's ace hurler Garnie Adams in Saturday's 6-1 win. They collected nine hits off the slim right-hander and added another off reliever Stan Brooks who worked the seventh and eighth innings.

Pacifisher Pat Paquette, on the other hand, held the Kinsmen to a pair of singles by Glenn Carleton and an RBI-single by Hall as the game concluded to produce Belleville's only run of the series in the fourth inning.



The Kinsmen won the right to advance, against the defending OBA champion by beating Kingston for the Eastern Ontario title. The Belleville Juniors also won junior honors in Lakeshore League play this season.

Dying Swan

Even Glenn Carleton's swan-like leap into first base proved to be to no avail in Sunday's OBA play-down with Brantford. The Kinsmen outfielder was called out on the play during the course of Belleville's 4-0 loss to the visiting juniors.

The defeat, coupled with a 6-1 setback in Brantford Saturday, saw the local squad bow out of the semi-final series in two straight games. Brantford now goes on to meet Port Colborne for the Ontario championship.

Wayne Pullen shows the archery form that brought him a third place finish at the world championships this season as he competes in an Olympic Qualifying Tournament at Zwick's Island Saturday. Pullen set a Canadian record with a round of 1200 Sunday, but still finished second to Wayne Houser in the two-day competition.

Pullen Settles for Pin

Pullen got the pin, but no win, while Houser had a win, but no pin at the Olympic Archery Qualifying rounds at Zwick's Island this weekend.

The two archers locked in a double duel for a Canadian record and a win in the tournament were national teammember Wayne Pullen and London's Wayne Houser.

Windy conditions Saturday caused low scores in the first round of the two - day competitions but the archers bounced back Sunday with strong performances under ideal weather conditions. Pullen, a third - place finisher at the world championships this summer, recorded a 1200 round to become the first Canadian to ever achieve that mark.

Despite his record - setting honors and the prestige of a merit pin from the Federation of International Targets Archers, Pullen was unable to finish first as Houser staged a tremendous duel in the race for the 1200 mark and took top spot in the over-all standings.

Going into the final round of shooting Pullen needed 36 points on three arrows to reach the 1200 plateau, while Houser required a score of 28 on his final shots. The London archer fell just short with a 37-point effort to give him 1199, while Pullen was notching 36 points for a 1200 performance.

Houser recorded a 2339 total over the two days for first place, while his opponent scored 2306 on his over - all effort.

In the ladies section, Mary Grant of Windsor and Toronto's Linda Campbell both passed the 1100 plateau for the first time staging a battle of their own for top honors in the women's section.

Miss Grant, a member of the Canadian national team, finally emerged as the winner with a mark of 2121 compared to the 2180 effort of her Toronto rival. Belleville's Carol Armstrong, attempting to record two of four 1050 rounds she must shoot to qualify for the 1972 Munich Olympics, faulted in both rounds.

Angus Bruce of Kingston was the man's lone bow category, while Toronto archer Peter Craig took the honors in the men's professional section.

Receiving FITA pins for reaching the 1000 plateau were Honor Lemachier, Jim Walton and Brian Stauffer. Notching 1100 for the first time were Mary Grant, Linda Campbell, Lothar Jachal and Louis Vernon, while Pullen had his 1200 effort.

Carol Armstrong gained some consolation for her failure in the target competition by winning the Belleville Archery Club's open field competition Monday. Pullen also managed to add a first place finish to his laurels by topping the men's field.

A total of 50 archers took part in the two - day target event, with 25 competing in Monday's field competition.

Rollins Make Most Of Their Two Hits

Rollins offensive attack was not pretty, but effective, as they hung a 3-1 loss on Howard and Robert Printing Sunday to win the best-of-seven Commercial semi-final series four games to two.

The league pennant winners could scrape together only two hits for the entire contest, but tallied a pair of unearned runs in the sixth frame to tag Bob Ebbier with the loss.

Steve Haig's triple and a single by Wayne McTaggart accounted for the first Rollins' run, while their sixth inning rally featured two walks, two Howard and Robert errors, a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Ebbier struck out nine batters and walked four in a losing cause.

If Rollins' offensive efforts were suspect, their defensive play proved masterful, playing errorless ball while Wayne McConnell checked the Printers on two hits. The lone Howard and Robert run came on singles by Moe Hunter and Ken Genereaux in the second inning.

Plane's Elder Adams Puts Heat on Read

After seeing action virtually all season at the "hot corner", Plane's third baseman Larry Adams decided to apply the heat to Read. The converted infielder fired 10 innings of scoreless relief Monday to help his team to a 12-8 win and a 3-2 lead in the best - of - seven South Hastings baseball final.

Adams took over the Plane's pitching duties after starter Larry Lewis and potential reliever Ted Abrams had been ejected from the game in the sixth inning. The third member of the regular pitching rotation, Garnie Adams was still resting his arm from a weekend stint with the Belleville Kinsmen, leaving his oldest brother to shoulder the pitching burden.

Between them Lewis and Adams were raked for 21 hits over the course of the 17-inning contest, while Read starter Harold Pascoe and reliever Frank Farrell yielded 24 safeties.

Bob Lofman belted three singles and a double for the winners, while Bernie Coughlan, Ron Urch and Warren Hay each had three hits apiece. For Read, Pete Enright resumed his torrid hitting pace with five singles and a double. Cairn Milligan added a double and three singles and Pat O'Connor a trio of base hits.

Plane's had squared the series at two games apiece Sunday riding the four-hit pitching of Ted Abrams to a 6-1 win, while his teammates banged out 12 safeties off Frank Farrell and Larry Coffey of Read.

Lewis hammered a double and three singles for the winners with Hay, John Tweedy picking up two hits each. For the losers it was Steve White, Milligan, Paul Hanley and Pascoe, all with singles.

ROVERS PLAYING FIELD

The Belleville Rovers were playing the field no matter who held home advantage as they took a pair of exhibition matches from Kingston this weekend.

Sunday, the Belleville all-stars travelled to the Limestone City where they determined the Kingston Raiders by a 6-3 count.

In Monday game at Zwick's Island the Rovers continued their winning ways with a 3-1 win over Lou's Lions.

ANDY CAPP

Squirts Lose Opener

The SACO squirts had to work over-time to reach the all - Ontario OASA semi-finals only to see their effort sabotaged in a 7-3 first - game loss to the Zone 3 Champions from North Bendale.

SACO had captured the Zone 4 title Saturday by taking an 8-5 extra - inning decision from Palmerston. The Belleville team tallied three times in the eighth inning and Tim Soule hurled two innings of scoreless relief to give SACO the win.

Darrell Colman powered a homer and triple for the winners with Ken Bonisteel adding a triple double and single. Bob Hodge a triple and single and Andy Rossit three singles.

North Bendale hammered out 18 safeties off Soule while SACO could manage only four hits in Sunday's loss. Rossit had a homer and single for Belleville, while Hodge and Danny Vince collected the other hits.

In an exhibition post Saturday, Belleville stopped Fabenham 15-7. Rossit and Ron Begley combined for the win, while Doug Campbell slammed a homer and single and Paul Soule three singles for SACO. Tim Soule and Barry Trice with a pair of hits and Doc Buck with one were the other batsmen for the winners.

Crookston Loses Numbers Game

For four innings, Crookston might have thought they were going to get away with fielding an eight - man team for the second game of their Thurlow - Sidney softball final.

The first - game winners walked Thurlow batsmen by a respectable 3-2 margin until the fifth-inning roof fell in.

Five hits, two walks, and two Crookston errors resulted in an eight-run Dickens explosion in the fifth, as the Voyageurs went on to record a lopsided 19-3 win and even the series 1-1.

Norm Lockhart limited the losers to five hits, three by Larry Barnard. Lockhart, Don Bowry, and Bob Ellis each contributed two of the 11 Dickens' hits.

Twoed Bantams Take Big Stop

The Tweed Sawyer-Stoll bantams won the first leg of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association final series in convincing fashion Sunday with a 13-6 decision over Cayuga.

Jim Gaylord was the individual standout with a 19-strike-out performance and a home run. Teammate Bill Spencer cracked a pair of homers to lead the offensive department.

Tweed, which has never won an Ontario title, will attempt to wrap up the series this Sunday when they meet Cayuga in the Tweed fairgrounds in the second game.

Best Ball Day

The name of the game was best ball Sunday as two-ball tournaments at the Belleville Golf Club at Macyville.

Club men's champion Harold Werkhoven combined with Joan Hockings for an 83 to win the mixed event. Stan Callahan and Betty Kelsey also carded an 83, but lost the tie by virtue of their performances on the fourth hole.

Ken Sherwood and Jim McNamee took the men's honors with a 79.

Flyers Frozen

The Golden Mile pewees turned on the steam for a minor soccer win while the Panguins were left cold, stranded out of the deep, freeze.

After spotting Southwest Ham 3 as early lead, the Millers came back to record a 6-2 win on goals by Jim McSherry, and singles from Jim Tugnett, John Szuk, Daniel Thiffault and Stephen Kidworth. Raymond Bagley and Steve Coates scored for the losers.

Glen Woodley's four goals paced the Penguin pewees to a 5-0 win over the Flyers. David Cuff and Mike Bixby scored two goals each, and Richard Allen got the five-the boners, who got assists on goalkeeping from Warren McCann.

Hillier Bounces Back To Beat Mountain

Hillier bounced back with a vengeance Monday to trounce Mountain View 10-0 and square their best - of - seven North Shore play-off series at two games each. Mountain View had pulled ahead in the series with a 9-4 win Sunday.

Clarke Alexander was the man of the hour for Hillier, blanking the losers on a three-hit pitching performance. He whiffed 13 batters and yielded only one walk.

John Allison and Craig Mallie split the batting honors for the winners with three hits each, while Alexander had a pair of safeties. Ken Burkholder, Elgin Wyatt and Jim Barber had the only hits for the losers.

In Sunday's bout Gary Eardley came up with a five-hit pitching performance to lead Mountain View to the win. He received four-hit support from Burkholder with Ed Callow, Peter Moran, Greg O'Brien and Wyatt adding two hits each. The Hillier hit went to Pete Pettingill, Allison, Tom Licker, Alexander and Steve Carroll.

Claiming Shoe On Other Foot

Belleville driver Jerry Walsh, who made the year's first claim at Frontenac Downs last week, found the whip in the other hand Saturday as Larry Zebedee made the first claim of the season at the Quinte Raceway.

Zebedee, who had double wins for the night with Mikado and Rosin Bow, claimed Walsh's 33 - year - old mare, Lady Violet Direct in the third race of the Belleville card.

Derek Newman's Wil Lor Ben turned in a track record for 1971 with a 2:09.1 clocking in the seventh race.

BBC Says Sesame St. Class Show

LONDON (AP) — Sesame St., the American children's television program that has been translated and shown in 46 countries, has been turned down by the British Broadcasting Corp. as non-democratic and possibly dangerous for little Britons.

The BBC's children's program chief, Monica Sims, said the network was worried by what she called the American show's attempt o change children's behavior—"this sounds like indoctrination, and a dangerous extension of the use of television."

Miss Sims, announcing that the BBC would not buy the show, told reporters Monday she admired many parts of Sesame Street, but she noted that some educationists had criticized it for middle-class attitudes and lack of reality.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

The stomach has some powerful muscles. Their job is to churn food and prepare it for digestion. Unlike your leg and arm muscles, they work after you lie down — if you've had a midnight snack.

The trouble is we often take the stomach for granted. Until, overworked and misgeated, it rebels and reminds us we have a stomach by producing nausea and vomiting.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Don't you think most of us abuse our stomach? Doesn't it deserve a rest like the other organs in the body? — Miss O.

COMMENT: You've heard people say, "Harry (or Helen) is a wonderfully even - tempered person. He hardly ever gets upset. But when he does — look out!"

So it is with the stomach. It will take all kinds of abuse. Within a period of 24 hours it may bear many insults without complaint: overdrinking, overeating, overeating. Food may be spoiled, drink may be strong — but the stomach does not show any apparent resentment.

Then, one day it erupts in anger. After an eating or drinking bout, it will produce vomiting and distress. For the first time, the insular becomes the insulted. For the first time, we realize that the stomach deserves as much respect as we give our eyes, ears, arms, legs, heart or brain. For awhile, at least, we take care not to overburden it.

What it comes down to is this: The stomach deserves as much rest as other organs. When we read too much we stop. When we're exposed to noise that slams against our eardrums, we either get out of there, or cover our ears.

Likewise, the overworked stomach deserves protection.

People ask me if three extra - large meals are worse than six small ones. I advise yes.

"Don't you think," they say, "that we have a tendency to overeat on Sundays — big dinners and eating snacks all day?"

My feeling is that Sunday is a good day for resting the stomach. No regular "big Sunday dinners" or formal meals. In fact, many patients have told me the reason they have strong stomachs that give them little trouble is their habit of practically fasting all day on Sunday.

What it all comes down to, I guess, is that the stomach appreciates a rest every now and then — and shows its appreciation by not getting terribly upset.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm terribly afraid of becoming pregnant again. We have six children and consider our family is large enough. It's on my mind so much, I've become very nervous. I've considered having my tuber tied. My husband is willing to have a vasectomy. I'm afraid to take the pill. I hear that the IUD (intrauterine device) is not foolproof. I'm tired of all the old-fashioned preventive measures.

Yet, we haven't reached the stage where we would be content without any intercourse. What do you suggest? — Mrs. H.

COMMENT: A good long talk with your obstretician and gynecologist. As there are many pros and cons in the consideration of every form of contraception, the decision will be a wiser one if it is a combination of your own ideas and that of your doctors.

Alpha Brain Wave Fad Alarms Some Scientists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The visitor, a girl, perhaps 19 or 20 years old, hesitated in the door.

"Can we help you?" a woman asked.

Yes, the visitor replied. She said she had been feeling anxious and tense, not sleeping well. She said a girl-friend's mother had been helped by alpha brain waves and suggested it might help her too.

A few minutes later the visitor was seated on a thick carpet, back straight against the wall, legs tucked under her, eyes closed. A plastic band buckled around her head held two copper electrodes.

A wire went from each electrode to a black plastic box, the size of a small transistor radio, that she clutched in one hand. From the box came an eerie "beep, beep, beep."

The young woman was listening to the alpha waves in her brain, explained Dr. Marjorie Kawin-Toomin.

Dr. Toomin, a clinical psychologist with a private practice, and her husband Hershel, a consulting electronics engineer, are manufacturing and marketing a device they say monitors alpha waves, converts them into beeps and allows a person to increase alpha output far above normal.

This, they say, can change your life. They say the process can sharpen mental processes; perhaps improve your memory.

Dozens of organizations throughout the U.S. are involved in the growing alpha brain-wave fad, in which people seek to give their minds greater control over their bodies and, hence, their everyday lives.

But some veteran researchers into brain waves are beginning to warn that the alpha fad could become dangerous.

Patients taught over several weeks to substantially increase their alpha output claim they experience feelings of well-being, pleasure, tranquility, relaxation and a awareness of thoughts.

The whole business has left Fad. In which people seek to scientists disturbed.

"I'm very concerned that the people promoting alpha don't have enough reliable information," said Dr. Barbara Brown, a research specialist at the Veterans Administration Sepulveda Hospital in Los Angeles.

The manufacturers of biofeedback machines can't be sure they're measuring alpha waves and not some other brain activity due to eye blinking or other movement, she said.

She added that the over-all brain wave patterns of persons who have trained for a long period to produce alpha waves are similar to the brain-wave patterns of heroin addicts, mental patients with a certain type of schizophrenia, those highly susceptible to hypnosis and some children and adolescents whose behavior causes them to be labelled as "socially misfit."

It suggests, Dr. Brown said, that persons highly trained in alpha wave production also may be highly suggestible during their meditation.

The Toomins say they've seen no sign increased alpha is harmful. Nor do they see signs alpha might be a mind-altering or evolving into a culture of its own.

"People do get high on alpha like a drug," Dr. Toomin said. "But they don't come back to do it again like a drug high. It's not addictive."

Police Will Protect 'As Much as We Can'

BRANTFORD (CP) — Police will provide "as much protection as we can" for non-union workers at the Terpack Ltd. plant here, a spokesman said Monday night.

Judge R. W. Reville, commenting on statements last week by Insp. Gerald Rice that no guarantees of safety will be given, said in an interview "no police department can guarantee 100-per-cent protection."

. . . It will depend on the circumstances. We have no way of knowing how many men will be needed," Judge Reville said.

Insp. Rice had said Friday that warnings were given the 200 non-union workers who arrive by bus each day from Hamilton that "their safety is now management's responsibility."

However, he said Monday night: "There has never been any special protection" for the buses.

Ottawa Subsidy Covers Two-thirds of Surtax

Wages Subsidized

B.C. Will Pay For New Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Industry and labor were pessimistic and guarded in their reaction Premier W. A. C. Bennett's announcement Tuesday of a 50-per-cent wage subsidy for new jobs created to take workers off the British Columbia welfare rolls.

F. G. Peckett, president of the Employers' Council of B.C., said Tuesday night that subsidies are not sufficient incentives for industry to create new jobs.

"Jobs are created if the demand in the market place requires increased production," he said. "You can't make a job that way if it isn't required in the first place."

Mr. Bennett said that although the past summer has been a good one for employment in B.C., there are still many persons on welfare unable to get work.

"As an inducement to industry and all private enterprise, and in the public sector, for six months starting Nov. 1, all those people who have been on welfare or the public sector absorbs—and providing that they are not replacing anybody and are in additional jobs created and are paid at the prevailing rate—the Social Credit government will pay 33 per cent of the labor costs," the premier said in announcing the plan in Victoria.

A labor committee headed by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell was established by a special cabinet meeting. It includes Grace MacCarthy, minister without portfolio, "because this not only covers men, but covers women as well,"—Mr. Bennett said.

Jack Moore, president of the Western Canada section of the International Woodworkers of America, said he does not think subsidies of this nature will solve the problem of unemployment and large numbers on welfare.

"I'd like to know more about it," he said. "It sounds like it might have some good aspects but I can also see a lot of problems.

"If it is just for six months, what will happen to the people after the six months are up? Will they be put on the street again?

Opposition Doubts System Will Work

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hopes a subsidy program for industry will help Canadian exporters pierce new U.S. trade restrictions. Opposition MPs have their doubts.

Legislation to establish the subsidy program — covering up to two-thirds of the special U.S. import surtax — occupied the Commons throughout most of its first sitting Tuesday after the summer recess.

Argument was to resume today on Bill C-262, "an act to support employment in Canada by mitigating the disruptive effect on Canadian industry of the imposition of foreign import surtaxes or other actions of a like effect".

The bill would allocate $80 million for subsidies to Canadian export industries harmed by the 10-per-cent U.S. surtax and $300,000 for a seven-man board to administer the program. Both sums would cover the program for the remainder of the fiscal year ending next March 31.

Manufacturing or processing plants which have exported at least one-fifth of their production to U.S. markets would qualify for subsidies if the U.S. surtax were jeopardizing production and employment.

Eligible plants could receive up to 66 2/3 per cent of duties that would be applicable on their exports to the United States.

That would largely offset the impact of the import surcharge announced Aug. 15 by President Nixon as part of a series of measures designed to reduce

For Other Stories On House Opening See Page 17

U.S. reliance on imports and shore up the domestic economy.

As such, it constituted a defensive response to U.S. trade restrictions. Government ministers tried in vain Tuesday to win exemption for Canada from the import surcharge.

Other, unspecified measures might follow, government ministers told the Commons.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson said Canada may be forced to reconsider its close industrial and trade relations with the United States. In the face of opposition heckling, he declined to elaborate.

Mr. Benson suggested that the complete answer—withdrawal of the U.S. restrictions—depends on development of a new, international agreement governing currency — making them more closely attuned to

Dief Ill In Wales

LONDON (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker was described as "comfortable" today in a hospital in Wales where he was brought Tuesday after being taken ill while holidaying.

"He is being investigated for an abdominal disorder and is likely to remain in hospital for a few days longer," said a bulletin from the Maelor General Hospital in Wrexham, Denbigh County.

The 76-year-old Diefenbaker, Canada's prime minister between 1957 and 1963, was expected to undergo tests later today.

Text of the hospital's morning bulletin:

"The condition of Mr. John Diefenbaker, who was admitted yesterday, continues to be comfortable.

"Mr. Diefenbaker was taken ill while holidaying with friends in the Dolgellau area and the doctors thought it advisable for him to have hospital care and to rest for a few days.

"He is being investigated for an abdominal disorder and is likely to remain in hospital for a few days longer."

Ulster Peace Talks Refused By Catholics

BELFAST (CP- AP) — Roman Catholic opposition leaders turned down today a British bid for peace talks despite a warning by a Protestant political leader that to do so raises the spectre of outright civil war in Northern Ireland.

A series of bomb explosions struck the capital.

Fears of an impending offensive by gunmen of the outlawed Irish Republican Army sent Britain's top soldier flying from London to review the military setup.

Two bombs exploded in Belfast after midnight Tuesday night, one at an army veterans club and the other at a small factory. Five persons were taken to hospital with undisclosed injuries.

Another bomb blasted a shop in Belfast's Finaghy Road early this morning, but no one was hurt.

A British soldier guarding army barracks in Newry was shot in the foot by a gunman. He fired back but the army said it was not known whether the gunman was hit.

The British peace move was announced in London after two days of summit talks between Prime Minister Edward Heath and Irish Republic Premier Jack Lynch that ended Tuesday in icy dispute over ways of stopping the bloodshed in the north. One hundred lives have been lost in the last two years.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling invited all sections of Northern Ireland's feuding communities to a roundtable conference aimed at giving the Catholic minority "an active, permanent and guaranteed role" in Ulster, ruled by Protestants for 50 years.

Maudling insisted that all who attended the conference must renounce violence and civil disobedience. His proposal was turned down scornfully by the Social Democratic and Labor party and by the Civil Rights Association, which claims to speak for most northern Catholics.

"The talks stand no chance of getting off the ground," said Bernadette Devlin, member of the British Parliament and a leader in the civil disobedience campaign protesting the government's internment of more than 200 IRA suspects.

Miss Devlin and other influential Catholics were urged by Basil Glass, chairman of the pro-government Alliance party, to join the talks or "civil war becomes inevitable."

"It would be a civil war that no one can win and in which countless families will be bereaved," Glass said.

Official sources meanwhile disclosed the arrival in Belfast of Gen. Sir Michael Carver, chief of Britain's general staff. He flew from London for talks with officers commanding 12,500 British troops on peacekeeping duties in Ulster.

The sources said Carver's mission was to examine ways of increasing security along the 260-mile border with the Irish Republic.

IRA gunmen flit back and forth across the largely-unmarked frontier in guerrilla warfare operations designed to drive Britain out of Northern Ireland and reunite it with the independent republic in the south.

Schreyer Chastises Borowski

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer placed a stern hand on the reins of his cabinet Tuesday, reprimanding Highways Minister Joe Borowski for his personal attack on abortion and threatening expulsion for those guilty of intolerance and public insubordination.

Mr. Schreyer said in his strongest-yet statement of authority: "I do not readily accept —I will not accept—a course of action to be followed by one of my ministers which calls into question the rights, sincerity and conviction of a person who holds an opinion which is markedly different."

A statement has been sent to ministers warning that public policy disagreements will no longer be tolerated.

"Anyone who can't abide by it," said Mr. Schreyer, "I expect they will resign."

Nixon to Campaign For Cut in Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is setting out immediately and in person to campaign in Congress for approval of the tax cuts built into his new economic policy.

Congress reconvened today to deal with business left behind for a month's recess, and to begin work on the new economic package.

The president arranged to appear before a joint session of House of Representatives and Senate at 12:30 p.m. EDT/ Thursday to urge approval of his plan to combat inflation and unemployment. The address will be carried live on radio and television.

The first session of the 92nd Congress was faced with a substantial workload even before Nixon recommended a series of tax measures on Aug. 15, when he announced his 90-day freeze on wages and prices.

Now the economic package, and the response of Democrats who control Congress, is sure to be a dominant issue in the balance of a session likely to run into winter.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally was the first witness as the House ways and means committee opened hearings on the Nixon program, which includes a 10-per-cent business investment tax credit, repeal of the seven-per-cent business investment tax credit, repeal of the seven-per-cent excise tax on new automobiles, and a speedup to Jan. 1, 1973, for a $50 increase in personal income-tax exemptions.

Second Town Faces Forest Fire Threat

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — A rapidly-spreading forest fire today was within 8½ miles of this major northern centre, the second community in two weeks threatened in a rash of fires this summer in the Northwest Territories.

Winds of 20 miles an hour were forecast for today, which would fan the fire toward this town of 3,500 people, a principal supply and transportation route into the Canadian Arctic.

The fire raced five miles Tuesday and winds today will be brutal, a spokesman said.

An emergency measures official said Tuesday night the fire is "way out of control" and burning fiercely in thick stands of tree-commercial spruce and pine.

Rudy Steiner, EMO co-ordinator for the N.W.T., estimated the size of the fire at several times the 800 acres it covered Monday.

Mr. Steiger said the region is so dry fires go through normally-soggy muskeg and dried-up swamps "like they were hay meadows."

Pete Ferguson, chief fire control officer for the Mackenzie forest service, was due here today to take charge of the fire.

Mr. Ferguson, who directed operations in a fire 80 miles east of here which last week threatened the mining community of Pine Point, said Tuesday the fire appeared safe.

Mr. Steiner said a major concern was the thick forest at one point is adjacent to a modern section of the town. Heavy equipment was to be moved in today to clear the area for a fireguard.

Two Men Tied And Set Afire

BOSTON (AP) — One man was killed and another critically burned Tuesday after they were attacked at gunpoint, lashed together, doused with gasoline and set afire, police said.

The dead man was identified as William Evans, 21, of Boston.

Louis Fobbs, 38, of Boston, was in hospital in critical condition.

The two burned men were found in a first-floor room of the three-family house in the Roxbury section. Residents of upper floors had called the fire department when the fire broke out.

Police took the two burned men to the hospital. On the way they said Evans, who was conscious, told them that man a with a gun burst into the apartment, forced them to sit on the floor, tied them back to back, and poured gasoline over them.

Then he threw a lighted match and fled.

Diversion Suggested

City council some months ago retained the engineering firm of Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates to a north-south arterial traffic route study for the municipality and their report is currently being prepared.

But in the meantime, a private citizen has come up with an idea which he feels would do much to relieve much of the current rush hour traffic congestion on North Front Street.

The idea is to widen North Front Street south from the railway bridge to Earl Street, then to develop Earl Street and Coleman Street as a through route to Dundas St., thus diverting traffic around the city's downtown area.

Acting city manager Adam Stalker said the proposal was directed to the city's consultants for consideration.

U.S. Import Tax Hits Local Firms

Some ten per cent surtax imposed on dutiable imports by the American government has hit two local industries and layoffs can be expected in the future if the tax remains in effect.

"It's not so much between the lines" said a spokesman for Electronic Controls Ltd., a Belleville company that produces educational training aids for vocational schools and exports 60 per cent of its products to the United States.

Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., now supplying and installing reinforced concrete for the Xerox building in Rochester, N.Y., also has been hit by the surtax, but the extent of the impact is not yet fully known.

"We began developing American markets last year when the Ontario construction industry slowed down," said vice-president and general manager James Clarke. "We expected our American contracts would provide employment for 15 or 20 man this year and if the surtax remains in effect for six months our forecast employment will be down by 15 or 20 men. If it stays on for a year, 30 people may be affected."

Because Wilson's American market is less than 20 per cent of its production, the government subsidies announced yesterday will be of no help. The federal government has proposed to save industrial jobs with subsidies that would offset up to two-thirds of the 10 per cent U.S. import surcharge for companies exporting 20 per cent or more of their production.

The concrete products plant is paying a tariff of $18,000 on the products it is supplying for the new building. The surcharge will double this amount "but we're not so clear on how this is to be imposed" said Mr. Clarke.

"We could be forced to open a plant down there," he added.

Electronic Controls is also investigating the feasibility of manufacturing its products for the American market in the United States.

The company has already laid off eight people. About 60 are now employed at the plant.

"The surtax is a serious concern to us all," said the company spokesman. "We have material here ready to ship, and the surtax must be paid immediately; we can't take material into the U.S. until the tax is paid."

Timing is of the essence, the Electronic Control spokesman said, if the government relief is to be of any assistance to the firm.

"How fast the surtax assistance comes is vital," he said.

The company's competitors are all American and can ship into Canada duty-free because Canada admits educational materials without a tariff. The American government has always charged duty on educational material.

Compounding Electronic Controls problems is the devalued American dollar. That works to the advantage of the American firms shipping to Canada, but hits the Canadian company exporting to the United States.

Subsidy Covers Part Tax

market forces of supply and demand.

The government backed up its proposed subsidy legislation with a trio of ministers during almost five hours of debate Tuesday.

Jean-Luc Pepin, minister of industry, trade and commerce, sponsored the bill. He acknowledged that the bill was hastily drafted following announcement of the U.S. measures Aug. 15. But he said details of application would be spelled out in accompanying regulations.

Mr. Pepin said a quick government survey showed the U.S. action could cost anywhere between $300 million and $800 million in annual exports and 20,000 to 40,000 jobs, depending on how long the import surtax was maintained.

Mr. Benson argued that the Canadian economy was picking up and the initial impact of the U.S. restrictions should not be too severe.

But he said the U.S. action raises basic, long-term questions about whether Canada should continue to rely on trade agreements that provide access to the U.S. market for Canadian industrial output.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, the third government minister to speak, said the subsidy program would cover processors of Canadian produce for export—provided the processors continued paying farmers current rates.

Farmers otherwise hit by the U.S. restrictions would be compensated through the existing Agricultural Stabilization Act, which subsidizes farmers when produce prices decline below established levels.

Opposition parties agreed to waive other business and debate the new bill immediately. But they expressed doubts about its adequacy and motive.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield charged that the bill served too limited a purpose and did nothing to deal with high unemployment existing before the Aug. 15 measures.

David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the government was being deceitful in pretending that $80 million in subsidies would save what he said would amount to 70,000 jobs.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said it is baloney to try to blame the United States for Canadian unemployment, then put up $80 million as a cure. Instead, he said, the government should repeal the 12-per-cent federal tax on manufactured goods to stimulate the economy.

Max Saltsman (Waterloo), NDP financial critic, said the basic problem stemmed from the government's failure to free Canada from virtually-complete economic dependence on the United States.

President Pitches In

A cheque was presented to ARC Industries yesterday by John Knott president of the United Transportation Union (seated) to be put toward new equipment for the workshop for the mentally retarded and to renovate the building. George Botting, president of the Belleville and District Association for the Mentally Retarded, accepted the cheque, and gave Mr. Knott a hand in making a cereal box. George McGrimmon (left) and Margaret-Mary Wood are two of the people employed by the firm.

Railroaders' Pay Goes to ARC

ARC Industries, a workshop for mentally retarded, was presented with a cheque yesterday from the United Transportation Union to aid in renovations and purchasing of equipment for the building.

Representing the Union was president John Knott who later, after the ceremonies, joined the group at the workbench to try his hand at performing some of the tasks done by the shop.

"Local companies contract us to package items and construct cardboard boxes. This sort of activity does several things," said a spokesman for the shop. "It teaches the workers how to be constructive while being with their own peer group and gives them a small income that acts as an incentive to achieve more."

The money donated by the UTU has an interesting story behind it," said George Botting, president of the Belleville and District Association for the Mentally Retarded. "When steam locomotive 5218 was driven through Belleville on the retirement run, the trainmen and conductors working on the train donated their pay to the union who in turn donated the money to the workshop.

"We rely on funding from community services and charity groups, but donations like this really keep us above water," said Mr. Botting.

Solicitor to Study Land Split

An atmosphere of apprehension prevailed during the debate last night between a local landowner and Sidney Township council as both parties seeked to reach an agreement whereby the owner would be able to build a house on his land in exchange for a road access across the concerned property.

While it appeared that the owner, Paul Apperley, was prepared to offer more concessions than required of him according to the provincial planning act and township bylaws, council was reluctant to accede to his proposals without first having a written guarantee to build a road within a certain time limit or to have a performance bond deposited before agreement was reached.

Mr. Apperley maintained that he is willing to build a road through his property on lot 13, concession eight, after 75 percent of his land had been sold or subdivided, and that a performance bond amounting to $3,000 would be deposited when only 25 percent of the land had been sold.

"This figure of $3,000 was reached between my lawyer, Bob Ord, and myself as my share of the cost of building that road if we can make Harry Cook, a neighbor, live up to his part of the agreement," Mr. Apperley told council.

"I'm for progress, but there's nothing in either the planning act or township bylaws that requires me to build a road just because I want to build a house on my land, is there?" he demanded.

He stressed that the reason he was seemingly pushing his application was that he wanted to complete his house this winter, but at the moment he wasn't prepared to subdivide his land, a statement that worried council.

"To say that you will give a performance bond when 25 percent of the land is sold, and the road built when 75 percent of the land is sold, doesn't really mean a thing," Jack Bush, township reeve, stated.

"Well, then, you might as well get a subdivider's agreement now," Mr. Apperley shot back. "I think that my offer to give a performance bond should be more than good. To have a performance bond given before an agreement is signed is like having an unfair burden on myself, playing what amounts to an insurance policy, payable every year."

"Yes, but to say that a performance bond will be given when a certain amount or any amount of land is sold doesn't guarantee anything, does it? I mean, does it mean the road will be built within two or three years, or in our lifetime, right?" Mr. Bush demanded.

Mr. Apperley agreed.

"But, at the last council meeting, on date was ever discussed and I thing this proposal is very fair," Mr. Apperley stated.

"But doesn't mean it will be subdivided, does it?" Mr. Bush reiterated. He received a negative answer.

"Let's say, for argument's sake, that a subdivider should buy the land, then we have no control. We can't force one man to build a road over another man's land, can we?" Mr. Bush inquired.

"Then, we're coming back full circle," Mr. Apperley stated.

"As far as I'm concerned, if a performance bond is given before, then we'll know there'll be a road built if the land is sold or subdivided," Gordon Wilman, deputy reeve, said.

It appeared from the discussions that an earlier verbal agreement between council and another landowner was not fulfilled, and council was hesitant to enter into another similar agreement without first obtaining some sort of guarantee.

Mr. Apperley emphasized the fact repeatedly that he's not a person to back out of an agreement, that he's here to stay and asked council to judge himself on the work done thus far on the concerned land.

But, after nearly two hours of debate, council only agreed to seek advice from the township's solicitors on Mr. Apperley's proposals, copies of which would be made available to council before September 22.

However, after months of discussion, an agreement does not appear to be near and council seems to be willing to take as much time as required to obtain the best possible and practical agreement before acceptance to Mr. Apperley's proposals regarding his house.

Youthful Rationale

Elsewhere on this page is a letter from one of the "now generation." It has to do with the federal youth's committee's report and it clarifies the thinking of youth if only to the extent that it exposes their extreme immaturity.

The letter is full of cliches, banalities and generalisations. Its writer admits to the ideas and values of Chairman Mao, claiming that young Canadians "do want radical changes in commercial life and the basic structures of government."

What does Mark Willcocks mean by that? What sort of changes would he advocate? Putting the establishment and the executive class to work as in China? Maybe that would not be such a bad idea. And what about those early morning exercises? Indeed, we might all be a lot healthier, but then does strenuous exercise fit in with the ideas of the young today? Casual observation would suggest not in many cases. But what else does youth have in mind today? Legalized marijuana? Is that the sort of thing the young would have as the norm in today's society. Heaven help us, we've decadent enough without compounding it with further idiocies.

Young Willcocks complains that government is a tool of the adult generation, the so-called "older" generation as he puts it, forgetting that one day he will be in the same category and, hopefully, no longer wet behind the ears. He says nothing about the need to work for a living (many of course get by on panhandling, loafing, and living off government handouts), and certainly nothing along the lines of what the late John Kennedy said in his inaugural address: "Ask not what your country can do for you . . . ask what you can do for your country." No, there is nothing in this letter about work, or patriotism.

There is this however: "Just remember that we want to build Canada, not destroy it . . . but then the letter continues, condescendingly, as if we should all be lined up to lead this young man and his kind to the promised land:" "So here's what you can do: do so that we can work with you, not against you (he does not say what we can do), "We're not coming into your system on your terms. What it boils down to is, will you let us in on our terms or do we have to force our way in?"

Thus, as can be the case, the letter becomes threatening and you get an inkling of what it would be like if we were obliged to run our society the way this young man would, or if Maoists, whom he evidently admires, had their way. You cannot run a country on slogans or by loafing on main street or by vague theorizing or by ranting against an adult society the young themselves must one day join. Far better that the young co-operate with society to make it work better for all, in time-honored democratic fashion. That way there is a satisfying place for everyone.

Immigrant Problems

The language barrier and rude, petty officials in Government agencies, including police power, are among the problems of Portuguese immigrants in Canada, according to an article in The Globe and Mail. But you don't have to be an immigrant with scant knowledge of English to encounter rudeness at the official level these days. For example a newsman inquiring about some hassle between the wife of Finance Minister Benson and the income tax department in Kingston was told by a national revenue spokesman that the matter was "none of your business." Well it may have amounted to little, a misplaced form apparently, and all smoothed over, it turned out, but since the income tax people make our business very much their business then the reverse is also true. That being so they should guard that forked tongue stuff and, as public servants, mind their manners. As Benson by contrast noted with a chuckle: "I understand it was a mistake." The bigger he is the more polite a man tends to be. Indeed has anyone ever seen Mr. Benson lose his cool as they say, even in face of the kind of pressure that has been his lot in recent years?

Time to Stare

Whatever the merits of the computer system the city installed, to bring some greater degree of consistency to the traffic light scene it is still quite a grind getting around here. There is a lot of stopping and starting and being baked in the downtown sun as one waits for the green light. Time though to contemplate the truth of those words of poet W. H. Davies — as we are often obliged to do also at the Bay Bridge — "What is this life if full of care we have no time to stand and stare."\

The Vague Rationale of Today's Youth

Ever Wonder Why There Is A 'Generation Gap?'

Letter In The Montreal Gazette

On Friday Aug. 27, The Gazette was good enough to give Mr. Charles Lynch a turn to talk about youth, a topic with which he is evidently not very well acquainted. The purpose of the report on youth was to try to get people like Mr. Lynch to see and understand the views of the young people of Canada. However, it would appear to have failed dismally in Mr. Lynch's case.

Mr. Lynch has seen fit to completely ignore the fact that this report is the result of interviews with over ten thousand young Canadians. Instead he claims it is the work of "political agitators." He refuses to accept the possibility that my generation might be different from his, even though the changes in the world in the last 30 years are obvious to even the most blind observer.

The people of Canada did not pay $500,000 to have three men draw up a revolutionary manifesto; they did not pay to have these men make new laws for Canada. They did pay these men to find out about Canadian youth, and that is just what was done. The alienation of young people in this country was examined, and some collective suggestions on how to end this alienation and re-involve young people in the "system". If the report says "the system" stinks and must be changed forthwith," it is because this is what Canadian youth says. If parts of the report have been "taken directly from the wall posters of the cultural revolution that rocked China," it is not due to some Maoist plot, but because the ideas and values of the posters are ideas also held by young Canadians. Young Canadians do want radical changes in commercial life and the basic structures of government. The report outlines a few of these changes.

There are two groups of young people in this country. Those who couldn't care less about what happens around them, and those who can. Those who couldn't care less have given up. They see the government as a tool of their parents. It caters to the desires of those people who seem to run the world, the so called "older" generation.

The only contacts a young person has with the government are when he pays his eight per cent sales tax, when he gets pushed into some government-run project, aimed at keeping him off the street, which is rarely run by young people, but is run by and for older people, at their convenience, or when he or one of his friends is busted. As they see it, the society in which they live ignores them, so they ignore it.

But there is another group. They still believe that it is possible to build a better Canada in co-operation with the government. The report is saying, "look, this is what young people want. This is what they believe is necessary to find the problems of Canada today. Now it's your turn. Make your moves. You have a chance now to either drive us right out of your system and alienate an entire generation, or to join with us to build a better country with better people. But we won't be coopted. We're serious, and we hope they will be too. We want real change, just tokenism. Just remember that we want to build Canada, not destroy it. So here's what you can do so that we can work with you, and against you. We're not coming into your system on your terms. What it boils down to is, will you let us in on our terms or do we have to force our way in?"

It seems that Mr. Lynch would prefer Canadian youth to be the quiet, passive, apathetic type rather than the sort of Canadian who cares enough about people to want changes in our country. But that is not how it is going to be. Young Canadians are saying to the powers that be, "Let us in or we'll have to knock down the door." We are realising that this is our country too, and we have the right to improve it with every means at our disposal. The report outlines what we want and need. Now it's your turn. We want in, but do you want us?

Heath and Lynch Confer on Tense Ulster Situation

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — The mounting scale of terror in Northern Ireland gives extra urgency to the talks between British Prime Minister Heath and Irish Dublin counterpart, Jack Lynch.

More soldiers have been gunned down in fresh eruptions of violence. But beyond this, the situation has taken on an added dimension of tragedy with the explosion of bombs which, at peak business hours, have maimed innocent civilians in downtown areas of Belfast.

The bomb blasts, causing hysteria as well as bloodshed, remind observers of the ruthless tactics employed at the height of the civil strife in Algeria a decade ago.

Moreover, the Ulster situation bears comparison with other epic bloodbaths of recent history, such as the terror in Palestine before and after the Second World War.

The tactics of the clandestine Irish Republican Army—or at least of its right-wing provisional faction—have spurred the majority Protestants in Northern Ireland to new extremes of backlash anger.

Former members of the B Specials, a now-disbanded volunteer police force hated by Ulster's Roman Catholics, are threatening to take a vigilante-style role in the anti-IRA fight.

And the prospects of civil war loom up at the very mention of the thousands of guns currently stockpiled by Protestants as well as Catholics.

Ulster also gives rise to worries international in scope, beginning with the increasing friction between Ulster Britons and Irish Republic about clashes along the disputed border dividing the North from independent southern Ireland.

Even without the border blow-ups, Ulster has a place on the international stage since militant Catholics in the North have already protested to the world at large about the internment, policy introduced in the six-odden six counties.

Some left-wingers in Britain have joined in the suggestion that London would eventually wash its hands of the Ulster problem, leaving all Ireland to be brought together in due time under the Dublin government.

But Ulster Prime Minister Brian Faulkner vows that his Protestant-dominated Unionist government will resist this kind of solution to the end.

In any case it's evident that Ireland has again become a diplomatic issue in British domestic politics, threatening once more to drag prominent Westminster statesmen to their ruin as it has done so often in the past.

It is apparent too that the fate of Prime Minister Lynch in Ireland rides on the outcome of the present explosive situation.

The blood-soaked Ulster problem thus threatens to engulf politics throughout the British Isles in new waves of confusion and crisis.

Does the Irish Republic Really Want Unity?

From a letter in
The Globe and Mail

It is hardly a state secret that politicians in the South (of Ireland) have used the issue of the border and the fate of their co-religionists in Ulster to divert the electorate's attention from the serious social and economic problems of the Republic — high unemployment, emigration, low economic growth rate, maldistribution of wealth, minimal social services, exploitation under tax shelters of Ireland's resources by wholly owned foreign corporations, etc.

Furthermore, political dynasties have grown up in the Republic in the years since the Anglo-Irish treaty (1921), and it is hardly seems likely that the present political elite would welcome the challenge in its monopoly of political power that a united Ireland including one million Ulster Protestants would represent.

Nor, it is safe to assume, would the Roman Catholic hierarchy welcome such a development. The clergy is at the very centre of the establishment in the Republic. Its members are related to members of the political elite; its control over public education at all levels is enormous; and its power over the rural voters is almost absolute. The Catholic clergy then stands to lose power and prestige in a united Ireland, and it would be rash to assume that they are not aware of this.

For all of these reasons, I think that Prof. Boyle's belief in the inevitability of a united Ireland and his scheme for it bringing it about are unrealistic.

U.S. Motorists Viewed As Better Drivers Than Is The General Rule Here

Ottawa Journal

A 1,400-mile holiday trip through Ontario, Quebec and three northern U.S. states provides at least a disturbing perspective on the driving habits of Ottawa motorists.

What a joy are Montreal's freeways compared to our Queensway — no lanehoppers or people who drive 50 miles an hour in the passing lane, but instead people who know enough to get into the exit lane a mile in advance of the exit, and who give the proper signal in the process!

In the villages, towns and cities of New Hampshire, Vermont and New York states driver courtesy to pedestrians and other drivers seems the rule rather than the exception, and on the winding two - lane highways truckers actually pull over to allow hurrying tourists to speed on their way!

It makes doubly disturbing Ottawa's too-frequent cases of a Queensway driver, skipping across three lanes in heavy traffic without a signal or, a big, pour-leave, of too many drivers who pull out from a street curb without so much as a glance at the traffic behind; and of our dangerous tendency to regard yellow caution lights as an invitation to roar through intersections.

Council Challenged On Location of Apartments

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Some weeks ago I was present at one of Belleville's council meetings. I had great hopes that I could listen to a debate about a high rise apartment which should be erected on one of Belleville's most beautiful streets. I was very eager to find out how Council would react.

Mr Robb, a lawyer, outlined very well why high rise apartments should not be built in residential sectors. The reason was sound and I was convinced that everyone of the public who was at this meeting, including some of our city representatives, had to agree with what was said. I personally said a few words on this matter. After finishing, the people gave me every reason to believe that the citizens of Belleville were opposing such a construction.

For two hours I waited to hear what our Council would have to say. My time was wasted. Nobody ever came back to this important question for all of Belleville's citizens.

May I ask why City Council ignored the wishes of the people? Is it not the duty of our representatives to play the democratic rules? Was it against the law? It should be the case. I would like to ask why dollars after dollars have to be wasted on city planning when anybody can either the face of this city? Isn't the reason to have a planning board to prevent this, to see and to act in such a way that no monster buildings of any kind, no shed or trailer can be placed in a group of bungalows or family houses, and that a family home cannot be built in the middle of apartment blocks for business reasons? It is our times force us to build high rise apartments and skyscrapers why not build those on a suitable section on the outskirts of the city, or give our Front Street a new life? I am sure there will be no objection to starting right on the corner of Bridge and Front Street. That awful looking sight may be a good place for a mass of concrete and steel.

But for heaven's sake stop erecting more high rise apartments in any kind of residential areas. If we don't one day we will realize our great mistake, our children will be the first to see it. Just imagine what we are standing on a corner in East or West Hill, the Parkdale or on any other parts of the city and all that we can see are walls and walls of ugly looking high rises once friendly, kind people will become as cold as the concrete and stone where children have to live like prisoners. Even the trees, the flowers and the sound of the birds will be left only as a memory.

Please let Belleville keep its own character. Don't destroy its beauty.

H. E. AMANN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Recently we drew attention to the setting aside in the bigger cities of land for apartment blocks which do not conflict with existing housing areas, and asked if there were no such land in Belleville for this purpose.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sept. 8, 1971 . . .

Harvard University was founded 336 years ago today — in 1636—when the colony of Massachusetts voted to set up a college. It took its name in 1639 from a local Puritan minister who bequeathed his library and half of his fortune to the new college, the preceding year. The College was formally opened in 1642 and Harvard's history runs unbroken since that time.

1951—Japan and the United States signed the San Francisco peace treaty.

1949—Composer Richard Strauss died.

1944—Canadian troops captured Ostende.

1944—First V-2 rockets landed in England.

1943—Italy's Badoglio government surrendered to the Allies.

1939—Germany was admitted to the League of Nations.

1920—The United States began the first transcontinental airmail.

1864—The Dutch colony of New Amsterdam, now New York City, surrendered to the British.

Road Closing Bylaw Said Wrong for More Than 40 Years

One of the more interesting problems was presented to Sidney Township council last night when Harold Detlor outlined what appears to be an omission in a road closing bylaw enacted over 40 years ago.

In 1929, Mr. Detlor contended that a bylaw closing a road running from Highway 14 to Oak Lake was not properly worded and as a result, a small portion is still legally open, but council was perplexed as to whether this is so.

Producing a letter outlining the original agreement, Mr. Detlor stated that the road crossed both lots 25 and 26, but only lot 26 was mentioned in the bylaw. He stressed that further land transactions in the area will cause difficulties, and mentioned the fact that numerous surveys failed to agree on where boundaries lay.

Council agreed that the intention was to include lot 25 but, technically, the bylaw does not include it.

Mr. Detlor stated that he was intending to seek his lawyer's advice on the point raised.

Mr. Detlor is owner of lot 26.

In other business, Ghent subdivision residents are seeking street lighting and council stated that estimates from Ontario Hydro have been received and immediate studies will be made to ascertain the cost to each householder in the area. Hydro stated that it would cost $108 a year for three lights.

The township's roads superintendent Charles Fair, presented the August accounts and a sum of $53,108.25 had been spent. Several road gradings and rebuilding projects were discussed and the Sidney-Bathurst road was stated to be slated for immediate work.

During August, 77 building permits were issued for a total evaluation of $325,100. The fire department reported that five alarms costing $114 were received in July, while August saw a total of 13 alarms costing $468. A total amount of $280.58 was spent in July for new equipment and supplies, while an amount of $91.43 was Remitted for the month of August.

Council Approves New Appointments

TRENTON (Staff) — Appointments and resignations were the order of the evening as council resumed official duties here last night after the summer recess.

In one major item of business assistant commissioner of works and planning officer was officially given the job of commissioner of works vacated last month by Arthur Campbell.

Councillor George Greer was appointed to fill the town's seat on the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board of Governors, a position he has long shown interest in. As a member of the Quinte District Labor Council, his appointment, in effect, gives labor a voice, though not an official one, on the board.

Doug Whitley was recommended by Councillor Paul Tripp to fill a chair on the Trenton Suburban Roads Commission left vacant with the death of Richard "Dick" Whitley. Council accepted the recommendation.

No Replacement, however, was found for the resigning chairman of the Community Gardens Board, Vern Nutley. Council will seek to find a replacement for Mr. Nutley within the next two weeks.

Bylaw Sought To Bar Turns

City council will be asked to pass a bylaw to bar left hand turns from Dundas Street West, through a private laneway owned by Reid's Dairy onto Parker St.

A recommendation from City Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie for the bylaw was approved at yesterday's meeting of the city traffic committee and was referred to city council.

The private laneway between Dundas and Parker Sts. was opened by Reid's as a convenience for dairy patrons following the deadending of Highland Ave. resulting from the reconstruction of Dundas Street.

But as the laneway is not a public thoroughfare, no provision for left hand turns for eastbound traffic was made in the roadway design.

Ballet Teacher Pioneers in New Field

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

The green - eyed girl with the elfin face and delicately chiselled features seems absorbed in her music book. One of those concert pianist types, you conclude. Or perhaps an aspiring soprano.

Suddenly, she looks up from her book and makes a graceful, balletic movement with her arms. Strange? Yes, a little bit, especially as she repeats this and similar gestures from time to time. The mystery deepens as you look more closely at her book. The lines across the page look like musical staves all right, but those funny-looking symbols aren't notes at all!

Intrigued, you strike up a conversation with her and solve the mystery. Slim 24 - year - old Sandra Caverly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Caverly of 24 Hutton Drive, is a choreologist and belongs to a very exclusive band indeed!

Choreology or the science of movement has only 33 fully qualified experts in the whole world and Sandra Caverly is the 33rd!

Miss Caverly, a teacher at the National Ballet School in Toronto has just returned from England where she graduated with the highest honors from the Institute of Choreology, London and was the only student in her group who was awarded an associateship of the Institute.

How does it feel, at the age of 24 to be a recognized expert in such a difficult field, to teach at the National Ballet School and to rub shoulders in the course of her everyday life with such celebrities as Veronica Tennant and Betty Oliphant?

"I'm still so excited about it all!" she bubbles with the fluorescent smile of a girl in love. "Ballet just grips hold of you. It demands a lot from you but I just can't bear to be away from it for long."

In an interview conducted on one of her rare visits home, Miss Caverly was asked about the Institute of Choreology, the scene of her latest triumph. She replied that it is run by Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Benesh, inventors of the Benesh system of movement notation — a method by which every movement and position of the dancer can be recorded on paper by a series of symbols. A kind of shorthand for recorded movement instead of speech. In other words!

Elaborating further on the fascinating subject of movement notation, Miss Caverly explained that it can be used in dance, gymnastics and medicine. In ballet, it is an invaluable asset because a choreologist can get the "score" (to borrow a term from music) for each ballet and teach the dancers their individual parts. This had to be done by the choreographer until the system of movement notation was invented. Miss Caverly also pointed out that if each dancer had a copy of the "score" she could read beforehand, this would improve the standard of the production because then more time can be devoted to perfecting and polishing up the performance.

Asked what other courses besides movement notation she took during her three years at the Institute, she replied that she also studied art, music, physiology, composition and choreography in order to become a fully qualified choreologist. "We work an average of 18 hours a day" she recalled. "But recording a ballet is so fascinating, one can get quite lost in the work." she continued. "There is so much work to do. All the ballets in the National Ballet Company's repertoire have to be recorded."

This year, when she goes back to Toronto, she will also be teaching movement notation in the Fine Arts department of York University, besides continuing to teach at the National Ballet School. York, she believes will be the only University in North America to offer a course in movement notation.

Miss Caverly who has been with the National Ballet School for eight years as a student and teacher recalled that she started her ballet training in Montreal at the age of five. After graduating from high school she was accepted as a student of the National Ballet School, which every ballet enthusiast knows works in close co-operation with the National Ballet company. After two years she was offered a position on the staff of the school and she assisted Betty Oliphant to teach, while she continued her studies at the same time. Finally she became a full time teacher of ballet.

A teacher at the school Miss Joan Geddes got her interested in choreology and movement notation and when Miss Geddes left, Miss Caverly was given the job of heading the notation department in addition to her other duties.

Finally she received a Canada Council grant to study at the London Institute and today she is one of the few fully qualified choreologists in Canada.

Outside ballet, her interests are theatre, Canadian history and folk music. She enjoys visiting her many friends in Montreal and London, Ontario and of course her parents in Belleville.

Any plans for marriage in the near future? The pretty young choreologist laughs. "I enjoy mixing with all types of people in and outside the ballet profession but at present I'm too busy for serious romance," she asserts.

Reading A Ballet "Score"

Miss Sandra Caverly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Caverly of 24 Hutton Drive, "reads" ballet movements from a series of symbols known as the Benesh system of notation movement. Miss Caverly has just returned from London, England where she graduated with the highest honors from the Institute of Choreology (science of movement). She will shortly resume her position as a teacher in the National Ballet School, Toronto, and in addition will teach movement notation at York University.

Ann Landers

Female Genes Are Wider at the Hips

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You should have double-checked your information on sex chromosomes. You would have found that one of the two X chromosomes is a deadhead and sits at the edge of the nucleus doing nothing. The Y chromosome (in people, but not in fruit flies) partially controls the things that make males male.

Get up off your knees, Ann. Women are wonderful — and you don't need to explain it on the basis of chromosomes. Besides, the only difference between male and female genes is that female genes are wider at the hips. — H. IRA PILGRIM, Ph.D., Associate Research Professor of Anatomy, University of Utah and an Ann Landers Fan.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR DR. PILGRIM: You might have landed on Plymouth Rock, Doc, but when I read your letter I felt as if Pilgrim not had landed on me. My agony was short-lived, however, because I checked with Dr. Bernard Strauss, Chairman of the Committee on Genetics at the University of Chicago, and this is what he said: "Dr. Pilgrim is right on both counts. The mixup, however, is due to semantics rather than scientific differences. You used the word "inferior" to describe the Y chromosome. This was a poor choice of words because the Y chromosome does have an important function. It is easy to get into trouble with the scientists when one prizes neutrality of this nature, no matter how factual. I am pleased to see that you take enough pride in your work to check."

So, dear readers, if you learned nothing else today you now know that female genes are wider at the hips. Isn't it marvelous, the bits of priceless information you get from reading this column?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the person in Syracuse whose brother has not spoken to his parents for two years. Your answer burned me up. You said it is "unspeakably cruel" to cut parents out of one's life.

What about parents who cut children out of their lives? I don't mean by not speaking to them. I mean by simply ignoring them. I have the most selfish mother who ever lived. As for my father, if I saw him lying on the street I wouldn't stop to pick him up. They are both so self-righteous they make me sick to my stomach.

To listen to them talk, they have been the most devoted parents in the world — made many sacrifices for us when we were young, all that garbage. But just let one of us kids ask for help and they run a mile in the opposite direction. (we are all grown, by the way, and none of us lives at home.)

— Print this if you want to. I mean every word of it. And if either of my parents see it, it's o.k. with me. I despise them both. — AN INVISIBLE CHILD.

* * *

DEAR : The key words in your letter are "sick to my stomach." I believe you are sick somewhere else, as well. And I am not surprised. Such raw hate would make anyone sick.

I urge you to get some counseling. To live a life filled with so much hostility is like carrying a time bomb around in your head. You are toting a mighty dangerous load, my friend. I hope you will unburden yourself, soon.

Raisin Bread for Fall Picnic

By MARY MOORE

Two loaves of raisin bread were the starters for a last-of-the-season picnic.

The children were back in school and hated to see summer slipping away. So do I.

To simplify a picnic make two loaves of raisin bread and include various cheeses, hard and soft. For dessert put a variety of Fall fruits in your picnic hamper and milk for the children and a thermos of coffee for the grownups.

RAISIN BREAD (2 loaves)
1 pkg. granular yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 tsps. sugar
1 cup scalded milk
3 tbsps. butter or shortening
1-3 cup sugar (second amount)
2½ tsps. salt
1 cup cold water
1¼ cups plumped and dried seedless raisins (see below)
8 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour

To plump raisins pour boiling water over them and let stand 5 minutes, then drain and dry them on paper towels. Scald milk. Into a large bowl tip the yeast and add lukewarm water and 2 tsps. sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Meanwhile add to scalded milk the butter (for shortening), 1-3 cup sugar and salt and stir to dissolve, then add the cold water, mix and add to risen yeast liquid along with the dried raisins and 3 cups of the flour. Beat dough for 5 minutes. Add 2 more cups flour, mix as well as you can, then cover and let rise until tripled in size. Reserve last cup of flour for kneading board. (NOTE: I did all of above late at night and let my dough rise in cool kitchen overnight.) Punch down dough. Spread remaining cup flour liberally on kneading board, turn dough out onto it and knead 200 times, until all surplus flour is kneaded in. Cut dough in half, shape in 2 loaves and place in buttered loaf pans. I used two 8½ x 4½ pyrex pans — slightly smaller than average loaf pans. Let rise until at least ¾" above rim of pans. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for five minutes then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. BUT after loaves are gold on top brush each with mixture of 1 tbsp. each sugar and milk. Bake 45 minutes in all. As soon as loaves are removed from oven brush with remaining sugar-milk mixture to make them shine. Let stand in pans five minutes

Club Activities

MADOC 4-H POTATO CLUB

The fifth meeting of the Madoc 4-H Potato Club was held at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Keene on Aug. 30th.

The meeting was called to order and opened with the 4-H pledge. The secretary, David Devolin, read the minutes of the last meeting and took attendance.

After all business was dealt with, president Sandra Stein, turned the meeting over to club leader Allan Sager, who, with the members, discussed the judging of potatoes. At the fair in drawing near, at which all members will be required to exhibit some potatoes from their plots, Mr. Sager discussed what is expected of the tubers exhibited and how they are best displayed. At the past Madoc fairs, members were required to exhibit 20 potatoes, but this year the number has been increased to 30.

The meeting was then adjourned.

Mrs. Keene served a lovely lunch and appreciation was extended to the Keene family for hosting the meeting by Sandra Stein.

Successful Living

Attitude Regarding In-laws Unfair

By DORIS CLARK

I was at the hairdresser's. The man who was doing the girl next to me was being teased because his wife's mother was coming from Poland to visit them.

"For six weeks. Six days-o.k.! But six weeks — it is too long." Hans was taking the kidding good - naturedly but you could see that he was worried.

Then my hairdresser explained to me that her husband was just as bad. At Christmastime, her Czech parents had visited her. Her husband knew them very little, could not speak their language. Rather than make the effort to be sociable, he spent Christmas evening upstairs. Odd behavior.

On the other hand, she said she liked her husband's mother, who was an English Canadian. But she shook her head and looked sad as she mused that her husband was not being fair.

And, for my money, that was putting it mildly.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a girl 15. Two years ago we moved to the country for my father's health. Now I am miserable, because the young people's population is one other girl. And she won't let go of her mother's apron strings.

I'm the type that likes to get out with a gang of kids. I tried to arrange a picnic with my friends from the city but they couldn't make it so I was stuck around the house feeling sorry for myself.

I got sick a while ago and the doctor said I had "mental fatigue". He said I should get out and occupy myself more. But how?

My parents are miserable too because they feel guilty for having moved out here, when they see how miserable I am. — Longing For The City.

Dear Longing: The place you live is not the end of the world; and there are pioneers in our Arctic regions having a ball making their own fun. So you can too.

Have you heard that the old-fashioned bicycle is back in style? This could be your lifeline to a heap of new fun. There are community clubs and 4-H groups within cycling distance of you; and you might even find a recreation centre where you could learn to play tennis, if you asked around.

These things take just the kind of drive you've got; and I'm sure those sympathetic parents of yours would go for the purchase of a bicycle if you made some phone calls or wrote some letters to unearth facts about what's going on.

* * *

Dear Doris:

1. Would it look right for bridesmaids to carry a single rose?

2. How could one get away with having two bridesmaids when there is a best man and two ushers? —Candlelight Ceremony.

Dear Candlelight:

1. Unusual, but why not? A bride often carries a prayer book with one flower on it. Your florist will have his own artistic way of arranging a single rose with fern or ribbon, to blend with the bridesmaid's color scheme.

2. Perfectly proper. In the recessional the best man walks alone, with each usher offering a bridesmaid an arm.

* * *

(Do you wonder why the people you come and get act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. Send remember that stamped envelope.)

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"It was an industrial accident — this champagne cork came flying out of the general manager's office and hit me in the eye."

Pupil Shuffle Protested

Parents Picket School

ST. THOMAS (CP) — A local school board official Tuesday appealed to parents of children attending two rural public schools to "discontinue any disruptions in the interests of students and to give reorganization of the two schools a chance to work."

Parents protesting the reorganization of the two schools blockaded and picketed Sparta Public School about six miles southeast of here Tuesday morning and kept eight busloads of pupils parked for half an hour on the roadside.

An official of the Elgin County board of education finally ordered the drivers to cross the picket line.

In addition, the parents also succeeded in convincing parents of about two thirds of the 125 children scheduled to attend the Union School five miles away to keep their children home.

Members of the parents committee protesting the reorganization rejected the school board plea at a board meeting Tuesday night and immediately began mapping strategy for their next protest.

Suggestions included more picket lines, student withdrawals and court action.

The parents are protesting action taken by the board earlier this year to shuffle the environments of the Hetron Sparta school and the five-room Union school so that all Grade 1 and 2 pupils from both schools would go to Union and the kindergarten and Grades 3 to 8 students would be taught at Sparta.

Until this fall, the union school had accommodated 125 students in Grades 1 to 8 while the Sparta school held close to 500 students in kindergarten through Grade 8.

Russians Studying Farms Here

OTTAWA (CP) — A six-member Soviet mission arrived here Tuesday night for a nine-day visit to study Canadian capabilities in agriculture and processing.

Headed by L. N. Efremov, first deputy chairman of the state committee on science and technology, the group was greeted by Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

The mission will visit the Central Experimental Farm, Toronto, Sarnia, London, Kitchener, and Niagara Falls, Ont. before going to Winnipeg and Lethbridge, Alta.

Mrs. William J. Rousehorn, of Madoc, celebrated her 91st birthday at the home of her daughter Muriel (Mrs. R. L. Barker), Brampton, Ontario, recently. Afternoon tea was served to neighbors and a dinner for grandchildren, nieces and nephews. Mrs. Rousehorn is a resident of Fullarmere Nursing House, Brampton, Ontario, and she was a former resident of Madoc.

According to Brenda Deshane, the supervisor of the summer playground in Tweed it was an enormous and delightful success.

Approximately 75 parents attended the playground's Community Night in the S. H. Connor Junior School on Thursday evening, where they saw and viewed products of two months' work.

A puppet show and penny carnival were part of the evening's activities, but as a highlight, a Summer Queen and King were chosen. Rochelle Cournoyea is this year's Queen and Rob Norris the King.

It is reported that a program next year depends on a number of things but as far as community support goes, chances look good for another program next year.

In the next two weeks Brenda Deshane will be taking a survey from the parents to get ideas for next summer.

The annual festival in aid of the Roman Catholic Church in Ardoch, was held in the picnic grove in Ardoch recently, in both the afternoon and evening. Approximately 600 people partook of the supper. Games were enjoyed and a bazaar also was well-patronized.

Oshawa Honors First Citizen

OSHAWA (CP) — Five years ago, on his 95th birthday, Col. R. S. McLaughlin said he had no intention of fading into a forgotten era.

"I don't know how long I'm going to live . . . another year or five years," he said with his usual exuberance. "But I'm going to make the most of each day."

Today, although time has dimmed some of that zest in Col. Sam, the grand old man of auto-making is up and around to cut yet another birthday cake.

And at 100, he's still the centre of the city of Oshawa, the place he put on the industrial map when the automobile and the 20th century were young.

"But the birthday party at his home won't be elaborate," a great-grandson of the centenarian said. "There'll just be the family and close friends dropping in."

The city, meanwhile, has an official McLaughlin dinner scheduled for downtown Oshawa. But the colonel, on doctor's orders, can't attend that one.

And he has declined interviews with reporters on this birthday.

"But it isn't that he's bedridden or anything like that," said a family spokesman. "It's just that there'd be too much excitement, and there have been quite a few parties lately."

Today's gatherings are only two of a series that have been held in the colonel's honor, and often in his absence, for months now. Birthday parties, parades and pageants have been blaring like auto horns since the beginning of the year.

They're all for the man who turned his horse-drawn carriages into cars, the philanthropist of scientific research and youth movements and the industrialist and colonel who had been too old to serve in the First World War.

Robert Samuel McLaughlin (the title of colonel is honorary) was born of Irish-Scottish ancestry in nearby Enniskillen when Sir John A. Macdonald was prime minister.

When he was five, he once told a reporter, a wheel swinging from the ceiling in his father's carriage shop bit him on the head. "and I've had wheels in my head ever since."

Those "wheels" were later to convince his father that horse-and-buggy days were fading and the automobile was the coming thing. When his father, finally and reluctantly agreed, Sam, then 26, made a deal to import engines from the United States and went on to win a corner of the North American car market with his McLaughlin-Buick and other auto lines.

The decision brought him wealth and fame, although it fell short of the all-Canadian car empire he had envisioned. With the imported engines, he designed and built the cars at Oshawa until 1918 when he sold out the fledgling industry to General Motors Corp. But he became president of the resulting General Motors of Canada, and vice-president of the U.S. group.

He's still chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian subsidiary, after retiring in 1967 from the directorship of the U.S. parent firm.

Of course, titles are common to Col. Sam, who was also vice-president of Toronto Dominion Bank, director of Canadian Pacific Railway, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd., McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., Moore Corp. Ltd., Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., Royal Trust Co., and International Nickel Co. of Canada.

Although he was born into industry, and grew and prospered with it, Col. McLaughlin worked his way up through the ranks. Several years ago he told a reporter:

"When I turned 21, my father repaid me the $2.50 a week he had taken from my $3 salary for room and board during my three-year apprenticeship with the McLaughlin Carriage Co.

His wealth today is estimated at up to$275 million.

No one knows the extent of his benefactions.

Negro Birth Cut Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. William Shockley, Nobel Prize winner who has long theorized that Negroes are less intelligent as a race than whites, said Tuesday unless society recognizes such a possibility exists in attacking social problems, "extremes of racism and agony for both blacks and whites" may result.

And he reiterated a previous call for the United States to try to find humane eugenic measures such as "a voluntary, sterilization bonus plan."

Shockley, a professor of electrical engineering at Stanford University, made the remarks in a paper prepared for a symposium at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

"In respect this symposium's concern with 'social problems' and its goal of 'the re-establishment of stability, order and meaning,' I express this warning:

"To fail to use diagnosis (of social problems) based on racial differences in blood types for fear of being called a racist is irresponsible. It may also be a great injustice to black Americans themselves.

"If those Negroes with the fewest Caucasian genes are, in fact, the most prolific and also the least intelligent, then genetic enslavement will be the destiny of their next generation. The consequences may be extremes of racism for both blacks and whites."

Earlier he reiterated statements that he estimates, on the basis of analytical studies, "that for low-IQ Negro populations, each one per cent of Caucasian ancestry raises average IQ by one point."

Shockley won a Nobel Prize move in a five-year crusade to get an independent study of race and intelligence—efforts that have gained him little more than a cold shoulder from scientists. The National Academy of Sciences has several times voted against sponsoring such a study.

He said studies of 122 pairs of identical twins, separated shortly after birth and raised in different homes, showed that heredity accounted for about 80 per cent of their intelligence, environment for only 20 per cent.

This study, Shockley believes, supports his long-standing conclusion that heredity "is the major factor in intelligence, and therefore "the major deficit in Negro intellectual performance must be primarily of hereditary origin . . ."

As for his reiterated suggestion for a "voluntary, sterilization bonus plan" as a possible move toward the effects of reducing what he terms a genetic difference in intelligence between blacks and whites, Shockley said a bonus of $1,000 would be paid for every IQ point below 100 to persons submitting to voluntary sterilization.

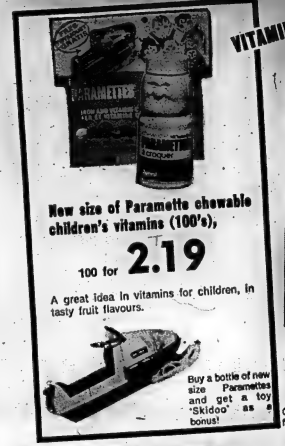
"Income tax-payers would get nothing," he said.

"Bonuses for all others, regardless of sex, race or welfare status, would depend on best scientific estimates of hereditary factors in disadvantages such as diabetes, epilepsy, heroin addicts, arthritis, and so forth."

Cardinal Rescued

LOURDES, France (Reuter) — An 80-year-old Roman Catholic cardinal lost without food for three days in rugged Pyrenees country near here told rescuers Tuesday his survival proved people are too well-fed.

Rescuers found him unhurt, but extremely tired in a large forest near this French pilgrimage centre and took him to hospital here by helicopter.



He had been lying by a small waterfall for 48 hours.

"Three days and two nights without food—it really shows we're too well fed," the cardinal said.

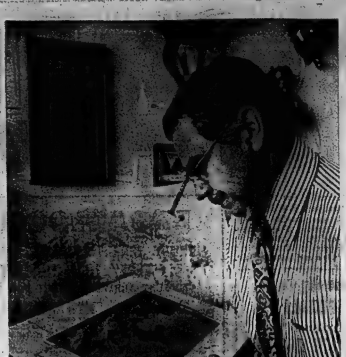
Stable Prices Fight Surtax

OTTAWA (CP) — Both the government's new $80-million aid package and the price stabilization act for farm products will be used to counter effects of the U.S. import surtax, Agriculture Minister H. H. Hays said Tuesday.

He told the Commons the $80 million grant package, embodied in a government act on which debate started Tuesday, will primarily help processors of farm products. The package makes grants available to industries hurt because of the U.S. tax.

But for farm products classified as non-processed, where the individual farmer would be affected by the U.S. surtax, Mr. Olson promised a commodity-by-commodity study under the stabilization legislation to see what aid could be made available.

The stabilization act provides for government purchase of some farm products when market prices fall below certain levels or for payments to farmers to make up the difference between the market price and a government-guaranteed support level.



Mr. Olson said the surtax could have particularly severe effect on Canadian agriculture.

Canada sold about $330 million worth of farm products in the U.S. in 1970.

About $111 million of this total would not be affected by the surtax, Mr. Olson said, but the remaining $219 million could be, at surtax rates ranging from a modest amount up to the full 10 per cent.

Thus, while only about 25 per cent of Canadian exports of all products to the United States would be affected by the surtax, about 65 per cent of Canadian farm exports to the U.S. would suffer higher import charges.

One standard will be applied for any processor of agriculture products seeking grants to reduce the blow of the U.S. import surtax, Mr. Olson said. Grants would be available only where the processor pledged that he would not reduce the prices paid to his farmer suppliers. The farmer thus would be assured that he would not have to bear the brunt of the surtax.

Kingston Jury Sworn In

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A seven-man grand jury was sworn in Tuesday to decide whether the Crown will be allowed to proceed with non-capital murder charges against 13 Kingston penitentiary convicts.

The convicts were charged following the April 14-15 riot at the big maximum security institution which left two prisoners dead and a dozen others injured.

The grand jury will review the Crown's evidence against the prisoners, then decide whether that evidence warrants trying the men during the Ontario Supreme Court's fall sittings.

The convicts were committed for trial in mid-July following a four-day preliminary hearing before a provincial court judge.

Two Held In Strike Disturbance

BRANTFORD (CP) — Police have issued a summons to a man in connection with the smashing of a car window in a picket line incident Tuesday afternoon at the strikebound Texpack Ltd. plant.

Earlier in the day another man was arrested after police escorted three busloads of non-union workers through picket lines representing some 200 workers, members of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Workers Union, who have been on strike since July 16.

Johannes Veenhorst of Toronto, the driver of one of the buses, was charged with possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace. A seven-foot chain was seized.

In Toronto, Ontario Labor Minister Gordon Carton called a meeting of union and company negotiators for Thursday in an attempt to settle the strike at the U.S.-owned plant which manufactures bandages and hospital supplies.

Also on Tuesday, the Ontario Court of Appeal dismissed a motion by Texpack to quash a union appeal against an Ontario Supreme Court injunction which limits the number of pickets at the plant to seven.

Police said they ordered the escort for the buses Tuesday because they had received information that a left-wing radical group would firebomb the buses, a spokesman said.

In the morning, pickets threw soft drink cans at the police cruiser which transported Veenhorst out of the plant and earlier shouted at the non-union workers that they wouldn't leave the plant as easily as they had entered.

Kenneth Dafoe, plant manager, said Tuesday he had called police after a female driver of a food catering truck had been refused entry and was harassed by pickets.

Program Unveiled in Commons Is Retaliation Against U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Although presented as a measure to combat unemployment, federal legislation introduced Tuesday amounts to retaliation by Canada against United States restrictions on trade.

If it works out as planned, the new Canadian program would largely undo any Canadian aspects of President Nixon's attempt to reduce U.S. reliance on imports and stimulate domestic U.S. production.

The $80 million in anti-unemployment grants provided for in the new Canadian legislation really amount to a subsidy to manufacturers to offset the 10-per-cent surcharge being imposed on goods entering the U.S. Manufacturers affected by the surcharge would be eligible for grants amounting to up to two-thirds of the surtax that would be applied to their exports.

In simple arithmetic, a manufacturer who exported products selling normally for $100 in the United States would have found that the selling price would have risen to a less-competitive $110 after Aug. 16. If the manufacturer wanted to maintain previous profit margins.

Under the new federal program, if the U.S. move threatens to reduce the manufacturer's export sales and production, he could receive a grant of $6.66. That would enable him to keep his U.S. selling price down to a maximum $103.33 instead of $110.

If he were able to cut corners and increase efficiency, the manufacturer might absorb the additional $33.33, thus maintaining his old U.S. selling price.

By international arrangement under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, member governments are supposed to be dedicated to the elimination of impediments to free international trade.

That means that GATT theoretically outlaws both special import charges such as the United States imposed last month and subsidies for exports. Some experts would interpret the Canadian anti-unemployment program as a subsidy system for exports.

Canada, in the early 1950s, and Britain in the middle 1960s, violated the GATT aims by imposing surcharges on imports.

Canada's action in seeking to offset the impact of the U.S. surcharges might prompt other trading partners of the United States to do likewise.

That, in turn, might prompt the United States to introduce even more strict restrictions on trade, ultimately unravelling the laboriously-constructed system of freer trade built up among Western nations since the Second World War.

Industry Estimates Losses At Possible $800 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian industry has told the federal government the 10-per-cent United States surtax on imports may result in dollar losses of up to $800 million and perhaps 80,000 workers being laid off.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Tuesday his department carried out a survey of Canadian industry after President Nixon announced the surtax last month.

He gave this forecast of loss of export sales to the U.S. based on a survey of 1,300 Canadian firms:

—$400 million in a full year if the surtax stays in effect three months.

—$700 million over a full year if the surtax lasts six months.

—$800 million in a year if the surtax lasts a year.

Disappearance of jobs, on the same annual basis, would be 40,000 if the tax lasts three months, 70,000 if it goes six months and 80,000 if it lasts 12 months.

Mr. Pepin said some 150 companies said they would have difficulty surviving if the import surtax lasted a year. They employ about 45,000 workers.

The industry showed that 73 companies would consider relocating all or part of their Canadian operations in the U.S. if the surtax lasted a year.

Tradeau May Protest To Nixon About Blast

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday he wouldn't rule out the possibility of making a personal representation to President Nixon over the proposed United States nuclear test off the Alaskan island of Amchitka.

But he indicated that any such direct communication of his government's opposition to the test is doubtful.

He told the Commons he would consider a direct plea to the U.S. if he had reason to believe the Americans were not fully aware of the Canadian position on the test, which the U.S. Atomic Energy Agency plans to conduct in October on Amchitka, one of the Aleutian Islands of Alaska.

But Mr. Trudeau said his information is that the U.S. government, including the president, knows "full well" the Canadian government's position on the proposed five-megaton underground blast.

Opposition to the test has been based on the possibility of a blast starting earthquakes in the fault in the earth's crust along the West Coast and the chance that radioactive fallout will escape the underground testing facilities.

The U.S. exploded a one-megaton device on Amchitka in 1969 and a smaller one in 1965.

Russians May Land on Moon

HOUSTON (Reuter) — Recent Soviet space shots suggest the Russians may be preparing for their first manned mission to the moon—which could come after America's final moon-landing trip in December next year.

This view was put forward by Dr. Charles Sheldon of the Library of Congress in Washington, but he added that the balance of evidence leaned towards a moon orbital flight only—with no lunar landing.

Assiniboia Election Called for November 8

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal byelection will be held Monday, Nov. 8 in the Saskatchewan riding of Assiniboia, Prime Minister Trudeau announced in the Commons Tuesday.

The byelection will fill the vacancy, the only one now existing in the Commons, created by the death of Liberal Ab Douglas March 6.

Current standing in the Commons: Liberal 151, Conservative 72, NDP 24, Social Credit 15, Independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, vacant 1, total 264.

Quintes Hope Marchen Up to His New Tricks

By MAURICK SWITZER
Sports Editor

Greg Marchen proved on alldog can learn new senior hockey tricks last winter with the now defunct Belleville Mo-Hawks. Now the new Quintes hope he can keep performing tricks.

Quinte manager Ken Murphy has announced Marchen's signing for his sixth season of Belleville senior hockey.

During his first four years as a Mo-Hawk defenceman, Marchen built a reputation around the OHA Senior A league as one of the club's chief constables.

Then last season the 29 year-old Peterborough commuter emerged somewhat of an offensive threat, picking up 31 points in 36 games, including 11 goals. The previous season, the affable blueliner had a 3-17-20 totals.

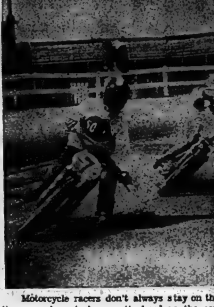
Defence is one place new owner Murphy wants to shore up the Mo-Hawks. "There's no way a team can be allowed out for blueline prospects.

Among them, he included Mike Rezac, who didn't dress a regular Mo-Hawk shift last winter until injuries created gaps in the lineup, and Greg Burkitt, the local Junior B product attending California Seals' camp opening in Oshawa this weekend.

Meanwhile, with the 65-game schedule beginning Oct. 6 at home against Kingston, the Quinte management has inherited the perennial problem of their Mo-Hawk predecessors — lack of ice.

Manager Murphy originally announced the 1971 Quintes training camp would open Sept. 30 in Trenton's Community Gardens. But arena manager Harold Long said today Peterborough's Junior A Petes have booked the Trenton rink most nights from next Tuesday the 14th through to the 23rd, including exhibition games the 19th, 20th, and 22rd against Cobourg, Ottawa and Niagara Falls.

As of today, the earliest Belleville Memorial Arena Manager, Robb Burrowes, could see ice in its building would be Sept. 25. A special Volunteers' Week display was booked in the arena by the city recreation department for the 17th and 18th and the ice plant could not be turned on until it left.



Kingston's Aces, in preparation for their season's opener in Belleville, began skating Monday.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1971

Motorcycle racers don't always stay on the straight and narrow, sometimes you have to lean pretty hard on the corners. Maurice "Mo" Fraser of Hamilton shows that he has a leg to stand on as he attempts to pass a fellow competitor in the Ontario Championships held in Belleville this July. Fraser, along with a number of other top Canadian and American riders will be in town Sunday for the Canadian National Dirt Track Championships to be held at the Quinte Raceway.

Howe, Esposito Both Cash In

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gordie Howe apparently has decided to retire at the athletic old age of 43.

Howe, who has scored a record 786 National Hockey League goals in the last quarter-century with Detroit Red Wings, won't say definitely he is quitting.

He said in an interview Tuesday, however, that he had made a decision on his future and will make it public at a news conference Thursday.

"Nobody other than my immediate family knows what my decision is and I'm trying to be honest with everybody and not say in advance what it is," said Howe, who was hampered last season by an arthritic left wrist and right elbow.

Disclosure of Howe's imminent retirement as a player shared the spotlight Tuesday with the signing of big-scoring centre Phil Esposito by Boston Bruins to a four-year contract worth an estimated $400,000.

The 29-year-old Esposito, who scored a record 76 goals and 150 points last season, said he would not disclose the terms of the contract other than it called for "a good deal more than a speculative figure of $333,000."

Esposito said he was "very, very happy."

He added: "I never need any incentive to play hockey."

Esposito's contract is in conformity with U.S. President Nixon's wage freeze, a Bruins spokesman said.

"Maybe he didn't get an increase this year," the spokesman commented.

Esposito, key figure in a six-player trade with Chicago Black Hawks in 1967, was the first player in NHL history to score 100 or more points for a season. He has accomplished the feat twice. He scored 126 in 1968-69 and was named the league's most valuable player.

The next year he scored 99 points as the Bruins won the Stanley Cup, and last season he broke his own record with an astounding 133 points.

Asked if the long-term contract might take away any of his incentive, Esposito replied:

"Look at it this way, I'm coming off a three-year contract. The first year I scored 76 goals, the second 43 and last season I had 76.

"I give 150 per cent no matter what kind of contract I have."

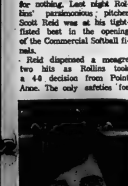
Still Blue

MONTREAL (CP) — The "blues" have followed Scotty Bowman ever since he left the St. Louis National Hockey League club as head coach.

"I've had a fair share of bad luck in 1971 so things have to be better," said the newly-appointed head coach of Montreal Canadiens after the latest incident.

Thieves broke into his new home in suburban Dorval and walked away with about $1,000 worth of merchandise, "including five pretty valuable watches, a color television set and my wife's fur coat."



The day he said his house in St. Louis it caught fire. On his way to Montreal, a short circuit in his trailer frightened his wife.

And on a recent trip, the same trailer almost backed down a mountain.

Scott Stingy With Cementmen

They don't call him Scott for nothing. Last night Rollins' parsimonious pitcher Scott Reid was at his tightfisted best in the opening of the Commercial Softball Circuit.

Reid dispensed a meagre two hits as Rollins took a 4-0 decision from Point Anne. The only safeties for the Cementmen came on a sixth - inning single by Jamie Hunter and a base hit in the eighth inning by Mike Cook.

SCOTT REID

Rollins scored their first run on third - inning single by Cliff Scott and Dale Akey coupled with Steve Ling's sacrifice fly. A three - run outburst in the eighth frame gave them a comfortable cushion as Carl Boomhower, Paul Goodfellow and Dale Duvall chipped in key hits.

Point Anne pitcher Jamie Hunter wasn't exactly generous himself, allowing just two additional safeties by Goodfellow and Ralph Plane, for a seven - hit effort over the nine - inning route.

Reid managed 15 strikeouts while walking four batters to gain the win. Hunter set down three men on strikes and issued a single base on balls.

The third game in the best-of-seven series will be played Thursday night at the Alemite beginning at 8 p.m.

Lacrosse Bumps Gone for Day

Members of the city's championship minor lacrosse teams will have more to show for their efforts than just bumps and bruises after Saturday's Presentation Day at Dick Ellis Arena.

Along with the presentation of awards, a trio of exhibition lacrosse matches will highlight the afternoon. The Belleville rookies will meet Nepean of Ottawa in a 1 p.m. bout, with the peewees and midgets facing Cobourg at 2.30 and 4 p.m. respectively.

The canteen will be open all afternoon and each player will receive a free hot dog and soft drink.

Races Invite Patriots

If one wanted to be downright chauvinistic about it, there's a patriotic reason for attending Sunday afternoon's Canadian Dirt-track Motorcycle Championships at the Fairgrounds.

Spectators will see if Hamilton's Maurice "Moe" Fraser can maintain the lead he presently holds in the race for Canada's Number One plate, which culminates with Sunday's 2.30 Belleville racing program.

Fraser's nearest rival is Cliff "Corky" Keener, the young Michigan rider who burst onto the Canadian racing scene with a vengeance this summer, placing second in both 250 and 750 cc events in classes at June's Muscular Dystrophy Benefit races here, and winning every heat he ran in the Ontario championships at the Fairgrounds in July.

Although Fraser, the defending Canadian dirt track champion, has not enjoyed Belleville success he did in 1970 when he beat factory driver Yvon Duhamel in heat - to - heat competition, the Hamilton expert has been piling up his points on other stops along the circuit.

"Last I heard, Moe had 13 points and Keener 10 in the race for the Number One Plate," Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club spokesman Gerry Sherman said. "The winner of Sunday's 750 expert final gets six points, and that's likely where the title will be decided."

Fraser may be returning to Triumph colors for Sunday's Belleville race program. He ran his bike through a fence in Drummondville August 15, bailing out in time to avert personal injury, but writing off his Yamaha. Fraser rode a Triumph to his 1970 Canadian title.

Sunday's practice for entries in the four classes (junior 250 and 500cc, expert 250 and 750) gets under way at 1.30, with elimination heats for the $1,000 purse beginning at 2.30.

Yardmen Bats Go Berserk

Belleville's CN Yardmen midgets jumped the tracks in the first game of their Bay of Quinte senior baseball final series with Tyendinaga, pounding out 17 hits in a lopsided 16-4 victory.

Allan Wood and John Masterson combined to fire a seven-hitter for the Yardmen while Masterson, Dale Tumnon and Ron McTaggart spearheaded the Belleville attack with three hits apiece while Farrell returned the favors for Tyendinaga.

Uniroyal tykes bounced to a 7-4 win in the first game of their city final series with Albambra 100 as hurlers Dave Bennett and Bruce Bell recorded 11 strikeouts and did not walk a batter. Losing pitchers Dale McTaggart and Ken Revoy managed 13 strikeouts, but also gave up nine free passes.

Bennett led the winners with two singles, while Larry Hanlon, Jeff Hayward, Peter Manderville and Bruce Mobrien had one hit each. Revoy powered a homer and single for Albambra with Mark Crawford adding a homer and McTaggart a triple and single.

In another opening game Golden Mile utilized the three-hit hurling of Gary Stapley and Brian Loveless to take a 6-5 verdict over Farrell Motors preseves. Paul Weeks topped a double and single for Golden Mile while Stapley, Andy Lupenette and Roger Suddard collected the other hits. For the losers it was Clyde Rowley with a homer and Howie Coons and Joe Motaski with one hit each.

CFRD Expos squared their final series at one game each by taking a 7-4 decision from

Reliever Hot

Dickens Voyageurs used a hot starter and an even hotter relief pitcher to clop Crookston 7-3 last night. The win gives Dickens a 2-1 edge in the best - of - seven Thurlow-Sidney Softball final series.

Norm Lockhart fired one and one-third innings of no-hit ball to preserve the win for Eddie Sine, who yielded only five hits on the Dickens mound. Losing hurler Larry Barnard was touched for eight hits over the route.

Glen Wilman had two hits for the winners with the others going to Garney Goodwin, Don Bowry, Stan Dafoe, Ervel Johnston, Bill Genereaux and Sloe.

Barnard, Don Harris, Ted Dobson, Bob Sills and Richardson collected the Crookston hits.

Stollery Bids Most

TORONTO (CP) — Art Stollery of Toronto's Angus Glen Farm, whose 'Kennedy Road and Laurie Boucher were the overall stakes races on The Jockey Club circuit this season, highlighted opening day sales Tuesday at the 28th annual Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society summer yearling sales.

Stollery spent $138,000 for three horses, including the top-priced bay colt, by Victoria Park for $77,000. The colt, consigned by Windfields Farm, carried a reserve bid of $50,000.

Stollery also paid $35,000 for a bay filly by Right Consolation out of Canadiana, a Queen's Plate winner for E. P. Taylor with career earnings of $179,008.

In all, 41 of 63 yearlings on consignment were sold for a record gross of $676,900 and an average $16,510.

Regan Blasts 'Cry-baby Pros'

VICTORIA (CP) — Larry Regan, manager-coach of Los Angeles Kings, Tuesday took a swipe at "the cry-baby professionals who seem to be creeping into sports" and warned them to stay out of his corner of the National Hockey League.

LARRY REGAN

"I am appalled by the lack of respect shown by some professional athletes," said the 41-year-old Regan.

He opened the Los Angeles "rookie camp" here Monday by asking three of the 31 amateur hopefuls on hand to have their near-shoulder-length hair cut.

The rookie camp is believed to be the first of its kind operated by an NHL club. By training a week before the opening of the regular camp, rookies "get a better chance to perform," said Regan. "You can't assess youngsters fairly by throwing them in with 40 to 50 pros."

The Kings' regular fall training camp opens Saturday with 61 professionals scheduled to report.

Referring to Rico Petrocelli of baseball's Boston Red Sox who has recently been critical of Boston manager Eddie Kasko, Regan said, "I get upset, when I hear of players who criticize their coaches. Lack of respect is becoming far too commonplace today."

Earlier this year, he said, Billy Conigliaro blamed Red Sox team-mate Carl Yastrzemski for the firing of former Boston managers Johnny Pesky and Dick Williams.

Regan also recalled some of pitcher Denny McLain's "problems" while with Detroit Tigers, and that halfback Duane Thomas, with Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, called his coach, Tom Landry, "a plastic man."

"Respect," Regan said, "starts with discipline. The Kings will have both . . . and there's a place ticket to hone in my office for any player who disagrees.

"The appearance of some pro athletes today is a disgrace. They are supposed to be highly-paid men, but you couldn't prove it by their looks.

"It annoys me because these athletes are supposedly the ideals of millions of youngsters."

Regan said the day the athlete begins to dictate to his coach, manager and owner will be the day "the operation of sports, as we know it now, will be over."

"Players have a right to disagree with their coach. But any disagreement should be presented in the proper manner . . . by personal confrontation . . . and not through the press or radio.

"Cry-babies have no pride. Consequently they are not respected. Eventually they are discovered for what they are, but it annoys me that sport must suffer in the interim."

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Panthers scored three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night to defeat Guelph C-Joys 9-7 in their Intercounty Baseball League final.

Panthers now have a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with the fourth game to be played tonight at Guelph.

NEW YORK (AP) — George Archer's $22,000 paycheque for winning the Greater Hartford Open last weekend made him the ninth player on the professional golf tour to win over $100,000 in official money winnings this year, the Professional Golfers Association announced Tuesday.

The top 10 money-winners:

Jack Nicklaus, $207,000; Lee Trevino, $197,219; Arnold Palmer, $194,837; Gary Player, $190,810; Miller Barber, $131,677; Archer, $116,168; Bruce Crampton, $105,736; Jerry Heard, $105,222; Tom Weiskopf, $104,825; Gene Littler, $38,087.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Brantford Warriors moved to within one game of winning the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A finals with a 19-13 win over Peterborough Lakers Tuesday night.

The win gives Brantford a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series with the sixth game in Brantford tonight.

The victory was the first for Brantford this season in Peterborough, after losing four league and two playoffs games.

TORONTO (CP) — Despite the mossy condition of the field at Canadian National Exhibition Stadium, home of Toronto Argonauts, it will not be rescided before the Eastern Football Conference game Sunday between Argos and Hamilton Tiger-Cats. The turf was badly damaged by various events held during the Canadian National Exhibition, including a threering circus with a herd of 12 elephants.

BERLIN (CP) — John Hawkins of Courtenay, B.C., became the first Canadian to high jump more than seven feet Tuesday as he broke his own Canadian record and finished second in an international track meet here. Hawkins, 22-year-old physical education student at the University of British Columbia, jumped 2.17 metres—seven feet, 1⅛ inches. Winner of the event, Istvan Major of Hungary, jumped the same distance as Hawkins.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Herve Filion, hermess racing's leading driver, scored his 302nd victory of 1971 when he brought home Carnegie Dan in the $7,000 pacing feature at Roosevelt Raceway Tuesday night.

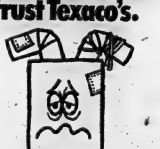
Feud Scatters Top Seeds

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Arthur Ashe says he's as good as he was when he won the first U.S. open tennis championship in 1968, but the competition isn't because seven top players aren't here.

"In 1968 I played so well it scared me," said the third-seeded pro from Richmond, Va., after he defeated young Australian John Alexander 6-4, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3, to enter the quarter-finals.

He could win the $30,000 top prize in this $100,000 classic which is missing such stars as defending champion Ken Rosewall, Roy Emerson, Fred Stolle, Tony Roche and Rod Laver of Australia, Andres Gimeno of Spain and Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

All of them, as well as Ashe, are members of Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis, Inc., stable. There was speculation that they bypassed Forest Hills because of a long-standing feud between the WCT and the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association which has threatened to ban all contract pros as of Jan. 1, 1972.



"Forest Hills can't survive without us," Ashe said. "You can't hard-sell sophisticated New Yorkers, nor soft-sell them for that matter. They won't come out here to watch unknowns."

Ashe was the only seeded player to see action in the men's singles division Tuesday but four ranked women took to the courts.

Nancy Richey Gunter, No. 7, of San Angelo, Tex., was upset by collegian Laura duPont of Charlotte, N.C., 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

Blue's Award Not So Certain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vida Blue had plenty of time to think about the American League's Cy Young Award Tuesday night after usually hard-hitting California Angels jumped on him for three first-inning runs en route to a 6-1 victory over Blue's Oakland Athletics.

"The Cy Young Award?" Blue mused.

"Maybe I'd vote for Mickey Lolich, too. He's doing better than I am now."

The young flame-throwing left-hander spent most of the game against California on the sidelines as the Angels rode Clyde Wright's six-hitter to victory.

It was Blue's fourth loss in five starts and his eighth of the season, keeping him tied with Lolich of Detroit Tigers for the most American League victories (21) and most complete games (20).

But of late, Blue's fortunes have been sinking while Lolich, at 31, nine years older than the Oakland ace, has been coming on like gangbusters. Monday the Detroit workhorse caught Blue in both categories with a masterful six-hit, 3-0 victory over Washington.

In other games, Kansas City Royals edged Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, Chicago White Sox topped Minnesota Twins 6-5, Baltimore Orioles beat Cleveland Indians 3-1, Detroit defeated Washington Senators 3-2 in 11 innings and Boston Red Sox routed New York Yankees 9-3.

relit Porter's throw sailed into left field.

White Sox catcher Ed Herrmann belted two home runs—offsetting a pair by Harmon Killebrew of the Twins—driving in five runs to enable Tommy John to struggle to his 11th victory.

Dave McNally, bringing his record to 18-4, won his own game for the Orioles with a two-run homer while silencing the Indians on five hits.

Jim Northrup wielded Detroit's big bat with his 12th and 13th homers of the year, the second a leadoff shot in the top of the 11th inning off Senators reliever Paul Lindblad.

The Red Sox carried a 3-2 lead into the eighth inning against the Yanks, then scored six runs to seal their victory.

Card Confident Bucs Can Be Had

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Torre, the National League's top batter, is confident St. Louis Cardinals will overtake Pittsburgh Pirates in the East Division race.

"This club has a lot of pride . . . and remember, we've got five games left with the Pirates. The way we're going—who knows!"

Torre is the league's leading hitter with an average of .368 for the Cards, who have won nine of their last 12 games.

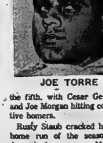
The Pirates hold a six-game lead over St. Louis, but both teams still have 19 games remaining.

Torre slammed eight hits in 11 at-bats Tuesday night as the Cardinals took a tat-eight doubleheader from Philadelphia Phillies, 9-8 in 15 innings in the first game, 7-5 in 10 innings in the nightcap.

The opener was the completion of a game suspended from Aug. 1, picked up with the Cardinals leading 6-3 in the 13th.

Elsewhere, Houston Astros defeated Atlanta Braves 5-1, Montreal Expos romped to a 9-3 decision over New York Mets, san Diego Padres rallied to beat Cincinnati Reds 8-7 and Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Francisco Giants 9-3. Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

In the suspended game at Philadelphia, St. Louis led by three runs on resumption.



But the Phillies scored three runs on Larry Bowa's two-run triple and Pete Koegel's single, and it was a new ball game.

Then singles by Ted Simmons, Julian Javier, Bob Burda, Torre and Matty Alou produced three runs in the 13th inning, and the Cardinals had a 9-6 victory.

In the second game, the Cards were trailing 5-3 with two out in the bottom of the ninth before Jim Beauchamp reached second when Denny Doyle got a bad start on his pop fly, then dropped it for an error. Lou Brock followed with a two-run single to tie the game.

The Cards took the lead in the 10th when Torre singled and Simmons tripled.

Don Wilson, 14-8, throttled Atlanta 5-1 on two hits. The Astros broke it open with four runs in the fifth, with Cesar Geronimo and Joe Morgan hitting consecutive homers.

JOE TORRE

Rusty Staub cracked his 15th home run of the season and drove in four runs as Montreal defeated Newly York 9-3. The Expos scored eight runs in the first three innings, then coasted home behind Steve Renko, 14-13, who got relief help from Mike Marshall in the ninth.

Run-scoring ninth-inning singles by Leron Lee and Garry Jestadt gave San Diego a come-from-behind 8-7 victory over Cincinnati. Lee went five-for-five in the game and scored four runs, while Jestadt was four-for-four with three runs batted in.

The Dodgers pulled within six games of the Giants in the National League West by recording their seventh victory in nine outings and their fifth straight over San Francisco.

Almost No Gun To Jump

The entries in Saturday's fourth revival of the historic Belleville - to - Picton sailing race would have had just cause for jumping the gun — there almost wasn't one!

Motor failure beholded the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club starter's boat and she arrived at the finish line seconds before the first of the 24 entries.

Dick Byrd's "Firestarter" won the Katie Grey trophy, named in honor of the Belleville craft that won the first of the 23-mile races in 1879.

This year's race, decided on a handicapped corrected time basis, drew entries from Trenton, Picton, Belleville, and Kingston, and was followed by a reception at Picton's Prince Edward Yacht Club.

MRS. LEONARD CROSS, 1020 Osborne Avenue, Cornwall COMES MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS AND SHE COMES OUT AHEAD.

Says Mrs. Cross, "I'm saving $3 or $4 on my weekly food shopping with these new MAXI DISCOUNT prices—and there's only two of us to shop for. Really, I didn't expect to save as much with MAXI DISCOUNT prices as I do. For example, I notice the prices at the meat counter are down, but the quality of the meat is still very good . . . I have shopped other food stores but I find some things quite a bit dearer other places—I don't think the quality in other stores compares with Loblaws quality. When it comes to saving money I would definitely recommend Loblaws because I find I save on the average little things I buy and it all adds up, you know".

Heath-Lynch Parley Brings Growing Fears of Bloodshed

LONDON (CP) — Results of a two-day meeting between the prime ministers of Britain and the Irish Republic have provoked bitter disappointment and growing fears of increased bloodshed in Ulster.

The discussions ended with Britain rebutting a plea by Premier Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic for four-sided talks on solving the Northern Ireland problem.

Instead, the British government of Prime Minister Edward Heath proposed talks between Britain and representatives of all shades of opinion in Northern Ireland which would exclude the republic.

Heath's Conservative government hopes to meet members of the Northern Ireland government as well as representatives from opposition parties, the Roman Catholic Church and other minority groups.

But the British initiative appeared in jeopardy today. Some opposition spokesmen in Belfast, who have boycotted the Ulster Parliament since internment without trial was introduced for terrorists last month, indicated they will not attend the proposed meeting because of what they called unacceptable pre-conditions.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling said earlier that anyone taking part in the discussions would have to agree that there could be no support for violence in Ulster and they would also have to discourage civil disobedience.

Both types of action are seen by many members of the Catholic minority as the only means of halting what they consider is a suppression of their rights by the Protestant majority.

Commentators today expressed fear that many of those in Northern Ireland who had hoped for some form of peaceful solution to the Ulster crisis now may turn to intensified violence as a method of solving their difficulties.

British newspapers were generally skeptical that the agreement between Heath and Lynch to continue consultations will produce any significant future agreement.

Kosygin Coming Oct. 18

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin will visit Canada for a week or eight days beginning Oct. 18, repaying Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to the Soviet Union in May.

No details of the coming trip were given in Tuesday's announcement by the prime minister's office. However, informed sources said Mr. Kosygin likely will spend one yahoot two days in Ottawa, the rest of the time being devoted to a tour of the country.

The tour is expected to take him to Montreal, Toronto, possibly the Prairie provinces and Vancouver.

The possibility of a side trip into the Canadian North was not ruled out.

It will be the first time a Soviet head-of-government has visited Canada, just as Mr. Trudeau's trip was the first by a Canadian prime minister to the Soviet Union.

Some commentators said Kosygin may be hoping to receive an invitation to visit U.S. President Richard Nixon while in Canada. Many suggest that the United Nations would be the likely location of such a meeting.

Sources say Soviet leaders place great importance on the possibility of a summit conference with Nixon before the president's planned trip to China early next year.

Officials here appear convinced that the reason Soviet leaders are planning extensive trips to many parts of the world soon is to counter what they fear may be substantial diplomatic gains by China.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Foes of Critics Often Just as Scathing

When I was in New York last spring, Edward Albee's newest play, "All Over," had just taken a beating from the critics and was about to close. Actually, I caught the final performance, and rather enjoyed it, but that's not the point of this piece.

Albee was furious about the verdict, and hauled off in a long Sunday interview in the New York Times, suggesting that most of the critics were barely equipped to "cover brush fires in New Jersey."

Now I have been reviewing plays for more than 25 years, and have heard every insult and imprecation against critics that could be devised by the minds and tongues of dramatists, producers, directors and performers. Albee had nothing new to add, but he did have something to disclose.

As you know, one of the chief charges against the critics is that they are "tough" — mean, captious, contemptuous, and carping toward plays and casts that deserve more tender or charitable treatment. What the public doesn't know, however, is that the playwrights, producers and performers who make these charges are often privately just as scathing in their own estimates of other people's plays and performances.

In this Sunday piece I refer to, Albee let the cat out of the bag, and revealed his own vast animosities and prejudices in the theatre.

First, he took on some of the old-timers, alluding distastefully to the "crap" that Maxwell Anderson and Robert Sherwood used to write. In the same breath, he dismissed Clifford Odets as "badly dated".

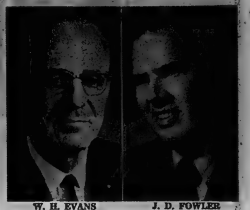
Then he looked at the past decade or so, and lumped together as so much "drossy" plays like "J. B.," "The Great White Hope," "A Man For All Seasons," "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern," and "All the Way Home."

Next, Albee sent a right hook to the jaw of "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-In-the-Moon Marigolds," which he called "an old-fashioned play without any resonance." He confessed that it "horrified" him when it went on to win the best play of the year award for 1970-71.

Christopher Hampton's "The Philanthropist," generally well received by critics and audience, was walked out on by Albee, terming it "a fifth-rate British play, directed by a fourth - rate British director, with third-rate British actors."

Even Moliere's "School for Wives," stylishly staged by Stephen Porter, left Albee cold. He remarked that the mugging of Brian Bedford, the star, was "inexcusable."

Any critic who made these vast ex cathedra statements would be pilloried as an enemy of the theatre. But playwrights and other professionals make them all the time. It is only for public consumption that they find the critics "too scathing" to their own personal favorites.



TOURIST INCREASE

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel received a record 268,000 tourists in the first half of 1971, up 37 per cent from the same period of 1970, officials reported.

Firefighters' Pay in Limbo

TRENTON (Staff) — The Town of Trenton is no closer to the bargaining table with the fire department here for a 1971 pay package than it was at the beginning of the summer.

The question of contract talks with the town's firefighters was raised in council by Councillor George Greer who asked clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry point-blank if the town itself is responsible for delaying settlement.

"I do not think there is any doubt about it," replied Mr. Larry.

Councillor Greer recalled that before he had taken his vacation there had been concern as to whether Trenton businessman Eben James would represent the town in arbitration proceedings. Council had agreed that Mr. James would be a suitable representative but he has subsequently declined the nomination through a letter to council.

During last night's meeting, Councillor Ted Parker raised the possibility that town residents may not want to become involved in municipal labor matters.

He suggested that possible candidates to present Trenton's case may be found in Belleville where he said there are some individuals with "wide labor - relations background". He put forth the name of Charles Wilson of Wilson Concrete Products.

Such men, he said would be objective through detachment from the situation but would still be from the locality.

However, no decision was reached last night as to who the representative should be nor was a list of possibilities defined.

Water for Wooler Road Wins Council Support

TRENTON (Staff) — There may not be any money in this year's budget to help them but residents of Wooler Road getting by without municipal water service won considerable support from town council here last night.

"I think these people deserve water; they have been waiting for it for over six years," said Councillor Paul Tripp in council last night.

Councillor Ted Parker suggested that the acting town engineer, Arie Hoornweg, find out what would be required to extend water to the area, while cautioning that "it may have to wait until next year's budget".

Discussion of the Wooler Road situation followed tabling by council of letters exchanged between Fire Chief Cecil Ellis and the Trenton Public Utilities Commission.

Chief Ellis has been pressing for fire hydrants in two particular areas of town — one in the Frederick-Stanley St. district and others along Wooler Rd. between Davis St. and the CNR underpass.

Chief Ellis said in a letter to PUC manager Doug Manlow dated July 8 that he had been asking for these hydrants since January 1969 and enquired when they would be installed.

Although there are hydrants in the Frederick St. area the chief points out that since early 1969 "we have had two or three fires in that immediate vicinity ... If a fire should break out in the Tripp Wholesale building, I feel that we would be in serious trouble."

In reply to the chief's request, Mr. Manlow says of the Wooler Road area, "the present extent of the main makes it impossible to supply fire protection on the Wooler Road." He says the main must be extended 850 feet at an approximate cost of from $8,000 to $10,000.

On the subject of the Frederick-Stanley hydrant situation, he explained that he had instructed PUC crews to in stall a hydrant there, but "when the area was reexcavated, it was found that the sanitary sewers were constructed so close to our watermain, & was impossible to make the necessary attachments to install a hydrant." This old sanitary sewer will be replaced this fall and the hydrant will then be put in.

Those for Wooler Road may have to wait until after the next municipal tax levy.

Street Requested

Residents of Stratton Drive on the west side of North Front Street just south of Elliott Motors want a proper street in place of the narrow gravel roadway now serving their properties.

A letter of request from the several residents living on the street was read yesterday at the city traffic committee meeting at city hall.

The request was referred to the city solicitor.

Golden Helmets to Ride in Picton

The Ontario Provincial Police Golden Helmets will be performing their motorcycle skills and thrills in Picton on Friday, Sept. 10. Originally formed in 1963, the Golden Helmets consist of 18 officers, a ride master, commentator and two spare riders, from detachments across the province. Following the busy summer season, the officers, all volunteers, attend a two-week training course at the Ontario Police College in Aylmer, embarking on provincial trips, performing their 35-minute ride. Machines used are 1,200 cc, 850 pound Harley Davidsons, the same vehicles used for normal highway patrol. When not performing their double weaves, figure eights, and thread the needles to enthralled audiences at fall fairs, the men are on regular duty.

Bank Supports Mall Plan

TRENTON (Staff) — Long likened to the Toronto Dominion Centre, the time may come soon when it is more appropriate to think of Trenton's ailing post office mall site as a mini-Commerce Court.

In a letter to council read during last night's meeting, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce expressed strong interest in the site and serious disappointment at press reports that negotiations for the mall land assembly have run into snags.

"We wish to record again our interest in the property and should you be considering the sale of the land and building, we would like as much information as possible," the letter concludes, mentioning the bank desires details of price, lot size and requirements concerning retention of the clock tower.

David Linden, the Montreal developer of the post office mall has disclosed in recent interviews that asking prices for property owners holding land around the old post office have been unrealistic.

Councillor Pete Aziz asked during last night's council session that a full-scale meeting of council be held as soon as possible to deal just with the post office mall situation.

"We should bring the whole thing out in the open and bring it to a head," he said

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Breath Shortness Common Plight

Shortness of breath is a common symptom in the healthy as well as in the sick. What's important, of course, is to determine whether or not there's real trouble present. If this diagnosis is made, then the sick won't think they're healthy and the healthy won't be unnecessarily worried that they are sick.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm 42 and as tough as an ox. But lately I've noticed I get short of breath on the stairs, or when I walk uphill on a golf course. I admit I haven't had a checkup in quite a few years because I haven't had any complaints until now. I'm about 25 pounds overweight. Do you think this might be the reason for both the puffs? — Mr. A.

• • •

COMMENT: I'll put it this way. You are guessing!— and so would I be if I tried to tell you obesity is a reason for your shortness of breath. It may be the cause, but I suggest you don't wait three to six months for an examination while taking off the extra pounds to test your theory. It's unquestionably true that excess weight often is the sole cause of shortness of breath. But as you most know, there are other reasons, too.

For example, let me throw out some questions to you. Do you smoke? Have you had chronic bronchitis or asthma? Are you certain that you haven't developed emphysema? Such are common causes of breathing difficulty.

Sometimes, shortness of breath, accompanied by a stubborn cough, is the first evidence of a failing heart muscle. How is your coronary circulation? It is time for a complete physical with chest X rays and EKGs (electrocardiograms). Is your blood pressure normal?

These questions and many more need answering, Mr. A. Let's hope that just being overweight is the culprit. But let's make sure. In many more ways than one, you will "breathe easier" knowing the true cause.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: We are conscience stricken. When our 18 - year - old daughter complained of being too tired to go to school during exam time — she's a freshman in college — we bolstered the gal. Not, only did she flunk her exams in two courses, she was put to bed in a day or two by our doctor because she had mononucleosis. I hope you will publish this as a letter of warning to parents who may sometimes think their children are faking illness. — Mrs. B.

COMMENT: You make a good point, Mrs. B. The normal, apparently healthy child who suddenly complains of illness usually fakes it. He or she should be given the benefit of any doubt and should not be forced to go to school. The doctor should be the judge.

For instance, in many cases of mononucleosis the complaints may only be vague: sore throat and fatigue. Don't jump to the conclusion that it is laziness. Enlargement of glands and other signs and symptoms may not be evident until days later.

Mononucleosis is not hereditarily spread by kissing and it is not commonly called "kissing disease" any longer.

Once the diagnosis has been made the patient needs complete rest, a good diet, and medications to relieve the pain and speed his recovery.

Chances are your daughter will recover, Mrs. B., if you are not in too great a hurry to get her back to school. Education is important — health, more so.

16 Students Hurt

Two Die as Trucks Collide

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — An open-decker pickup truck crammed with students on their way to school Tuesday collided with another truck and slammed into a power pole, killing two and injuring at least 16.

RCMP said the truck, driven by Derek Dalmago of this municipality adjacent to Vancouver, was carrying 19 teen-agers to Burnaby Central high school for the opening day of classes when it collided with a larger truck carrying a heavy piece of machinery.

Eight ambulances from four centres and a fire rescue squad took the dead and injured to hospitals.

The dead were identified as Michael Karpins, 15, and David Robert Welsh, 16, both of Burnaby.

Police said most of the students, including two girls, were riding in the back of the small truck when the collision occurred on a hill. They were thrown out of the truck and scattered for about 40 feet along Canada Way, a main artery through Burnaby.

Five of the injured were reported in critical condition. The driver of the larger truck was not injured.

Cause of the accident has not been determined.

"I didn't mean to boast all evening because I really am very modest, but I DO recognize people's right to learn the important facts about me."

Canadians Ignored At Union Gathering

EDMONTON (CP) — Jack Pickett of Edmonton, a delegate to the first annual convention of the United Transportation Union in Miami Beach last month, said Tuesday American delegates were "so wrapped up in their own affairs they just forgot about us."

Mr. Pickett said the 18,000-member Canadian association wasted its money—about $11,000—sending delegates for a convention which spent 98 per cent of its time electing American officers.

Mr. Pickett, who has sought a separate Canadian transportation union, said Canadian union business never reached the convention floor.

He said Canadian UTU members will contribute $640,000 in dues next year to the international union, and receive little in return.

"I am convinced more than ever that we must have Canadian autonomy," he said. "We must have Canadian conventions . . . and run our own affairs."

The 18 - union international UTU, represents about 100,000 workers.

Trial Set for Oct. 18

Paul Rose, Simard Shout Slogans During Court Appearance

MONTREAL (CP) — Angry outbursts and applause from spectators greeted Paul Rose and Francis Simard, charged with the kidnap-slaying of Pierre Laporte, when they appeared in Court of Queen's Bench Tuesday.

The two were among 77 persons who had trial dates set during the fall assizes.

Rose and Simard, who have both appealed murder convictions in the Laporte strangulation, had their trials on charges of kidnapping set for Oct. 18.

Rose shouted "long live the FLQ," followed by applause from the audience.

Jacques Rose, whose murder trial date was set for Oct. 12, entered the dock babbling abusive terms.

The appearance of Bernard Lortie brought a vigorous objection from counsel Robert Lemieux when chief prosecutor Stephen Cuddihy said his Sept. 13 trial will be on the kidnapping charge and not on the murder charge which he still has to face.

The defence lawyer argued that it was "not acceptable" that the kidnap charge be heard first. It was a "fundamental principle" that the accused should be tried first on the more serious count.

Labor leader Michel Chartrand, who was in cort as a spectator, made himself heard when Mrs. Andree Ferretti asked the judge to explain the legal procedure under which the Crown decided not to proceed with charges against her and 31 others charged under the War Measures Act.

Mr. Justice Maurice Cosineau said the matter was not under the jurisdiction of the court but rather the attorney-general. He then told Mrs. Ferretti and Mr. Chartrand that neither was on trial before the court so they were not entitled to address it.

Former CBC producer Jacques Larue-Langlois made a bitter speech when his trial was set for Sept. 20 on two counts of contempt of court.

Others who had trial dates set were Claude Morency, Andre Roy, and Francois Lacotot, who will go to court on Sept. 13, Oct. 18, and Sept. 27 respectively.

They are charged with a long list of offenses including a plot in May 1970 to kidnap the United States consul-general in Montreal.

Welch Picketed by Separate School Supporters

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — More than 300 persons protested the refusal of extended aid to Ontario separate schools Tuesday when Lincoln Riding Progressive Conservatives chose Education Minister Robert Welch to represent them in the next provincial election.

Mr. Welch spent about 15 minutes talking with the Roman Catholic, Mennonite and Christian school supporters who sang and chanted slogans.

The decision not to extend aid was announced last week by Premier William Davis.

Mr. Welch, who was unopposed at the nominating meeting, said in his acceptance speech that he feels there can be a solution to accommodate separate school needs "within the context of a single, universally accessible public secondary system."

"There are those, of course, who believe that such a goal is not possible," he said, "They are convinced that unky means uniformity; that a single system means a mediocre system; and that pluralism means lack of direction."

Bert Hielema of St. Catharines, whose children attend Christian schools, said he felt most of the groups affected by the government's decision not to extend aid to separate schools beyond Grade 10, will vote for Liberal and New Democratic Party candidates.

Both opposition parties support extended aid to separate schools.

Gerald Vandezande, executive secretary for the Committee for Justice and Liberty, said the government decision could lead to candidates who oppose the decision being entered in the next election.

Mr. Welch called on supporters of private schools to propose ways the schools might be publicly supported without "fragmenting the tax resource."

He also called for "co-operation, faith and hard work . . . to work out new and daring solutions within the framework of a single, strong society."

Asked after the speech what sort of solutions he has in mind, the minister said that in a decentralized education system the proposals should come from the local level.

However, he said he feels the case of Ontario's French-language schools, which were successfully brought into the public school system, might point the way to similar solutions for other schools.

"Who knows what could develop from this type of initiative at the local level? Of course, the government response would have to come following a request."

Hearing Today for Russian Sailor

VANCOUVER (CP) — An immigration hearing was to open here today on the bid of a Soviet seaman to remain in Canada after a marathon swim from a Soviet trawler to the rocky shores of the Queen Charlotte Islands in northern British Columbia.

Serge Kourdakov, 20, an officer cadet in the Soviet armed forces, was flown to Vancouver Tuesday from Prince Rupert, where he had been detained since Saturday. He made the direct flight unescorted.

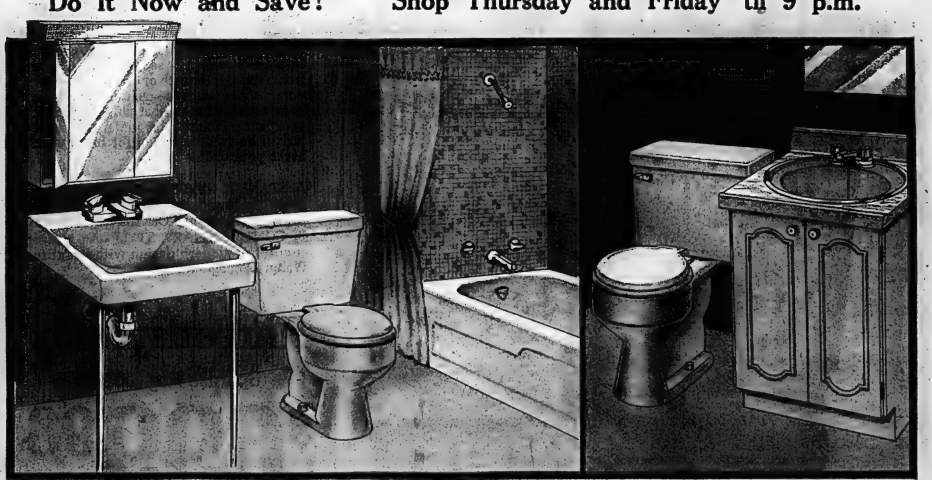
Lyall Hawkins, regional director of immigration, said he had issued instructions to proceed with the hearing today, provided a competent interpreter was available.

"We will probably be able to have the hearing completed in one day," Mr. Hawkins said.

Jerome Paradis, a Vancouver lawyer, said he would represent Kourdakov.

He said he explained to the Russian Tuesday that the hearing is the beginning of the normal immigration procedure for someone who has entered the country illegally and wants to stay.

Kourdakov, who worked as a radio operator, jumped ship just after midnight Saturday as his vessel lay at anchor with 10 others about a half-mile offshore in Tasu Sound on Moresby Island.



He swam for several hours in the cold, rough seas to reach the mining town of Tasu, about three miles from where he arrived the water.

After treatment for exposure, he was flown to Queen Charlotte City, arrested by an immigration officer for illegal entry, and confined in custody in Prince Rupert.

Londonderry Battle Rages Two Hours

Police Ready For PM Visit

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Throughout Pierre Elliot Trudeau's visit to Belleville on Saturday morning," the security will be rigid, every available city policeman will be used for the operation and maximum care will be taken for the safety of the prime minister," said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie yesterday at a news conference.

"It is ridiculous to suspect that there would be any attempt made on the safety of the Prime Minister but the precautions must be taken," said the chief.

Mr. Trudeau and his entourage of bodyguards, RCMP and parliamentary press corps will arrive at Zwick's Island at approximately 10 a.m. Saturday morning, "and from the time his feet hit Belleville ground, there will be men watching," said the chief. "The travel route to be used by the Prime Minister between the island and the city has all been completely gone over and men will be situated along the entire route."

To facilitate traffic flow and security, the city police have asked that, "there be no parking whatsoever on the south side of Bridge St. between Front and Pinnacle."

Army Post Is Hit By Barrage of Bullets

LONDONDERRY (CP) — British troops, bracing for a threatened "offensive" by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, came under heavy sniper fire and a gun battle between the opposing sides lasted two hours today.

More than 100 bullets hit an army post in the Roman Catholic Creggan district of Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second-largest city.

Troops returned the fire and gun battles raged for two hours after midnight Wednesday night — the time set by militant provisional wing of the IRA for a new upsurge of violence in the streets.

The midnight deadline was part of an ultimatum by the provisionals demanding the breakup of the Protestant-based Ulster government.

Authorities ignored the ultimatum and troops were placed on special alert for renewed guerrilla operations by the rebels, who want to drive Britain out by force and unite the north with the Roman Catholic-dominated Irish Republic.

In Belfast a British soldier was killed today when a bomb he was defusing at a church hall exploded. He was the 101st victim of Northern Ireland's two-year wave of religious-political violence.

Two other soldiers were injured in the blast, the army said.

On the political front, there was optimism over the prospects of a three-way summit meeting on the Ulster crisis, bringing together the prime ministers of Britain, the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

Jack Lynch, leader of the Dublin government, said Wednesday night he will seriously consider the proposal made by British Prime Minister Edward Heath at their meeting in Dublin today and Tuesday.

Previously Lynch had insisted on the presence of Northern Ireland's Catholic opposition at any meeting with Heath and Prime Minister Brian Faulkner of Northern Ireland.

In the barrage of gunfire in Londonderry, the army said it suffered no casualties. The shooting became sporadic as the night wore on.

In Belfast, the Ulster capital, two shots were fired at a military patrol in the Catholic Falls Road area. The bullets went wide.

A policeman's wife and her five children escaped unhurt when a bomb blasted the police station where they live in Lisburn, near Belfast. The station was extensively damaged and windows in the immediate area shattered.

The children, two girls and three boys, were doing their homework at the time. "This is another example of a murderous attack on the lives of innocent people," commented a police spokesman.

A man was slightly injured when a parcel bomb, thrown from a car, exploded at a Belfast railway freight yard. Two men in the car escaped.

Angry crowds stoned British troops in Londonderry Wednesday after the funeral of 14-year-old Annette McGavigan, a Catholic bystander who was killed in cross-fire between the army and the rebels. She was the 100th victim of Northern Ireland's two-year wave of bloodletting.

British Envoy May Be Freed

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — The Tupamaros urban guerrillas of Uruguay were reported today to have sent word in a statement that they will free British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson, 56, after holding him for eight months. British embassy officials and police were trying to verify the pledge.

A statement purporting to come from the guerrillas and distributed at a public meeting in Montevideo said there was "no longer any reason to hold him" following the escape from jail early Monday of 106 Tupamaros.

Embassy sources said the document contained stylistic differences from previous Tupamaro communiques.

But observers said the timing of its release and the link with the jail break appeared to make sense.

They speculated the Tupamaros were holding Jackson as a hostage against the success of some long-planned coup — and the jail break could fit that bill.

Japanese 'Hang Tough' For Talks with U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A major diplomatic confrontation between the United States and Japan is expected to emerge in bilateral cabinet - level talks opening in Washington today against a backdrop of serious disagreement on trade and monetary policies.

American officials have privately disclosed they will press for further monetary concessions from Japan, despite the fact that the Tokyo government already faces a 16-per-cent additional U.S. import levy and an effective revaluation of the floating yen by more than five per cent.

But the Japanese government has indicated it will take a tough stand in rebutting American arguments for a steep formal revaluation of the yen.

Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda said Wednesday night he is ready to answer any such request from U.S. State Secretary William Rogers with his own counter-points, and warned that the U.S. import tax "may well bring about retaliatory measures on the part of other countries."

The Japanese government wants to see suspension of the tax and, probably, a small global devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold before agreeing to raise the value of the yen by any significant extent.

Dublin Police Detain Cahill

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Joe Cahill, the Irish Republican Army leader deported from the United States, was detained by police after arriving back in Dublin today.

Detectives led him away after he stepped off the Irish International Airlines (Aer Lingus) jetliner flight from New York.

Police said Cahill was being held for questioning but declined to give further details.

Detectives had boarded the airliner named St. Patrick when it stopped over at Shannon airport in the west of Ireland to accompany Cahill on the last stage of his journey.

Although wanted in Northern Ireland as a self-confessed IRA leader, there is no known charge outstanding against him in the Irish Republic.

During his flight to Dublin Cahill said that another IRA stalwart would shortly take over his abortive U.S. speaking mission.

"The arranged tour is going ahead and a deputy will arrive in America to take my place," Cahill said in an interview.

Cahill, tagged the "emerald pimpernel" for his close escapes from police and troops in Belfast, said his replacement will stump the country "giving the lie to British propaganda."

The Belfast-born Cahill said he did not think his mission deputy would run into the kind of trouble which kept him penned up inside a New York detention centre for the last week.

An immigration hearing Wednesday finally ruled that he must be deported since his visa had been cancelled by order of the U.S. state department. His 1961 conviction for his part in the murder of a Belfast policeman figured prominently in the immigration proceedings.

The mild-mannered father of seven has spent about 12 of his 51 years in jail.

Parliament Will Meet

LONDON (Reuter) — The British Parliament will be recalled from summer recess for a two-day debate on the North ern Ireland crisis starting Sept. 22.

The decision, announced after a cabinet meeting, follows a renewed demand for such a debate by Opposition Leader Harold Wilson.

Parliament is not normally due to reconvene until Oct. 18.

Third Day of Rain May Halt Bush Fire

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — The third forecast for light rain in as many days was hailed today in a battle to halt a 32,000-acre forest fire within a few miles of this major northern supply centre.

But light rains the last two days did not impede the fire, which Wednesday destroyed more than 8,000 acres of dense, non-commercial timber. The brief rains gave way later both days to warm weather and winds up to 25 miles an hour, fanning the intense fire toward the town of 3,500 persons.

Fireguards 400 to 500 feet wide were cut through heavy timber adjacent to town, but fire officials said the best to be expected from the guard was a delay to give crews time to tackle it at the edge of town.

There were no immediate plans to evacuate the area of town nearest the approaching fire, four miles southwest late Wednesday, although 12 families were moved from homes near the outskirts and another 20 persons were moved earlier from homes at Paradise Valley, 18 miles south of Hay River.

The forecast also called for north to northeast winds, which would blow away from the town, 650 miles north of Edmonton.

The town, built largely on a peninsula jutting into Great Slave Lake, is protected by water on three sides. But on the southwest, thick stands of pine and spruce are adjacent to the edge of town where an industrial park and modern homes and shopping facilities have been built.

Two Hurricanes Move West

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Edith threatened the coast of Honduras and Nicaragua with 115-mile-an-hour winds today, while weather officials kept close tabs on Hurricane Fern as she stalled with her 90 m.p.h. winds 210 miles east of Bronsville, Tex.

In an advisory, the National Hurricane Centre said Edith was 130 miles southeast of Cape Gracias, Honduras, and moving west at about 18 miles an hour. Edith was expected to deliver hurricane-force winds to Cape Gracias by mid-day.

Residents of northeast Nicaragua and eastern Honduras were warned to expect gale force winds and possibly winds of hurricane strength—above 75 m.p.h.—by mid-day.

Persons in the Cape Gracias area were told to take all precautions for the dangerous storm before noon.

Shipping in the hurricane's path was warned to exercise extreme caution.

Highest sustained winds at Edith's centre were a reported 115 m.p.h., while winds above 40 m.p.h. extended as far as 125 miles to the north and 100 miles to the south of the centre.

Fern, meanwhile, jumped from tropical storm to hurricane status just before midnight Wednesday and started a five-mile-an-hour drift westward.

A hurricane watch was posted for the Texas coast from Matagorda Bay southward, and residents of that area were told to be ready to take quick action if Fern started to move in that direction.

Small craft along the Louisiana, Texas and Mexican coasts were warned to stay in port.

Early Action on Phosphorous Removal Urged In Resolution

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council at a special meeting Wednesday evening passed a resolution urging early implementation of phosphorous removal from sewage wastes by Bay of Quinte urban municipalities.

The recommendation came at the end of a meeting attended by Ontario Water Resources Commission officials who said that under the terms of an international agreement to clean up the Lower Lakes region, municipalities on Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte would be expected to install phosphorous removal equipment by the end of 1975.

Inland urban centres on the Trent and Moira watersheds, however, with municipal sewage treatment facilities, will be required to have phosphorous removal plants in operation by Dec. 31, 1973.

In view of the seriousness of the phosphorous pollution problem, however, city council asked that everything possible be done to encourage Bay of Quinte municipalities to also have their programs in operation by the 1973 date.

Gordon L. Van Fleet, phosphorous program co-ordinator for the OWRC told last night's meeting that the phosphorous level in the Bay of Quinte was gradually increasing with resultant fostering of objectionable algae growths.

Studies had shown that algae growth could be curtailed by the removal of phosphorous and soap companies had been directed to reduce the phosphorous content of detergents, while special plants were recommended for removal of the chemical from sewage wastes.

Mr. Van Fleet said that less than 50 per cent of the phosphorous reaching Lake Ontario came from soaps, the balance coming from industrial plants and through fertilizer runoff from farm fields.

Any one of three or four chemicals could be used to sewage wastes at the Belleville treatment plant but a "treatability" study would be required to determine the best use.

Mr. Van Fleet said the capital cost of treatment facilities for Belleville would run between $75,000 and $125,000 but regardless of the chemical used, annual operating costs could "range from $5 to $12 per household.

Total daily cost of operation would range between $240 and $400, it was stated.

There would be no objectionable side effects from the chemical additive. The equipment could be installed and be in operation inside a six month period.

Although a phosphorous removal program by Bay of Quinte municipalities could be expected to result in improvements in algae conditions, Mr. Van Fleet balked at a question from city utilities manager K. L. Burnham, who asked if the program might improve bay water so as to make an alternative supply unnecessary.

"That's a loaded question," returned Mr. Van Fleet, adding that Belleville was now contemplating a program to obtain its water supply from Lake Ontario.

He said that even with a reduction in algae growth, the objectionable taste and odor of bay water could be expected to remain.

Attending last night's meeting were city council members, members of the Belleville Utilities Commission and several representatives from area municipalities.

In addition to Mr. Van Fleet, other OWRC representatives attending were J. W. Gerald Rapin, research division, and Larry Scott and Glen Owens from the Commission's Kingston office.

Secondary Sewage Treatment Plant In Operation

It hasn't been noticeable to the average man on the street, but the city's new secondary sewage treatment plant on the Foster Ward waterfront is now in operation.

And the good news for city residents is that regardless of the amount of flow, all sewage now goes through the treatment plant before the effluent is discharged into the bay.

Previously, due to lack of capacity at the plant and because of the capacity limitation of the force main leading from the Front Street pumping station, some of the raw sewage from the West Hill area had to be bypassed following heavy rains and discharged into the river.

Don Little, plant manager, said today that the secondary treatment plant had been in operation for a couple of weeks or more, although the plant had not yet been officially taken over from the contractor, Schreiber Construction Ltd.

The new secondary treatment plant has a daily capacity of approximately eight million gallons with the current daily volume being about five million.

The plant's primary and chlorination facilities, however have a capacity of about 15 million gallons daily sufficient to handle all city sewage — regardless of flow.

The city's sewage treatment plant — officially called the Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant — is a new owned and operated by the Ontario Water Resources Commission which constructed the secondary treatment facility.

In conjunction with the secondary treatment facility project a new 36-inch force main was constructed from the Front Street pumping station to the sewage plant.

Mr. Little said the new facility was giving good results.

"We are getting excellent treatment," he said.

To provide service for the city's northeast industrial section and for part of Thurlow township, the OWRC plans construction of a new main trunk sewer, which will run up the bed of the Moira River from the Front Street pumping station.

Police Ready for Visit

gencer building, will be very busy when the Prime Minister comes to appear at CJBQ," said Chief Crosbie.

City Police Inspector Ralph Blatchford, who will be acting as co-ordinator of operations for the tour, and Chief Crosbie agree that the main area of concern will be crowd control and Mr. Trudeau getting jostled by overly exuberant fans. "We doubt strongly that there will be any other type of trouble connected with the celebration."

Regardless of this, a Liberal party spokesman told The Intelligencer "there will be sentinels placed on the rooftops of both the Hotel Quinte and The Intelligencer who will be acting as surveillance officers."

Because the bulk of Mr. Trudeau's time will be spent in the radio station, "this is naturally where security will be the tightest," said Frank Murray, manager of CJBQ. "Mr. Trudeau will be spending as much as an hour in the station, speaking with Milt Johnston on the open line program. This will give area residents and residents of Peterborough and Kingston a chance to talk with the Prime Minister."

Both the radio stations of Peterborough and Kingston will be tie-ing the program from CJBQ.

While Mr. Trudeau is a guest of the radio station, no one will be allowed to enter the building without showing identification and police personnel.

"This measure does two things," said Chief Crosbie. "It keeps the security tight and keeps the number of people in the radio station to a minimum."

"After the travelling continent of 40 to 50 press representatives situated in the building, and Mr. Trudeau and his personal aides and guards enter, there will not be enough room to allow observers in as well," said Mr. Murray.

While Mr. Trudeau is in the station, only the front door of CJBQ will be used by anyone. Further precautions include a police communications set up in the reception area in the station and all doors will be guarded. Any rooms in the station that are not being used will be sealed off.

While the Prime Minister talks with Milt Johnston, only his bodyguard, personal aide and authorized radio personnel will be allowed to be near him. Photographers, including film crews from the CBC, will be permitted to enter the room two at a time and by time they will be allowed to spend in the studio will be governed.

After his radio appearance, Mr. Trudeau will then leave by motorcade to the Four Seasons Motor Hotel for a short reception and then, by helicopter, will proceed to Picton to open the fair.

Members of the local Liberal party urge wherever possible, the Canadian flag be flown from public buildings, and that all should turn out at the latest, especially the kiddies. Mr. Trudeau wants to shake as many hands as possible."

Thieves Settle For Dimes

When two would-be bandits attempted to break into the Deacon Brothers cupboard, they found it was here last night between the hours of 5 p.m. and 9 a.m.

Thieves forced open the one unusable till, and after finding nothing, resorted to ransacking the pop machine.

"In their haste," said a police spokesman, "they left four dimes on the floor."

The thieves gained entry by breaking a window and reaching in and opening the latch. No suspects have yet been named by city police.

Cost Saving Device

Improvements to the Memorial Arena over the summer include an evaporator condenser, designed to reduce water consumption cost by 25 per cent.

Walkers Wanted

The Belleville Recreation and Arena Committee is checking its lists of walkathon participants who two years ago helped to raise funds for the erection of a second skating rink for the city.

The badly needed second arena — the Dick Ellis Rink in West Belleville — is now completed with an official opening scheduled for some time in October.

And gracing the building will be a plaque bearing the names of all walkathoners who helped raise $32,000 to get the project off the ground.

Lists of the "Walkers" names are being made available at city hall and at the recreation committee office and participants are asked to check at either office to make sure their names are included.

The walkathon was sponsored by a group of interested citizens calling themselves the Quinte Action Committee whose goal was to raise funds for a second skating rink.

However, the rink project was taken up by the recreation committee and the funds raised by the walkathon were turned over to the city to assist in the construction cost.

Former Mayor to Lead Team

Former Belleville mayor, Gerald Hyde of St. Thomas, will lead the Canadian team that will compete for the Second World Lawn Bowls Championships in Worthing, England in June, 1972.

Mr. Hyde, now St. Thomas's personal officer, purchasing agent, and building maintenance supervisor, was recently elected manager of Canada's five-man team. A lawn bowler for 38 years, the former mayor learned the game at the Belleville lawn bowling club. He is now a member of the London Lawn Bowling Club. He has served terms as the president of both the Canadian and Ontario Lawn Bowling Associations as well as being Provincial Singles champion in 1968.

The world competition in England involves teams from more than 39 countries who compete in four different events during the three-week meet. It is held once every five years and is the last such tournament Canada picked up one silver and one bronze medal.

Mr. Hyde, operator of a plumbing and heating business here for many years, was mayor of Belleville in 1968-69.

Council Approves Land Division Public Hearings

In decisions announced yesterday, the Thurlow Township committee of adjustment approved public hearings for nine applications, while rejecting only one of 12 applications for land severance divisions, during the regular session of council.

Council received communication from the minister of transportation and communications to the effect that additional funds will be forthcoming earlier than expected for road subsidies. The government announced that after the second advance payment, council can apply for additional funds, and that the current 15 per cent holdback will be reduced immediately to 10 per cent, allowing, according to the letter, the township to have a better cash flow.

Normally, this additional money would be received sometime next summer.

The department of municipal affairs informed council that acting on recommendations from township auditor J. D. Lewars, all five community centre board secretary-treasurers will need to be bonded in future. Council decided to investigate the cost and accept the department's decision.

Council continued to debate the current problem of dogs at large in relation to the absolute number of sheep being mauled or killed by them; by listening to representations of Dr. Harry Burns, a local veterinarian.

Dr. Burns, displayed a unique lamb protector that he claimed would drastically cut down the number of sheep killed by wandering dogs. The odor emitted by it has the effect of warding off dogs, he stated, and the cost would be minimum and the items can be made available at cost.

He stated that each protector is available at 30 cents and is claimed to be effective from four to six months.

Council agreed to make available to sheep owners in the township any number of protectors that are requested.

A formality awaits the county council on September 22, when the bylaw closing the back road adjacent to Corby Distilleries Ltd., is presented for final approval before being forwarded to the minister — Governor - in - council for signature. It's estimated that the road will be closed towards the end of October.

The action will enable Corby to expand plant facilities.

Council also received a sum of $7,000 in payment for excess costs involved in last winter's snow removal from the provincial government.

In final business, a claim for $325 for lost sheep due to killings by wild dogs was approved for Mrs. M. C. Burns.

PCs Pick Candidate Tonight

Quinte riding Progressive Conservatives will decide tonight on the man who will carry their banner into the provincial election fray expected in October.

The party will hold its nomination meeting at 8 p.m. at Centennial Secondary School.

The riding is now held by Fred McFadden, minister without portfolio in the Ontario cabinet and chairman of the provincial committee on youth.

Speakers for the occasion will be Hon. Bert Lawrence, minister of health and Hon. George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management.

Special Edition To Mark Opening

The new Royal Canadian Legion building and convention centre being officially opened in a colorful dedication ceremony in Belleville this weekend is the climax to Belleville Branch 99's greatest single achievement of 53 years in the community.

On Friday, September 10 a 12-page "Souvenir Edition" with photographs and stories bringing up to date the branch's history will appear with the regular issue of The Intelligencer. The special issue with the official programs included, is being circulated with the newspaper and extra copies can be obtained by contacting the Legion manager at his office in the new building.

Sewers to Go On Television

TRENTON (Staff) — Council resolved here Monday to conduct a television survey of sewers in Elmwood Acres to help residents say that a stantial drainage problems exist.

A delegation from the Warren Rd. area of the east side subdivision told council of their plight with one man saying he has had raw sewage in his basement five times since he moved into his new home there last spring.

Arie Hoornwig, the acting public works commissioner, told council as it discussed the matter that backups are caused when several downspouting weeping tiles are connected to sanitary sewers, roof drains to the sewage lines. He indicated storm sewers in the vicinity are inadequate.

To find answers to the sewage backups, TV cameras will be put through the drainage lines and sewer consultants Gore and Storrie will be called in if necessary to determine a rectifying program.

Beer in Arena?

Hockey enthusiasts attending games at the Belleville Memorial Arena this season may be able to pick up their between periods liquid refreshments without leaving the building.

They will, that is, if a proposal discussed at yesterday's Recreation and Arena Committee meeting is carried through.

The proposal is that a licence be taken out to sell beer during hockey games at the arena. The recreation committee would control the concession and profits from the beer sales would go to the city.

Recreation committee director Lorne Williams said a section under the west side seats could be fitted out as a beverage lounge.

It seems that beer lounges at arenas in smaller cities are not unusual and centres such as Barrie and Pembroke have them.

WHEREAS it has been deemed that Saturday, September 11th, 1971 will be the day that The Right Honourable Prime Minister Trudeau, Prime Minister of Canada will pay his official visit to the "Friendly City of Belleville" and

Smoking Ban In the Works

The Belleville Memorial Arena will be off limits for smokers this coming season after a new anti - smoking by-law is passed by city council later this month.

The by-law has been drafted by city solicitor John Mc-Ivor, and will be reviewed by the Recreation and Arena Committee at its next meeting before it goes to city council.

Under the by-law the city fire chief will have the power to ban smoking in certain areas of the arena or other specified city - owned structures.

The main purpose of the by-law, however, will be to ban smoking in the southern section of the memorial arena during hockey games. Fire safety will be a prime factor although Alderman during hockey games is objectionable fire ma player and spectator point of view as well.

The city solicitor said that without the by-law there was no power to enforce a smoking ban.

Repairs Continue

Repairs to the city's waterworks system are a continuing thing.

Especially in the older districts where mains have been down for many years and valves or other controls are beginning to show the effects of wear.

This week utilities commission service crews are working on Charlotte Street where several items of watermain maintenance are on the agenda.

At Charlotte and Wellington a defective valve is being replaced; at Front and Charlotte a fire hydrant is being changed, and at the corner of Charlotte and Moore two valves are being installed.

The new valves are being installed to reduce the water shut-off area when future maintenance work is necessary.

"Just routine maintenance" is the way utilities manager E. L. Burdsall described the work.

Yesterday marked the end of Art hur Daniels' career as a CN police constable. "I've been with these people for 29 years," said Mr. Daniels. "Now I am going home and take it easy." Fish Stories Differ

Contrary to a statement made last night at city hall, fishing and duck hunting in the Bay of Quinte are showing no signs of improvement.

This was the claim today by Joe Large, local commercial fisherman who refuted a statement by Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott that fishing in the bay was now better than in the past 20 years, and that duck hunting was the best in 30 years.

Mayor Scott made the statement at a meeting of city council with representatives of the Ontario Water Resources Commission during which phosphorous removal from municipal sewage was discussed.

In the course of the discussion Mayor Scott said he had been told by sportsmen that fishing for pickerel, pike and bass was now better than in many years.

A OWRC biologist said he could believe that duck hunting might be improving, but said department game studies showed that fishing had declined. The only type of fish now in the bay in quantities were algae feeders and scavenger fish, he said.

This was borne out today by Mr. Large.

"Ten years ago you could put out 6,000 feet of net and bring in half a ton of pickerel," he said.

Now the bay is closed to commercial fishing from Glenora west because of the decline in the number of fish.

"Even if fishing was allowed you couldn't pay for the license," Mr. Large said.

Neither did he feel that duck hunting had improved.

At one time, he said you could go out and shoot 50 or more ducks in a day even though such a take was illegal.

Now there are no ducks and even the wild rice duck feeding grounds are gone — dug up by scavenger carp.

Shoe Theft Brings Charges

Running shoes may have been more appropriate for two men last night who decided to obtain two pairs of safety shoes without the owners consent.

Charged with the theft are Gary Arnold Maynes, resident of the Queen's Hotel and Dennis Melville Laycock, 25, of Byron St.

The pairs of boots were taken from the truck operated by James Surplis of Norwood, amounting to $45. Both pairs of boots were recovered.

Motorcyclists Hurt At Intersection

Shortly after 5 p.m. last night a collision between a late model Mercury and a Honda motorcycle at the corner of Bridge and William Streets resulted in two persons being taken to hospital.

Police spokesmen say "the car was proceeding west on Bridge and preparing to make a left hand turn when the motorcycle tried to pass the turning vehicle."

After examination at the Belleville General Hospital, Loraine Ashman, 18, of Joyce Crescent, passenger on the motorcycle, was treated for abrasions and released. Driver, William T. Andrews, 19, of Foxboro, still remains in hospital complaining of ab dominal pain.

Damage estimates by police are $75 to the car and $250 for the motorcycle.

Thurlow Council, OMB Remain at Loggerheads

The perplexing problem as to who should pay for a rejected engineer's report in connection with a municipal drainage project in Thurlow Township has left both the township and the Ontario Municipal Board in awkward positions.

Earlier this year, the township had let out a contract to Menard Construction Ltd., of Green Valley, Ont., subject to OMB approval.

The township originally corresponded with the OMB last March and, since then, after the latter had rejected the proposal, a steady stream of communication has flowed between the two parties in an attempt to seek a solution for the problem of paying the original engineer's report of Campbell T. Smith which amounted to $7,600.

The project is slated for connections, three, four and five and drainage pouring into the projected spruce will eventually flow into the Moira River.

The OMB has stated that it cannot approve debentures for the project because a second engineer's report included the $7,600 Smith fees in the cost. It states that it will not accept payment of monies spent before the present application had been submitted to OMB.

Township Clerk has replied that this amount should be included because it's part of construction costs, regardless of whether it had been spent before or after the present application for approval.

The total cost of the project as outlined in the Smith report is $76,000 which includes the original $7,600, and although it will appeal to have been heard by ratepayers in the concerned area, the OMB maintains that it cannot approve the Smith fees.

The only alternative is to apply the $7,600 to the general rate where every ratepayer in the township would need to help pay for it, and that's one thing council wishes to avoid. But is there any other way?

"They've got us in a pickle, those OMB guys," Fletcher Reid, a member of council, stated yesterday. "Now it's all up in the air, and this project has been going on for the last six or seven years."

"When the drainage referee rejected the Smith report for a number of reasons, he should have also stated that the fees should be included in the second report or applied to general rate or paid by the concerned ratepayers." township secretary-treasurer Clare Horton said.

"Now it will cost us $1,000 to apply to the court to ascertain who should pay this $7,600, and you'll never know if the court will just say to apply it to general rate. It might be just throwing that money down the drain to find that out," he added.

After months of communication, the issue of council is at a debaut. Council wishes to settle the problem immediately, and some members are even willing to personally appear before the OMB to explain their case.

"It's just a bunch of governmental red tape," Borden Forsyth, deputy reeve, charged.

"They're just passing the buck. You know, the OMB don't judge projects on their individual merit, just on some damn rules and regulations the government boys dream-

Toward A Better Society

That was a great idea of Dr. Kenneth Clark, President of the American Psychological Association, concerning development of a drug which would bring out the best in the human animal.

The first black to head the AMA, Dr. Clark says recent studies of the electrical and chemical control of the brain suggest researchers are on the threshold of what he terms a scientific, biochemical intervention which could stabilize and make dominant the moral and ethical propensities of man, and subordinate, if not eliminate, his negative and primitive behavioral tendencies.

The possibilities are enormous, in a world plagued by people suffering from those self-same primitive behavioral tendencies — from power-seeking politicians (Dr. Clark would have them first on the list for this drug) to mass murderers and political terrorists, on down to the lunatic fringe whites in the United States. The latter may be seen on TV making rude noises and faces at blacks in the current school integration hassle. Nor can we overlook the blacks and other minority group hoodlums who terrorize ghetto neighborhoods.

Violence and unrest seem more predominant today than at any time of so-called peace in this century. Or is it just that the emphasis is there rather than on the more tranquil deeds of society? We have Vietnam and Northern Ireland, not to mention the Middle East, as examples of crazy mixed up societies and of man's baser nature. Canada too has its violent men, as witness last year's FLQ madness, and the underworld killers of Montreal. Who can say, moreover, that the FLQ will not strike again? In labor unrest on the streets, or outside striking plants, we have also witnessed unseemly behavior. Consider too the people who loot stores and homes in the wake of some disaster.

The truth of the matter is that deep down man is a pretty primitive piece of work, subject to many unwelcome psychological currents which he is unable to control. In Dr. Clark's pill remedy there is a potential for improvement, but as of now it sounds rather in the realm of fantasy. Will we reach a point where it could be taken on a mass basis . . . and of course there would be the usual public debate. Would it be acceptable on moral and ethical grounds, this tampering with the public psyche, even if it is meant to produce a better human being?

Ethnic Get-Together

Winnipeg's recent Folkiorama 71, hailed as one of the most unique ethnic festivals to be seen anywhere in the world, brought together groups from many nations now living in Canada as well as our native Indian people. National costumes and dances of the countries represented made a colorful scene in this mid-western Canadian setting. Here is another idea for Belleville. We talked recently of a downtown mall along the lines of those held elsewhere and the need to highlight it with a parade or some such attraction. Or perhaps the city's International Club might consider presenting a similar folkiorama, with or without a mall.

Meanwhile, we note that representatives from all ethnic groups are invited to attend the Quinte Santa Claus parade meeting at Ben Bleecker Hall tomorrow evening, the parade theme this year being "Christmas Around the World."

Museum Costs

Plumbing and heating, together with such facilities as electric wiring, painting, carpentry work and concrete flooring are not provided these days in exchange for peanuts.

It should not come as any surprise then that the planned interior renovations at Glanmore House, the former Philippa Faulkner residence on West Bridge Street purchased by the city and county for a museum, will cost considerably more than anticipated.

Still, we hope this will not prove a serious setback to a project which will enhance the cultural image of Belleville. Economies are planned in the tender and there is hope that additional grant money may be forthcoming from Ottawa.

With Eyes on an Election

PCs Ready for New Assault on Government

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — We've got to start the week with a bang.

"Be on hand.

"We're gearing up an egalitastic, hard-hitting, co-ordinated Question Period.

"So be here. Get into the action."

These are the opening paragraphs of a "get-with-it" bulletin that Conservative Whip Tom Bell, MP for Saint John-Lancaster, fired off to the Opposition members on the eve of Parliaments re-opening.

The key word is "co-ordinated."

It means that when the Opposition has a hot line of questioning going for them in those 40 minutes every working parliamentary day when the Cabinet Ministers come under cross-examination, some dum - dum Tory MP who has not been paying attention, or does not really care, is not going to be allowed to butt in and break it.

This session, says Whip Tom Bell, we are organized. Like a football team. With a manager, coaches and a quarterback.

The coaches, a crew of political researchers, assigned to pinpointing with pre - prepared sharp questions, the issue of the meeting — to the Government — issue of the day, or week.

(You never, says that old Commons warhorse, former Prime Minister Diefenbaker who has been around now going on 32 years, ask a question unless you know the answer is going to hurt.)

The quarterback, former Conservative Cabinet Minister, George Hees, a one-time Toronto Argo and an MP who charged onto the Commons grid 21 years ago.

The Tory team has the lion of prepared questioning.

A lead-off query, hopefully explosive, with two, three or for supplementary follow-ups.

Quarterback Hees calls the signals, fingering each MP to go with his lead-off or back-up question. How long Hees lets it go depends on the play and Mr. Speaker Lamoureux' patience, which can run out after half a dozen supplementary questions.

Then it is on to Question Two, Same Drill.

Question Three next.

By now, if no Opposition Pointy-head has fumbled the ball or run interference against his own team, 30 minutes have slipped by and the Government is hurting from the drafting.

Ten minutes left, and it is every MP for himself.

But how to keep the team in line? How to discipline it?

"Easy," says Whip Bell, "If a guy breaks the formation, we bench him by not putting him on the Question List."

What Question List!

The line-up, reveals Tom Bell, that we run down with Mr. Speaker before the game starts.

This Tom Bell knows is his political bones, is the pre-election session, be a soap vote call-for November, or next Spring or Fall.

Off come the kid gloves, he vows.

On go the brass knuckles.

As pep talks go, great stuff.

But will it work? Can the Tory team pull it off?

"The Liberals did," recalls Tom Bell, "why can't we?"

Why indeed?

The Liberals "did it" back in 1962.

But the situation was different. The ruling Conservatives in a minority position were deep into their feud, that built-in self-destruct mechanism of theirs, that routinely ruins the leader and wrecks the party.

All the Liberals had to do was look and sound stronger than the weakening Conservatives to present a credible alternative for the voters.

And they had the manpower with the know-how.

They had that terrifying—for the Tories — team of Jack Pickersgill, Lionel Chevrier, Paul Martin and, incredibly, Lester Pearson.

"Pick, Pearson, Paul and Chev," as the Conservatives called them.

And with devastating ease this team of Grit toughies daily simply pounded the Government into helplessness and finally submission and surrender.

All alone during the Daily Question Period, and backing away at Diefenbaker's fading front Cabinet line.

Pick, Pearson, Paul and Chev played their own rules, ignoring Mr. Speaker Marcel Lambert's feeble and futile bleats for "Order"...

"I remember," says Tom Bell, "seeing Pick pacing his office at one o'clock in the morning, thinking up new ways to rip us. He worked. They all worked. We've got to have that kind of determination."

What No Pied Piper?

St. Catharines Standard

Some people simply can't let sleeping myths lie.

A German ethnologist (that's someone who studies people and races, apparently) named Hans Dobberin has been doing some research and says there never was a Pied Piper who led 130 children out of the village of Hamelin on June 26, 1284.

His recent research does show that 130 Hamelin children did leave the town but with the intention of emigrating to Prussia. There is no mention of children among them. They were led by Nicholaus Graf von Spiegelberg - Poppenberg, a nobleman who may have worn colorful clothes but who didn't play a pipe as they departed.

True, says the researcher, there was a plague of rats in Hamelin, but this happened 300 years later in 1586.

Well, we still like the old story. And anyway, the Pied Piper is easier to say than Nicholaus Graf von Spiegelberg-Poppenberg.

Next thing you know, some one will be repeating that also that there is no Sanata Claus.

Report On Youth

Letter in
The Ottawa Journal

After reading the latest recommendations for a "more humane" and "social order" by Hunter, Bourdon and Kelly, one might shrug it off as just one more plan by socialists. However, there are two very important points at issue, and they must not be overlooked.

This report was sponsored by none other than the Secretary of State.

The authors of this report and staff were paid over half-a-million dollars for this latest example of extravagance and waste of money contributed by Canadian taxpayers.

Canadians should protest paying these men close to $45,000 each year to set up "this preliminary model body" toward the establishment of a future Socialist State. It might be interesting to know what college or university these young men attended and who their teachers or professors were. Were they taught anything of love of country? Evidently not.

We resent it that some of the most powerful men in this Liberal Government is the mift who has placed himself and his office behind this trio of young men who apparently would be pleased to destroy both our sanctity and our country. Disregarding the details contained in this report, what are they advocating? Their message seems to be the old slogan of, "Down with Democracy."

Could it be that the Secretary of State would like to impose further restraints on our liberty? That is something no man should be allowed to.

India-Pakistani Tensions Grow

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The frontier tensions disrupting relations between India and Pakistan have taken on a new dimension of danger following reports of fresh military buildups in the bitterly disputed area of Kashmir.

Until now, most of this year's feuding between the two countries has been along the border separating India from East Pakistan, scene of the tragic civil strife which sent millions of refugees pouring into Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's desperately overcrowded India.

But the bloodshed in Bangla Desh is also serving to revive the fierce antagonisms which previously caused India and Pakistan to clash violently in Kashmir.

But the Indians fear that the Pakistanis may be planning to stir up trouble in Kashmir through local tribesmen who harbor deep hatred for New Delhi's policies.

For their part, the Pakistanis can point to a reported massing of Indian ground and air units in and around Kashmir.

New Delhi also has been taking extra precautions along the ceasefire line in efforts to foil pro-Hsi infiltration attempts.

The Indians contend that a military eruption in Kashmir would be to Pakistan's advantage by diverting world attention from Pakistani Yahya Khan's continuing difficulties with his rebellious eastern region.

The president charges that India has been infiltrated into East Pakistan with the aim of encouraging further revolts there.

Moreover, he has declared that any Indian effort to take over Pakistan territory would mean total war.

But Yahya seems to be making some attempt to tranquilize the world worries about the plight of East Pakistan, where he contends that 98 per cent of the people are still meeting insurgent resistance in "certain border areas."

A civilian governor has been appointed for the East, replacing the military man in charge there since shortly before the federal Pakistan army began its campaign to crush the Bangla Desh dissidents.

Yahya said the civilian appointment was made "in furtherance of the pledge to restore democracy and . . . facilitate the transfer to power" from the army to non-military authorities.

However international apprehension about conditions in East Pakistan will continue at least until there is definite word about the fate of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman.

Trial of Rahman, captured by the federal government early in the civil strife, has been reported secretly under way in West Pakistan.

The Pakistan president's branding of him as a minor figure (unpaid having a copy) and the newspapers gave detailed accounts of the whole story. The news spread quickly in this multi-racial and multi-religious island. As a result not only the boy's parents but a large segment of the population embraced the Christian faith.

CHRIST IS ALIVE

The Case for Faith Healing

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recently on the front page of the Globe and Mail, reporter Richard Gwyn wrote an article describing the healing ministry of Kathryn Kuhlman, a middle-aged American evangelist. Miss Kuhlman does not claim to be a faith healer, instead she gives all credit to Jesus Christ.

Faith healing has been with us for a long time and of course most people have their own opinion about it. Lately, however, certain European newspapers carried elaborate stories of such healing in Austria and even in Communist Hungary.

We have heard of cases where deaf people had their hearing restored and of the blind receiving their sight. Others (myself included) were healed of relatively minor ailments.

One of the most awesome and pronounced healings occurred not long ago in the island of Trinidad. Harold Khan, a 14-year-old moslem boy, managed to come to an evangelistic healing crusade with his crippled leg, in spite of strong opposition at home. Because his right leg was 5½ inches shorter than the left, he had to walk with the aid of a special shoe. His left leg was bound in a steel hip-to-heel brace because of bone dis-

BGH Student Employees Find Fulfillment In Their Jobs

By JIM WILLARD
Staff Reporter

Summer employment programs organized by industry do provide funds to further the education of high school and university students, but they also offer young men and women the atmosphere for maturing into adults.

One of the best examples exists at Belleville General Hospital, where summer student employment has been a fact for many years. Each summer, some 50 local and out-of-town students are hired to complement the regular staff.

Results of the program have revealed the students realize the importance of their employment. All students are treated as if they are regular staff members and are expected to act in a responsible way, accepting constructive criticism to uphold the quality control required at a hospital.

Who are these students? Are they different from any other young people? What are their plans for the future?

All of them applied for their positions early in the year. Records note that once hired for one year, usually same students report back the following summer for employment.

"All of them, on a general basis, were hired on a first-come, first - served basis," Robert Bentley, the hospital's personnel director revealed.

Paul Hopkins, 20, lists Belleville as his home town and has just finished his fifth summer at the hospital, working in kitchens as a dietary aide. He will complete his second and last year at Humber College in Toronto this coming semester leading to a diploma in data processing.

Cathi Lattimer, also 20, was born and raised in Belleville and will be commencing her second year in an arts course at ueen's university in Kingston. She works in SPD (Department (supply, process and delivery).

Diana Wiwczaruk, also 20, will be entering her third semester at Waterloo University. A non-native of Belleville, she only moved here with her parents two years ago. She works in the supply section of the SPD department.

Gloria McFarlane, also 20, works in the dietary section of the kitchens as a floor service aide, preparing trays prior to delivery of food to patients' rooms. She's enrolled at Western University in the second year of an arts course, and she is just completing her third summer at the hospital.

Miss Lattimer chased throughout the city for summer employment this year before being accepted at the hospital.

"I went through the phone book," she laughs. "I mailed out over 50 applications and I only got three answers of any kind back. I'm real glad to be here."

"I worked mainly through the manpower office," Miss Wiwczaruk reported.

"I went to bat every store in town, and half of them didn't even want to see me or give me an application," Miss McFarlane stated.

All four students conceded the fact that when they first reported for duty, their main goals were to earn money for their education, that their first thoughts were just to do the job as well as they could and seemingly ignore everything else around them.

However, as time passed, the four reported that their outlook on life and their dealings with people changed.

"I was just interested in my job only, I was just like a kid, and I was being used, sort of. You know, do all the small chores, but I wisened up. In other words, I started to grow up and be a woman, be more mature, be an adult," Miss Lattimer explained.

"It was more or less the same with me. I was a bit shy when I first started," Miss Wiwczaruk stated, and the other two also agreed.

All four appreciated their employment at BGH, and Miss Lattimer summed up their feelings when she stated "I sense some security here in that I have gained the confidence to work in an adult world as an adult. I want to come back, if they want me, and I believe it's the same with every student here."

Miss Wiwczaruk stated that she overcame her earlier shyness and changed her outlook on life in general.

"The experience here has really opened my mind. The atmosphere here is very smooth and co - operative, and Belleville being a friendly town, I enjoy working here."

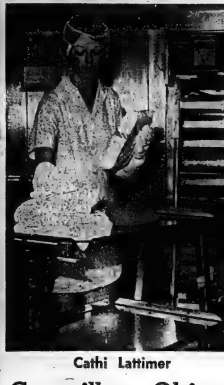
Perhaps contrary to what the older generation may believe, all four hope one day to marry. Although marriage plans are remote at present, the idea has not been turned down, although two of them have different versions of any future bonds.

"I think that today's youth does not necessarily want the same structures of marriage as their parents had. Perhaps something between the commune - type of living and common-law living might be appropriate. However, I agree that some changes will evolve in the present marriage contract, the results of seeing failures in their own families and those of their neighbors," Miss Wiwczaruk said.

Mr. Hopkins had somewhat different version of what marriage would mean to him.

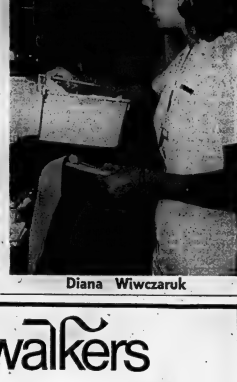
"I'm a roamer at heart, and I should marry someone, it will need to be someone that will accept my way of life. I don't think I could settle down in one spot and be tied down to one particular job. But I do enjoy living, and the money I have received from my summer employment has not only helped me with paying for my education but also to allow me to live the type of life I want," he stated.

"Before I was restricted to home because I had no money, but now . . . "



All four students agreed that money is the main motive for seeking employment, but there appeared to be a feeling that they would still search for a summer job, even if it was for a short period, if money was not the object.

None of them look upon their present chores as unimportant any longer, but as part of a greater reality in a service organization.



"The patient up in his room doesn't care whether his food or his individual needs are prepared by a full-time staff member or a summer student. All he cares about is whether he gets it, properly and on time. That's why all these students soon gain an insight into their status, and their outlooks take on maturity," Mr. Bentley explained.

That's why we must have top quality control, unlike most industry where other summer student employment programs are conducted, and I think these students realize that," he added.

And there's a definite feeling that the students do, and also realize the mechanisms of maturing in the meantime.

Councillors Object To PUC's Position

TRENTON (Staff) — Although there was no position taken by council Monday on the public utilities commission's subdividers' agreement stand, two councillors opposed it informally.

The commission had advised council it will only participate jointly with the town on subdividers' agreements in which developers pay the full cost of extending services to new housing areas.

Council has accepted the developer - pays - all policy but wants the option of revising this in the future.

Councillor Stan Ketcheson said here Tuesday the reason for possibly altering cost sharing procedures would be to facilitate the subdivision of "substandard land".

He said he would not agree with the PUC position.

Following reading of a letter outlining the PUC stand, Councillor Paul Tripp told council "I think the letter is tantamount to them (the PUC) saying do it our way or else — on the basis of this, I would vote against being party to this (cost sharing formula)."

Council and the commission were preparing to embark on a policy of signing individual agreements with the subdividers, but PUC legal advisors were against this, leading to the still unresolved dialogue on the mature of future pacts.

Michigan Police Given Leave to Kill Bombers

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Mayor Gerald Graves has given police permission to shoot to kill in extreme cases of arson or fire bombing following two nights of trouble on the residential west side.

The mayor said Wednesday that "if anybody is directly involved with arson or Molotov cocktails, leading to the jeopardy of someone's life and cannot be apprehended by an order to halt, police will have permission to shoot to kill."

Trouble began Monday after the Sunday shooting of a young black man and a 16-year-old black girl on a city street in what police called an "unprovoked attack" by a white man.

At least one building was fire-bombed Monday night and about 30 car windshields were smashed.

Police Tuesday night arrested 10 adults and two juveniles on charges including carrying a concealed weapon, disorderly conduct, fire bombing and intoxication.

Pope Won't End Ban on Luther

WORMS (AP) — Pope Paul has rejected a request by German Roman Catholic laymen that he lift the 420-year-old papal ban against Martin Luther.

A committee of Worms Roman Catholic parishes had written to the Pope in April on the 450th anniversary of Luther's refusal to recant before a council of German nobility at Worms.

The laymen had requested a clarifying word from the Pope "on the person and teaching of Martin Luther in the light of today's Catholic viewpoint and in the interest of an intensification of ecumenical efforts."

The reply, released Wednesday by the committee, came from Jan Cardinal Willebrands, president of the Vatican's Secretariat of Christian Unity, who wrote that Pope Paul "at the present time, does not consider it possible to undertake a further step regarding your concern about Martin Luther."

The cardinal wrote that "the lifting of the ban against Luther does not seem practically possible on the one hand, and not suitable on the other hand—be it to give effective voice to the changed Catholic judgment of Luther, or be it to further the formation of closer ties between Lutherans and Catholics."

The cardinal said the Vatican's relations to Lutheran churches "can best be improved through further study, prayer and application of other means of ecumenical action."

The papal bull pronouncing the ban and excommunication of Luther was issued in 1521 by Pope Leo X.

Rideau Trail Complete

KINGSTON (CP) — The 200-mile Rideau Trail between here and Ottawa has been completed in a fraction of the time originally expected.

Dr. Fred Cooke, president of the Rideau Trail Association of Kingston which spearheaded the project, said Wednesday the trail is open for hikers.

It was expected that the association's member volunteers would take five years to complete the project but it was speeded up by a $33,800 federal Opportunities for Youth grant.

The grant enabled 27 students from Queen's University here and Carleton University and Algonquin community college in Ottawa to clear and mark the trail in four months this summer for $80 a week.

Youth Slain, Girl Raped

NEW YORK (AP) — A young man was shot to death and his teen-aged girl-friend raped in Central Park early Wednesday by a gunman who later critically wounded his own confederate.

The 17-year-old girl was stripped and bound before she was raped. Hours later she managed to crawl to a roadway in the park, where police in a patrol car found her.

The dead boy, Ruben Ortiz, 20, was shot in the head and chest.

Spruce Budworm May Be Crippled by New Virus

OTTAWA (CP) — Centuries-long forest depradation by the spruce budworm may be ended by Y virus.

Canadian forestry scientists, excited about this new biological weapon, by-passed some laboratory testing procedures in favor of field trials this summer.

The virus makes monsters of budworm larvae and cripples their reproductive powers.

In another eight months, scientists will know whether they have planted a biological budworm killer capable of acting as a natural check on this costliest destroyer of forest resources.

If they have, they feel confident of heading off the next big resurgence of budworm attacks, now at a high point in vulnerable stands of balsam fir, white spruce and red spruce over more than 20 million acres from British Columbia to the Atlantic.

One estimate of eastern Canada's loss from budworms since 1909 is 250 million tons of newsprint, the equivalent of 24 trillion at today's prices.

The search for biological weapons has been spurred by growing reluctance by the public and scientists to continue relying on chemical weapons that sometimes are found to have undesirable side effects after long use.

Interest shifted to viruses, partly because they have been proved effective against pine-destroying sawflies and because some live in and attack only a particular species. This characteristic lessens the danger of the virus affecting other non-harmful forms of life and upsetting natural balances.

Two types were known to affect the eastern budworm. One is called nuclear polyhedrosis and destroys by attacking the nucleus of the budworm's cell structure.

The other is a cytoplasmic polyhedrosis which works on the protein parts of the cell outside the nucleus.

This year the scientists isolated the nuclear polyhedrosis and conducted field trials with it.

Almost simultaneously a windfall occurred with the discovery that a virus found in insect larvae in British Columbia could be transferred to the eastern budworm larvae. This is Y virus.

"The really astounding thing is that it causes the affected budworms to become monsters. They grow to twice normal size and their reproductive capacity is crippled."

They continue to feed in the spring on the tender new growth of fir and spruce, but the promise for budworm control lies in the virus effect on reproductive capacity, limiting the numbers in succeeding generations of budworms.

The big question is whether Y virus will reappear more or less automatically in the next budworm generation, transmitted by the parents?

The trials were held on forest plots near Petawawa, Ont., with materials from the Insect Pathology Research Institute at Sault Ste. Marie, where Dr. F. T. Bird and Dr. J. C. Cunningham did the basic research on Y virus.

Flammable Textiles Are Under Scrutiny

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday his department is working on a program to rid the Canadian market of dangerously flammable textiles.

He said in an interview regulations under which extremely flammable textiles would be prohibited may be established by the end of the year.

The program would be worked out under the Hazardous Products Act, allowing the department not only to ban dangerously flammable textiles, but also to require flame-proof processing of certain products or warning labels on some.

An over-all regulatory program would still permit the department to act within 24 hours on specific textiles considered dangerous, Mr. Basford said. In the past, for instance, quick action was taken to prevent certain synthetic chenille berets from being imported, since they were found to burn with an almost explosive flame when barely touched by a match.

Recently, parents of three Toronto families urged that flammability standards be set for children's clothes. In two of the families, small children apparently playing with matches were burned when their night clothes caught fire. In the other family an older child was burned when her dress caught fire after she brushed against a hot stove.

STEPS TOWARD TOP MANAGEMENT

"Where in the world would you get a name like Certified General for an accounting association?" people sometimes ask. "And how can it be used as a step toward top management?"

We get certified from the fact that our course gives a general accountancy education broad enough to prepare people for top management positions. Today's president, general manager or vice-president finance requires a broad general background, with strong financial knowledge. For over 60 years C.G.A. has meant financial management.

If you would like to know more about our career plan, write to the Certified General Accountants Association, 25 Adelaide Street East, Toronto 210, Ontario, or call (461) 366-6501.

Mall Is Topic at Meet

The Women's Sales and Ad Club of Belleville kicked-off its season of dinner meetings and functions last night in the Sun Luck Gardens with David Blandford as guest speaker for the evening.

Mr. Blandford, manager of the Quinte Mall, spoke to the women on most aspects of the mall function and on the evolution of shopping plazas.

"The Quinte Mall and others like it have evolved from little general stores, selling everything from garments to pickles. It's not going to be long before we see malls with more than 150 stores," said Mr. Blandford.

Explaining that he "did not mean to imply that the Quinte mall would grow to this size but he would imagine that if the need arises, extensions could be tacked onto the mall."

After the short talk, the women were invited to ask questions on any aspect of the mall and the usually quiet crowd took advantage of the offer forcing Mr. Blandford, at one point to say, "I think you are trying to corner me."

Questions and grievances ranged from, security control, screening of potential retailers for the mall, the fact that a grocery store on the mall does not have pick up service and "are there going to be any more washrooms placed in the mall?"

When asked for a personal opinion of the mall, Mr. Blandford said, "the mall construction (taking nine months) was done in record time, we have a large variety of merchandise and the mall is doing good business. It's a good mall for shoppers."

"It must be," said one woman as Mr. Blandford estimated, using sales so far, that before the end of the mall's fiscal year, sales would probably total 15 to 17 million dollars.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

Individuality Still Keynote To Fashion This Fall Season

NEW YORK (CP) — Individuality is still the keynote to fashion this season. Your fall coat can be one of several silhouettes. No designer or firm is trying to force you to accept one style as the only fall fashion.

However, two coat silhouettes have burned up consistently in most top collections. Probably the most favored is the big collared trench coat. Award-winner Bill Blass is particularly fond of this style, worn over sleek little wool dresses or brief pants and sweaters.

The casual chesterfield falls into this category, too. This is the loose coat made famous by the fourth Earl of Chesterfield who died in 1773. Today his single-buttoned style is usually double-breasted.

The other fall style is the wrap or bathrobe, loose and roomy enough to fit over a suit. Kasper for Joan Leslie uses camel wool for a long wrap over pants-and-jacket with matching angora cap. Oscar de la Renta likes a long navy cashmere wrap with huge shawl collar. The more sophisticated wrap is the polo coat, even casually elegant for evening.

Some designers are referring to their wraps as steamer coats, harking back to the 1940s. But whatever the name, the wrap is a top favorite and in every fabric from Davidow's pinky-beige fleece to Bill Blass' Spanish-tile Melton cloth.

But of neither the trench coat nor the wrap is for you, there are plenty of basic fitted looks. Indeed this is the newest, most prophetic look: It should be a big success this spring. It's a decisive tailored look, in contrast to the seductive wrap or the casual trench.

The other lean looks are the narrow cardigan and the long sweater coat. The latter is often sleeveless as Suzy Perette's grey patterned style worn over a plain grey sweater dress. Then, too, there's the double breasted blazer coat. This can be even a double-knit, as shown by Highland Queen of Toronto, in blue with eight gold buttons.

Oddly, coats for fall 1971 seem to be almost a repeat of those of 10 years ago. In 1961 we were talking about fitted coats, extremely full coats, the new double-breasted look and capes. They're all much in evidence this season.

Hoods and fur trim were also 1961 features. They are again with us. Fashion expert Eleanor Lambert noted at the American Designer Showings that more fur trims were being shown this fall than for many years. Actually a lot of fake fur is being used in the widespread effort to save wild animals facing extinction.

Many fall coats are big collared and cuffed, fronted and bemmed in fur. Francesca for Damon completely bordered a brown-and-white patterned coat with fake white lamb.

Other designers were more modest in fur used. Adele Simpson adds red fox collar and cuffs to a camel fleece wrap. Anne Klein mates black Persian lamb collar, revers and cuffs to a grey herringbone double-breasted style. Donald Brooks frivolizes badger sleeves only on a beige checked coat.

Many hoods are edged with fur, too, especially for evening, as the white mink around the hood of Nat Kaplan's floor-length princess coat of pale gold brocade. Calvin Klein even edges the hood of a green suede coat with sable-dyed fox, which also spills down the front and around the hemline.

What about length? It's the coats that have taken over last year's ill - fated midi length. Fashionable fall coats are at mid-calf, covering a knee-length dress. It's certainly sensible for Canadian winters. High boots are still worn with the long coats. But many coats, especially the bathrobe wrap, are at the knee.

New Frosting for Banana Cake

By MARY MOORE

"Bring a banana cake. Do you need some ripe bananas?" So it was a gentle command from my sister Peady that brought on today's effort. Yes, I had ripe bananas that should be used and I had an idea for a new frosting for it.

Do you have ripe bananas on hand that should be used?

BANANA LAYER CAKE WITH SOUR CREAM FROSTING (two 9")

Batter:

2-3 cup shortening (room temperature)
1 2-3 cups granulated sugar
2 eggs
2 large or 3 med. ripe bananas — 1 cup mashed
2½ cups sifted cake and pastry flour
1¼ tsps. baking powder
1¼ tsps. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
1 cup buttermilk (or 1 cup sweet milk soured — see below)

FROSTING:

2 tbsps. butter
3 cups icing sugar
About 4 tbsps. dairy sour cream
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. cocoa
To make the Batter beat shortening and sugar together until pale and creamy. Beat in eggs until thoroughly blended then beat in bananas. Lift beaters.

Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder, soda, salt and cinnamon. Add to creamed mixture, alternately in thirds, with the buttermilk. (If you do not have any buttermilk put 2 tbsps. lemon juice or vinegar in bottom of measuring cup and fill to 1 cup line with sweet milk and let it sit until curdly.) Do not overmix batter. Stir until smoothly blended. Line bottoms of two 9" layer cake tins with buttered waxpaper. Butter sides. Turn in batter equally. Bake at 350 deg Fahr. 25-30 min. Let rest in pans 5 min. then turn out on cake racks to cool and peel off paper.

To make Frosting beat all ingredients together until of soft spreading consistency. Spread over one cooled layer on fancy cake plate. Put on second layer and frost sides then top.

When you try this frosting I think you will want to clip the whole recipe for it is a marvellous combination.

Youngsters Should Learn Good Grooming at an Early Age

By DORIS CLARK

"Mother, will you press my pants?" "I haven't got time. But — where are they?" "Mum, my dress is all wrinkles." "Did you forget to hang it up again? Here, give it to me and I'll run the iron over it."

What is wrong with these pictures? Everything. At five, girls and boys can learn to hang up the clothes they take off. At 11 or 12 Mother should not even think of taking dressing jobs out of their hands.

Start early to get your youngster using an iron. Give her (or him) fat smooth things like hankies or linen towels to do. Then gradually introduce the complications.

A girl can learn to handle a needle and do simple mending well before she gets into her teens; and may well take pride in making dresses and keeping her own wardrobe in order during high school years and later.

* * *

Dear Doris: My friend Jennifer's mother is now 53, and Jennifer is 16. Her mother does not trust her at all; treats her like a 10-year-old. She won't let her stay at my house even one night. She roots through her purse every time she goes out. Jenifer says their relationship is breaking down and I think it is too.

My mother says her mother is not being reasonable. Jennifer wants some social life instead of watching TV every afternoon and evening. She wanted to go to a dance (a respectable one) but she was not allowed.

She keeps her cooped up and won't let her have dates. Jennifer just takes everything and is getting so she doesn't care whether she goes out or not. She is an only child. — A Pal

Dear Pal: Could this mother have forgotten what it is like to be 16 and eager for life? Looks like a good argument for having your family while you are still young, and for having more than one kid to cuddle and love. It is not easy growing up when your nearest person is, in effect, holding you down!

Your best way to help is to keep her for a friend; have her over when your mother can arrange little parties; let her do things like cook, or sew, or play a game she enjoys. She needs self-expression and chances to do her thing.

And her too-fearful mother is threatening to make her into a withdrawn, fearful adult.

* * *

Dear Doris: I'm to say a prayer at my granddaughter's wedding table as we sit down to eat. I would like their names mentioned, Bruce and Nelly.

I would be grateful if you could help me out. — Granny

Dear Granny: Nelly shows confidence and affection for you when she asks you to share the spotlight at her wedding by saying grace. Here is one.

"For this joyous day for Nellie and Bruce; for the splendid fellowship we are enjoying here; for the fine food before us, God's Holy name be blessed and praised; through Christ, our Lord. Amen."

Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Ann Landers

She Gained Pounds Instead of Prize Car

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I loved you for confessing that you entered the Planter's Peanut contest 20 years ago and didn't win anything. I rolled off my chair laughing because I entered the same contest. I didn't go as far as to buy a dictionary for $40 because my husband bought one home from the office weekends.

If you recall, each entry had to be accompanied by a label from a can of peanuts. I had gained 34 pounds with my pregnancy, so my husband ate the peanuts. My total was 1705 words which I typed on adding machine tape! The first prize was a Hudson sedan. We were so sure we'd win it that we already had our trip planned.

Of course I didn't win anything, what's more I never even saw a list of the winners. Thanks for fessing up. That column made me feel very close to you. — MRS. A.E.

* * *

DEAR MRS. A.E.: At least you were pregnant. I gained nearly 34 pounds because I ate the peanuts! Your letter brought back some hilarious memories. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the letter about the teen who moved in with a friend whose parents were more "broadminded" than his own: We didn't think much of your advice.

Our daughter left home recently, to live with a friend. We have no intention of re-insuring the "broadminded" parents for our daughter's keep (as you suggested.) Had they not provided her with a convenient alternative she'd be living at home, behaving herself.

You should have told the "broadminded humanitarians" to M.Y.O.B. and not be so quick to offer asylum to a rebellious child who thinks she knows better than her parents.—MOBILE.

* * *

DEAR MO: The assumption that your rebellious daughter would be at home "behaving herself" had she not been taken in by the "humanitarians" is an optimistic one, indeed. I don't happen to share your sanguine view. Some recalcitrant teen-agers leave home and get into terrible trouble. Don't you read the papers?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are not speaking today. Please be the arbitrator.

Yesterday we returned home from a two-week vacation. Clothes were scattered all over the place. I had a dozen things to do, such as get groceries in the house, make phone calls and what have you. At 10:45 the doorbell rang. I was wearing a wrinkled apron, my hair wasn't combed and the living room was a mess. When I opened the door and saw a woman whose husband works with mine, I nearly dropped.

We had been together socially but she was not a close friend. Her first words were, "I've been thinking of dropping in on you for about a year."

I apologized for my appearance — told her I was sorry I could not invite her in and we stood on the porch and talked for about ten minutes. I promised to call her when I got settled.

Apparently this woman complained to her husband that I had insulted her, and her husband complained to my husband. I got a holy-what for being rude.

If you agree with him I'll grit my teeth and apologize. Hurry your answer. — BABY IT'S COLD IN BUFFALO.

DEAR COLD BUFF: Rude? You bet. But she's the one who was rude, not you. To pope in at 10:45 in the morning, unannounced, is gross. In my opinion your husband owes you an apology.

Opposition Hits Government Program For Meeting Problem of U.S. Surtax

OTTAWA (CP) — There were different arguments from different quarters, but the opposition continued to bombard the government Wednesday over its legislative response to United States import surcharges.

"Going around wringing our hands is not going to impress the hard-nosed protectionists in the United States," said Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo).

And Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) dismissed the government's legislation... on which debate continues today at second reading, as a peanut program.

The government's legislation, introduced Tuesday when Parliament resumed after a 68-day vacation, would subsidize Canadian industrial plants which have been hit by the surtaxes.

Meanwhile, as the opposition tore after the government inside the Commons, Finance Minister E. J. Benson was outside telling reporters he thinks Canada will be exempt from the surcharges in due course.

The U.S., he said, has an open mind and is prepared to make moves as the situation changes. Another meeting of officials has been scheduled and he will be meeting personally with John Connally, the U.S. treasury secretary.

The Americans are considering the Canadian argument in terms of being "a quite different case" from other countries, and he was confident that serious study is being given to the request for exemption.

In the debate, Mr. Woolliams said Canada might have received a kinder response from Washington if the Trudeau government had not kicked the U.S. in the shins at every opportunity.

He referred to remarks made by Prime Minister Trudeau in Russia last spring to the effect that Canada wanted to build up friendships with other countries to counter U.S influence.

Mr. Woolliams suggested Canada should join in an American common market including Mexico and some South American countries. There was a case for showing more friendship to the U.S. .

Mr. Saltsman's approach was different. He called for a stronger response from Canada to demonstrate, through retaliatory measures, the full consequence of the U.S. action.

"To be good neighbors does not mean we have to show weakness when we are being hurt."

But both men agreed on allegations that the government is trying to divert attention from the real issues.

Mr. Saltsman said the legislation substitutes subsidies for a thorough examination of Canada's problems—"a gigantic put-on."

Mr. Woolliams said the measure attempts to draw attention from unemployment, when the country faces a winter during which 1,000,000 Canadians could be out of work.

Mr. Saltsman introduced a motion which would, if accepted by the House, have the legislation referred to a Commons committe for further study.

While opposition MPs offered different suggestions for responding to the U.S. surcharges, Mr. Trudeau's parliamentary secretary, Barrett Dorson (L—York North) suggested that the "neighborly elephant" be permitted to run off some steam to satisfy domestic political needs.

If the surcharges achieve the desired goals, he said, the Canadian economy would benefit.

PM Mute Before Flood of Questions

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau stood mainly mute Wednesday in response to a series of Commons questions on the economy.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the government had any special measures to propose to ease the prospect of unemployment in Canada this winter.

Mr. Trudeau said not at this time.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) followed with a series of questions concerning federal-provincial consultation on response to the surtax by asking whether Canada has proposed that there be consultation between Canada and the U.S. before any American economic decision that would have a drastic impact on the Canadian economy.

Mr. Trudeau said he didn't see how Mr. MacDonald could ask about Canadian-U.S. relations in a supplementary question to federal-provincial relations, and sat down without answering the question.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) said it now is obvious the U.S. government will continue a wage-price freeze after its current 90 day limit had run out.

Would Canada implement such a freeze?

Mr. Trudeau said the government's attitude has not changed. It had considered such a possibility and was keeping it under consideration, but no such decision had been made.

New Cost-sharing Pact Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — Government negotiators are expected to urge the United States government to assume a larger share of the operating costs of the St. Lawrence seaway at upcoming talks on the waterway.

Should the two countries agree on a new sharing of costs, there is a possibility of increased tolls, government sources say.

No date has been set for the meetings though a transport department spokesman said they will begin "as soon as practicable."

The Canadian negotiators will be armed with the D. W. Carr report on seaway financing which says that the U.S. benefits more from Canadian seaway facilities than Canadians from American installations.

Youth Says Mounties Made Him Inform

OTTAWA (CP) — A 21-year-old Cornwall man said Wednesday the RCMP threatened to send him to prison if he did not act as an informer.

Robert Wayne Eadie said he was paid about $25 over 2½ years from 1968 when he was 18, for information supplied to the Long Sault, Ont., branch of the RCMP.

He said police threatened to plant drugs on him, then arrest him and send him to prison if he did not provide information.

He said during a CBC television interview shown here Wednesday night that he stopped informing after he was beaten by six men and left for dead in a ditch.

Mr. Eadie said he has since been threatened for aiding the police and that the police laughed at his requests for protection.

He stated on the television program, Something Else, that he had been picked up by city police "regarding intoxication and they called in the RCMP because they were aware that I knew people in the drug scene, and forced me by threatening that they would send me back to prison if I did not give them information regarding drugs."

Mr. Eadie, now married and the father of one child, said he had been in the reformatory at Guelph and that he was "very frightened because I didn't want to go back, so therefore I did do as they asked."

Payment varied, he said, but "if you got a big person busted, if it was a big dealer, you know, they would give you $50 cash."

He said "close to 15" informers are in Cornwall, all teenagers and none of their parents know they are informers.

His informing career ended after the beating, Mr. Eadie said.

"The wrong person" was arrested, "and I got punched out by six guys" and left for dead in a ditch.

He said when he got home and the police were called the RCMP said: "Oh, he'll be all right," and that was the last his parents heard of it.

An "enforcer" later pointed a gun at him and told him to get out of Cornwall, Mr. Eadie said. He said he was afraid of taking a steady job for fear of being found out and thought he would be safer in Brockville with his family.

Davis Approves Subsidy

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis endorsed Wednesday the $80 million federal subsidy program to help industries hurt by new United States trade restrictions, but warned it was not a cure-all.

Mr. Davis also pledged provincial support in the form of low-interest loans to Ontario companies harmed by the 10 per cent U.S. supplementary import duties but not eligible for the new federal help.

Under the federal plan, help will be available to Canadian industries that export at least 20 per cent of production to the U.S. and that can show the new duties likely will cause significant.

Mr. Davis did not say by what criteria an Ontario plant will be judged for the supplementary provincial aid.

Speaking to a local association of business and professional men, the premier said if the federal scheme is "as sound and workable as it appears at first glance, it could go a long way toward overcoming the short-term effects" of the U.S. policy.

He appealed for public support for the program and urged Ottawa to enact the legislation with a minimum "of delay and red tape."

Carlos to Als, Smith to Ticats

Notorious Sprinters Sign CFL Pacts

That was in 1968.

Today the former U.S. Olympic sprint aces from San Jose State are together again—in the Eastern Football Conference.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats announced today the signing of Smith, a six-foot-four 205-pound wide receiver recently cut by Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League. He had spent the last two seasons on their taxi squad.

Montreal Alouettes of the EFC announced Wednesday Carlos' signing after commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League said the Als had produced necessary affidavits to class Carlos as a non-import.

Under CFL bylaws, a player may be a non-import if he has never played organized football at the high school, college or post-college level, regardless of his place of birth. The Als had been trying for sometime to collect the necessary documents.

Smith is an import because he has played in exhibition games with the Bengals. Carlos was injured in his first NFL camp with Philadelphia last year and dropped by the Eagles before the exhibition season started this year.

The Ticats also announced that running back Gene Moore, a fourth-round draft choice in 1969 of the NFL San Francisco 49ers, was in camp and that another halfback would also be in within a day or two.

Moore, who also has seen action with New Orleans Saints, and the arrival of another running back, apparently puts newcomer Frank Quayle's job in jeopardy after only one game.

Quayle, who replaced fullback Steve Worster on Hamilton's import roster, didn't impress in Hamilton's 30-17 win over Toronto Argonauts last Monday although he did score the go-ahead touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Canadian Football Packs More Punch

TORONTO (CP) — Greg Fulton, Canadian Football League secretary, has provided a comparison of 1970 CFL and NFL statistics along with his weekly Eastern Conference statistics.

They show that in an average CFL game, there were more plays from scrimmage, more yards gained by both rushing and passing and the average passes and rushes went greater distances.

Out of 182 NFL games during 1970, the average total offence per game was 563.5 yards while out of 68 CFL games the average was 629.1.

In keeping with the four-downs, ball-control style of play in the NFL, the figures show an average of 62.8 rushing plays compared with 53.4 in the CFL. But the average NFL rush gained only 3.8 yards against 4.7 yards in the CFL and the average total yards rushing per NFL game was only 236.5 compared with 266.7 in the CFL.

NFL quarterbacks were only slightly better than those in Canada, completing an average of 17.5 passes per game out of 33.8 attempted, compared with 17 out of 32.9 in the CFL.

The NFL pivots gained an average 6.7 yards per pass while their counterparts in the CFL threw for an average of 7.6.

In the turnover department, the CFL ranked ahead with 4.1 interceptions but managed 2.7 fumbles compared with only 2.8 in the CFL.

CFL officials handed out an average of 9.5 penalties per game for 74.3 yards compared with 11.4 for 119.8 yards in the NFL.

And while the CFL teams scored slightly fewer points—37.4 to 38.5 for the NFL—they gained more first downs—31.4 compared with 32.7 in the NFL.

TORONTO (CP) — Defensive halfback Jim Tomlin of Toronto Argonauts has been traded to British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference for "future considerations." Leo Cahill, coach of the Eastern Football Conference leaders, said Wednesday the trade was made at Tomlin's request, after the player explained that his wife was unable to get a teaching job in Toronto.

Mail Reached Howe 'Addressed 'Mr. Hockey'

DETROIT (AP) — Occasionally during his 25 star-studded years with Detroit Red Wings, Gordie Howe would receive fan mail addressed simply: "Mr. Hockey, U.S.A."

Now holding more National Hockey League records than any other player in history, Mr. Hockey is stepping aside to let some of the younger talent have a chance.

Red Wings owner Bruce Norris had invited reporters to a news conference this afternoon but, saying he "couldn't back it once they sent out the invitation," Howe started telling reporters his retirement was official about 24 hours early.

The six-time NHL most valuable player had been arguing the pros and cons of hanging up his skates for months. He eatalogued the arguments again in a phone interview Wednesday night.

"I'm 43 and it's a young man's game . . . some wrist trouble, and my legs aren't what they used to be.

"One thing I've stuck to pretty much throughout my career—when it becomes more work than fun, I've had it. I've found practice extremely difficult and I just don't get up for a game anymore.

"When you see your own son embark on his own career, you know you're getting old," he added, referring to his 17-year-old boy Marty who signed this year with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

"And it was my mother's wish before she died that I get it (retirement) out of the way before I got seriously hurt."

Howe said the only point against his retirement was "selfishness—maybe go for 800 goals.

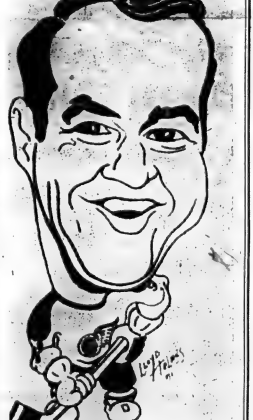
"But I don't think that's as important as being honest with the fans." One of the NHL records he holds outright (he also has three ties) is his lifetime 786 scores.

Already a vice-president of a Norris-owned insurance company and owner-operator of a suburban ice rink, Howe confirmed he would be staying with the Red Wings front office but added he would "let the big fellow do some talking" on that score.

With the permission of the team management, Howe said he would like to help out with training-coaching duties and "learn all phases of the business."

Obviously relieved by the disclosure of his tortuous decision, Howe was buoyant as he added: "Colleen (his wife) said I'm just going to stay home and make love to her."

After 25 years of continual travel with the NHL club, [illegible] he said he'll want a slower job to give him time to [illegible] with his sons Marty, Mark, 16 and Murray, 11, and his 12-year-old daughter, Cathleen.



Howe won the Hart Memorial Trophy as the most valuable player and the Art Ross Trophy as the top scorer in the NHL six times each. He was chosen for the league's all-star team in all but four of his seasons. He was among the league's top five scorers for 20 consecutive seasons—from 1949-1969.

Born in Floral, Sask., Howe got his first skates when he was five, and a year later he was playing "sandlot" hockey. Oddly, he couldn't skate well at first so he started as a goalie.

When he was 15, the six-foot, 205-pounder was invited to try out with New York Rangers. But after a 10-day stay at the NHL team's tryout camp he was told:

"You'd better go back home, Sonny, you'll never be a major leaguer."

In 1945-46 he spent his only year in the minor leagues at Omaha of the then United States Hockey League. After that it was Detroit and stardom.

GORDIE HOWE

Records Galore

After turning professional with Omaha in the old United States Hockey League in 1945, Howe started on his first NHL game with the Wings Oct. 16, 1946. He scored his first big league goal that night against Toronto Maple Leafs.

He scored his 786th regular-season goal last April 3 at the Olympia against Chicago Black Hawks.

Those 786 goals will likely stand as the league record for some time as will the 22 seasons played, the 1,687 games played, the 1,023 assists and 1,869 points.

Adding his playoff performances provides more record totals—1,841 games played, 853 goals, 1,114 assists and 1,967 points.

Howe also holds the league records for most career winning goals, 122; most years in playoffs, 18; most playoff goals, 91; most 20-or-more-goal seasons, 22; most consecutive 20-or-more-goal seasons, 12, and most 30-or-more-goal seasons, 14.

Howe's 21 selections to either the first or second all-star teams from 1948-49 to 1969-70 also stands as a record.

Pilous Takes Brandon Job

BRANDON (CP) — Brandon Wheat Kings of the Western Hockey League have signed Rudy Pilous, coach for seven seasons of the NHL Chicago Black Hawks, to a one-year $15,000 contract as coach and general manager.

Pilous coached Black Hawks to a Stanley Cup victory in 1961.

The announcement that contract agreement had been reached came at a meeting Wednesday of about 100 members of the club.

The meeting also approved a resolution to allow the club to change to a private company from its present structure as a public non - profit organization.

Wood's Bid Blocked

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wilbur Wood said that going for his 30th victory felt no different than going for No. 19 or No. 18. But getting that magic No. 20 was another matter.

While all eyes were on Wilbur, Jim Kaat stole the show.

Wood, the veteran knuckleballing reliever-turned-starter of Chicago White Sox, was stymied in his bid to become the American League's third 20-game winner by Kaat, who hurled a nifty four-hitter as Minnesota Twins defeated Chicago 3-1 Wednesday night.

The big left-hander, at 11-12, having a sub-par season, held the White Sox hitless until the fifth inning.

"No game is easy to win," sighed Wood, 18-11, derailed in his bid to join Oakland's Vida Blue and Detroit's Mickey Lolich in the 20-game circle.

Kaat a 6-foot-4 southpaw, did not walk a batter and the White Sox reached him for their only run of the game in the ninth inning.

Wood, denied his major goal, raised his total of innings pitched this season to 283, the most by a White Sox pitcher since Thornton Lee hurled 300 innings in 1941.

McLain Wants To be Traded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Denny McLain, last year's bad boy of baseball and one of the sport's major disappointments this year, says "I want to be traded, I know I'm gone."

A 31-game winner with Detroit two years ago, McLain now has a 9-18 mark with Washington.

"I wouldn't want to have to come back to a place where I knew I would be pitching every fifth or sixth or even sometimes every seventh day. I just wouldn't want to go through all that again. I don't care where they trade me—just as long as I can pitch every fourth day when I get there."

Mets Find Expos Feel No Pain

And for a guy who was having batting problems earlier this season because of a bad wrist, Rusty Staub sure added the knockout punch.

All Morton did was silence the Mets bats, holding them to only four hits before giving way to reliever Mike Marshall in the eighth as Montreal Expos baled to an easy 10-2 National League win before a country-wide television audience Wednesday night.

All Staub did was bat in four runs for the second straight game with a three-run homer, his 18th of the year, and a fielder's choice.

Montreal scored one run in the second inning when Bob Bailey beat out an infield single and moved to second when Gary Sutherland walked.

It seemed, however, that the Mets and starter Ray Sadecki might escape from the inning unscathed when Sutherland was caught napping and picked off first by catcher Jerry Grote.

But Bailey stole third as Sadecki was delivering a fourth scored when John Boccabella lofted a sacrifice fly to deep centre field.

Montreal came back with three more in the third when Staub blasted Sadecki's first offering over the right field fence after singles by Morton and Ron Woods.

Morton, who helped his own cause with two base hits, scored again in the fifth as Montreal moved ahead on a 8-0 count.

"I've always considered myself to be a pretty fair hitting pitcher," a smiling Morton said after the game.

The converted outfielder collected from the Atlanta Braves chain in the expansion draft also helped himself with several sparkling defensive plays on sharp ground balls hit back through the box.

New York threatened mildly in the first and second innings as Morton seemed to be experiencing control problems.

"I was pitching them a little too fine," Morton said, "and I was getting behind the batters.

"I was just missing and the umpires didn't help too much by not calling low fastballs.

"I finally convinced him when I kept throwing the ball in the same place," the Montreal pitcher added.

The win, Morton's second in his last six decisions and first home win since mid-June, was "gratifying" for the right-hander who has struggled with an elbow injury since mid-season. His record now is 10-4.

"The arm feels stronger now and the elbow hardly hurts anymore," he said.

Meanwhile Staub, who has been batting at a .301 clip since mid-August, confessed that he was only trying to "meet the ball."

"I'm not trying to do anything special," he said.

Not doing "anything special," Staub has belted seven homers, five doubles and seven triples and has produced 28 runs in that stretch.

In the last two games of the three-game set with the Mets, he hit two homers, a triple and a single and drove in eight runs.

And the Expos have been winning ball games with this newfound power—15 out of the last 23 for a stronger grip on the Eastern Division's fifth spot.

Dodger Pennant Drive Recalls 1951 'Miracle'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Remember the Miracle of Coogan's Bluff?

Well, brace yourself. . .

Now the Miracle of Chaves Ravine appears to be unfolding in the wild, wild West.

Coogan's Bluff was, of course, the site of the since-demolished Polo Grounds where the old New York Giants, trailing the old Brooklyn Dodgers by 13½ games in August, 1951, came on with a frenzy to tie for first place in the National League, then beat them in the playoffs on Bobby Thompson's home run, the "shot heard round the world."

Now, one generation and 3,000 miles later, Los Angeles Dodgers are trying to reverse the roles—and in the last three nights they've succeeded admirably against their still rivals, San Francisco Giants.

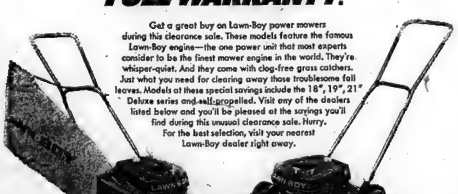
Only last weekend the Dodgers trailed their upstate foes by 8½ games.

Then the Giants strutted into Dodger Stadium. They stumbled out of it Wednesday night, their West Division lead slashed to five games as Los Angeles completed a three-game sweep with a 3-0 victory.

Bill Singer silenced San Francisco on just two hits before wilting in the ninth inning. He allowed Ken Henderson's first-inning double and a single by Chris Speier in the second, then retired 20 batters in a row.

After Henderson and Willie Mays got on base in the ninth, Bobby Bonds ended the spine-tingler by slapping into a double play.

Wes Parker singled and scored the Dodgers' first run in the first inning, then tripled home a run and scored again in the third.



The victory was the Dodgers' first this year against Juan Marichal and only their 14th over him in 50 decisions.

It was also the Dodgers' sixth straight victory over the Giants, their longest such streak since the two teams moved to the west coast at the start of the 1958 season.

Hanley's Stab in Dark Keeps Read Hopes Alive

It appeared as though Plane's Concrete would ride a shot in the dark to win their second consecutive South Hastings League baseball crown, until Paul Hanley came through with an 11th hour defensive effort.

With the score tied 6-6 in the bottom of the fifth, and Plane's batting for the last time because of the rapidly diminishing daylight, third baseman Larry Adams lofted a high drive to left field. Hanley saved his Read teammates from elimination by reaching over the fence to pull in the home run attempt and preserve the 9-8 deadlock.

The best-of-seven series remains at three games to two in favor of Plane's, with two games tied. The games do not count towards the final decision, however.

Plane's pitcher Garnie Adams and Read hurler Harold Pascoe had control of the enemy batsmen throughout the abbreviated contest.

The only other serious scoring threat for either team came in the first inning when Plane's lead - off batter Ron Urch singled and reached third base with only one out. A pop fly and a fine catch by first baseman Pat O'Connor on a line drive got Pascoe out of the inning.

The Read right-hander allowed only a single by Larry Lewis throughout the next four innings, and even this threat was erased by a snappy double play. Adams was equally invincible on Plane's rubber yielding singles to O'Connor, Hanley and Peter Enright...None of the Read baserunners advanced past first.

The Plane's hurler struck out ten batters, while Pascoe set down five men on strikes. Neither pitcher walked a man.

The next game of the series will be played in Read Saturday afternoon at two o'clock with another, if necessary, at 2 p.m. Sunday in Consecon.

Hillier Ball Rolling

Hillier kept the ball rolling, and rolling, and rolling . . . banging out 14 hits last night in a 17-3 drubbing of Mountain View.

The Hillier win gave them a 3-2 lead in their Prince Edward North Shore League best - of - seven series.

Peter Pettingill, Craig Mathias and Paul Pettingill provided the bulk of Hillier's offensive punch with three hits each. Clark Alexander looked after the pitching chores with an eight-hit effort, fanning 10 and walking two batters.

For Mountain View, Ken Burkholder rapped two hits to pace the attack.

Three Carbide Keys

Faith, Hope and Charity will be the key words for Union Carbide Friday night.

It will be a benefit game for Union Carbide player Ted Marshall who suffered a broken leg during the course of the industrial schedule.

The contest will be played at the Alemite Field getting under way at 8 p.m.

Olympic Softball Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Softball is moving into the international big leagues and the Canadian Amateur Softball Association has plans to try to make it to the playoffs.

Softball already is set to be an official part of the Pan-American Games program at Santiago, Chile, in 1975. The CASA intends to bid to have softball considered for the Olympic Games in Montreal a year later.

Larry Skinner, association executive director, Wednesday enthused about the prospects following what he termed "the finest Canadian men's championship ever held" last month in Halifax.

"As one of the 43 countries linked under the International Softball Federation," he said, "Canada will play a major role in bidding for inclusion of our sport on the 1976 Olympic Games agenda in Montreal.

"We've been playing softball in this country for many years, but everything has been disjointed.

"Talent we have in abundance. The organization has to come along to match it."

And he said, "Finally we've sent delegates to Kentucky and hopefully, we'll surge ahead."

He explained that in 1972 for the first time a national rule book will be available in both French and English, every aspect of the game will be made standard for both men and women across the country and a complete minor league classification system will be established.

And just as important, the association will be affiliated with the various provincial and regional umpiring groups in an attempt the make uniform rules interpretations, financial structures and umpire development.

"What this means," he said, "is that Canada can develop umpires who will be capable of officiating on a national, international or world basis. . . ."

Rollins Use Wrong Boots On Oshawa Opposition

OSHAWA (Special) — Rollins Construction put the boots to the Bunnies in the opening game of their OASA Intermediate "A" series last night. Unfortunately for Belleville team, the "boots" turned out to be fielding mittens as the Oshawa Bunnies took advantage of three Rollins errors to record a 4-3 victory.

The third inning proved to be Rollins' downfall as the Bunnies combined for four runs on only one legitimate hit. A misjudged fly ball by Belleville's Curt Boomhower that fell in for a triple and a wild throw by pitcher Wayne McConnell on a fielder's choice coupled with Bo Burke's single and a delayed double steal accounted for the Oshawa runs.

Rollins got on the scoresheet in the fourth frame with a Boomhower stapled. Dale Thrall drew a walk and Ralph Young crashed a two-RBI double. Oshawa first baseman Bill Taylor proved to be a stumbling block for Belleville the rest of the way, turning in three outstanding fielding plays to help his team maintain their two-run edge.

Don Calder fired the win, allowing four hits and three walks, while whiffing eight batters. McConnell was touched for four of the five Oshawa hits before giving way to Scott Reid in the fourth game. The Rollins duo struck out five and walked an equal number.

Plane paced Rollins with a double and single, while Boomhower and Wes May had the other hits.

The second game in the best-of-three, series is scheduled for Saturday night at the Alemite beginning at 8:15 p.m.

The Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association coaches showed how to lead by example last night, banging a 9-3 exhibition loss on the midget all-stars.

Steve Casselman led the way for the coaches with three goals, while Phil Meeks added another pair. Single members went to Dave Luscombe, Gary Curtis, Glen Payne and John Deoormeaux.
